OUR CHARTER CHEST, - - - - -	25

As a life-member of this well-known Society I can confidently speak of the many kindly offices it is fulfilling in its unobtrusive personal visits among the old folk in the Townhead of Glasgow. Like other Societies of this nature it has lately suffered through the reduced rate of interest on its trustee investments, and as it is anxious to maintain its number of pensioners and its usefulness, I have pleasure in endorsing this appeal for new members and donations. A Society with such a long tradition is worthy of encouragement.

GODFREY P. COLLINS, Kt., D.S.O.,
H.M. Secretary of State for Scotland.

THE CATHEDRAL,
GLASGOW.

The North Parish Washing-Green Society is one of those old charitable institutions which link Glasgow's past with its present. Numbering many honourable names among its members, it has carried on now for one hundred and fifty years its unobtrusive, but benevolent work, bringing a little extra comfort and brightness into the lives of many of the aged and the poor in the city. Fortunately the Old Age Pension has largely removed the fear formerly associated with declining years and those in distressing circumstances in our large cities are more adequately provided for to-day than even at the end of last century. Nevertheless, we have the poor always with us. And there are still many retaining that old-fashioned and admirable pride, who would rather receive help from a benevolent fund such as this than be dependent on Public Assistance.

I have great pleasure in accepting the invitation of the author of this little book to write a few lines recommending the Society to the sympathetic interest of the public, and making an appeal on behalf of the Directors for new members. A donation of one guinea makes the subscriber a Life Member. Pensioners who benefit by its help are selected after visitation and thorough investigation by the Committee of Management, and are afterwards under its constant care. The whole revenue is distributed among those of a deserving character who are in real need ; and many more could be helped if the funds were larger. Those of us who have been kindly treated by life, and ourselves enjoy so many blessings, can show our gratitude in no better way than by lending assistance to the needy neighbours near our doors.

A. NEVILE DAVIDSON,
Minister at Glasgow Cathedral.

LIVING HISTORY IN GLASGOW.

Origin of an Old Charity.

The title of this old Society has a quaint, unfamiliar and distinctive ring about it to modern ears, accustomed to many charities, but none so mundane as to concern themselves with a washing-green. Nevertheless, the name enshrines in its present survival an interesting page of social history of a bygone, semi-rural Glasgow when it was a comparatively small community as yet clean and unspoilt by the clouds of smoke from industry. It also carries our memories back to those days when the Cross was the centre of civic life. The renowned red-cloaked proud Tobacco Lords taking their daily stroll along the plainstones before the Tontine in the Trongate were of but recent occurrence when this Society was established.

Beyond Buchanan Street there was nothing but green fields. From the Saltmarket to the Cathedral ran the High Street up the Bell o' the Brae, and fronting this thoroughfare was situated then our venerable University. In those more leisurely days it took twelve hours to travel to Edinburgh !

The Molendinar Burn.

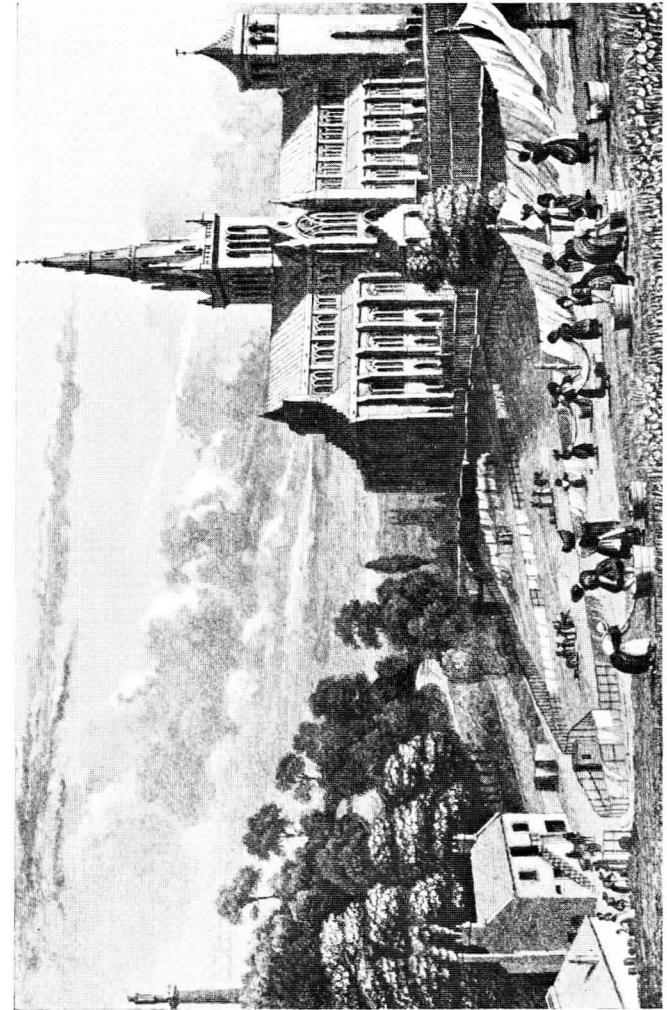

The Heritors of the North Quarter in April, 1792, decided to equip and manage washing-greens on ground which they owned beside the banks of this, then clear and open stream flowing freely to the Clyde ; the free income of which was to be distributed among the poor of the North Parish. The directors drew up certain rules and regulations, for "wigs on the green" had to be firmly, if tactfully dealt with, and so the Magistrates of the Town Council of Glasgow granted a Seal of Cause in 1793. The Charter Box containing this precious document still exists and is much admired. The Board, composed of representative citizens, has ever consisted of a Preses, Treasurer and Clerk, with eight others duly elected at the Annual Meeting held in November. These meetings were originally held in the "Penny" North Parish School, but in 1850 the Lord Provost granted permission for them to be held in the Session House of our Cathedral.

The Seal of Cause.

The Seal of Cause states, "The proprietors and inhabitants of the said Parish shall give intimation to the tacksman the day before they are to wash of their intention to do so, in which case the tacksman shall be obliged to keep room for them in preference to any others, and if any difference shall arise between the tacksman and the persons resorting to the said washing-green, either about any such preference or about the rates specified in the authorised table, the same shall be referred to the Preses, Treasurer and the Directors of the Society.

"The tacksman shall personally attend the Green in order that the women may at all times find it clean, the water warm, the House in order, and its tubs, stools, etc., ready for use and shall not hinder the washerwomen taking water from Nannie's Well. He is not to sell ale or spirits."

THE WASHING-GREEN AND CATHEDRAL

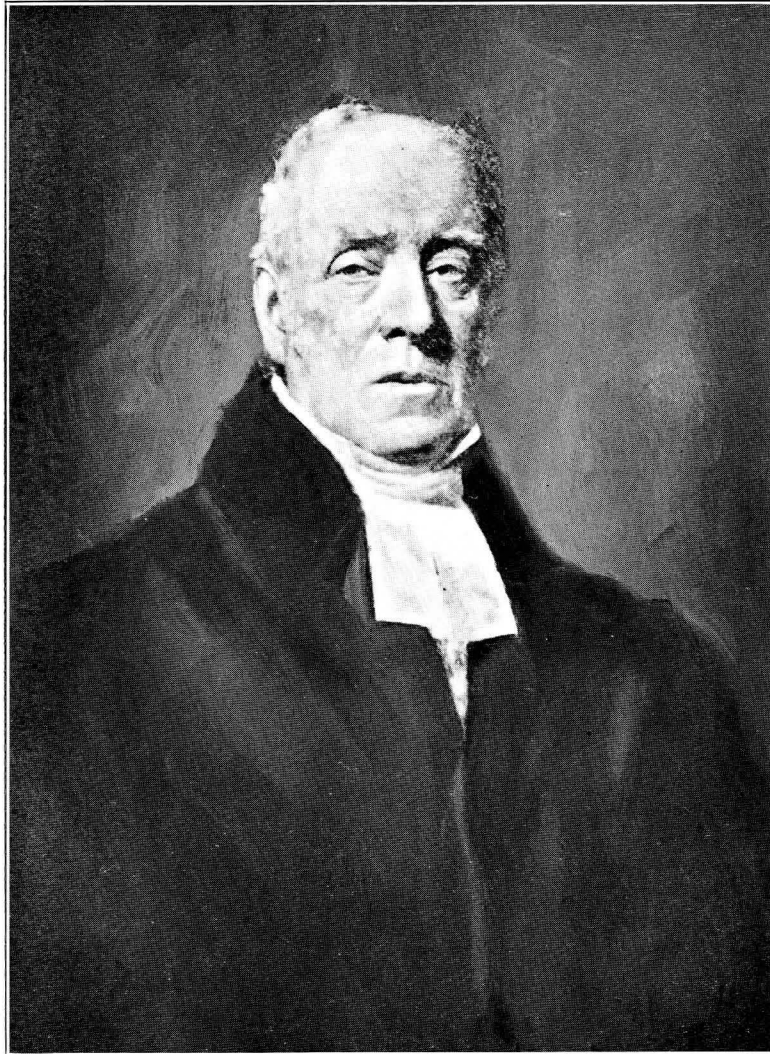

An inventory of those days shows that the utensils were :—" 130 boynes, 10 tubs, 18 pails, 79 stools, tresses and ropes and pins, 2 hot-water boilers and 2 barrows."

The Town's Bellman proclaimed as each 28th October came round :—" The extensive and commodious North Parish Green, together with the wash and dwelling house, tubs, stools and other utensils belonging thereto, are to be let by public roup, within the house of Matthew Salmond, Vintner, Kirk Lane, opposite the High Kirk, upon Thursday next, at twelve o'clock noon for the ensuing year."

During 1803 serious complaints arose regarding the steeping of lint, in preparation for the weaving of linen, in Hogganfield Loch causing the Molendinar Burn to be unfit for washing in, and so the Sheriff issued an order in favour of the Society, who now erected a dam across the stream to render it more serviceable. The problem of obtaining clean water was of grave concern then, the successful sinking of the Barrel Well was of vital importance as it yielded a copious supply until the introduction of the Loch Katrine source through the able skill of Dr. Cleland and the engineer, Mr. Alston.

PRINCIPAL MACFARLAN

When the Merchants' House began to lay out the Necropolis and throw a bridge across the Molendinar and incidentally across the washing-greens, the Society elected Mr. Milne, the overseer, one of its Directors, thus ensuring a friendly interest in their rights. But by the year 1873 the greens, becoming unsuitable for their original purpose, were sold to the Royal Infirmary for the sum of £3,005. Thus was brought to a close the first eighty years of the Society's existence, but it has continued ever since fulfilling its merciful mission as a Trust, the claims of the needy having never been denied so far as means allowed. And so a portion of Old Glasgow has been transformed into practical service in the bustling life of these modern days. Yet the memory of the quondam washing-greens survives; this Society is its monument.

It is a Useful Charity.

From its foundation it has been fortunate in receiving the support of members of our Corporation, the Trades House, the Merchants' House, Chamber of Commerce, and other public bodies. Principal Macfarlan, of the Old College, was from its inception one of its most leal friends in assisting the higher education of any poor "lad o' pairts." As winter approached the pupils of the washerwomen attending the "Penny" Lennox School, once situated beyond the old Barony Kirk and at the present entrance to the Necropolis, were provided with boots and stockings. Nor were the mothers overlooked, for they enjoyed an excursion as each month of May came round. Many graphic tales might be recounted regarding past and present beneficiaries. We may picture how these douce housewives for three-quarters of a century exchanged over the washtub the gossip which their spouses gathered in the coffee-houses around the Tolbooth.

The progress of Glasgow's prosperity reads like a romance, but in our pride of achievement let us never forget our obligations. This duty our Society has always kept before it. Comforts are still required—the amount we are able to grant appears very small—yet it means much to those of limited resources.

Payment of ONE GUINEA has from the beginning constituted Life Membership. Through such payments and generous donations a sum has been accumulated, which, being added to the price the Green fetched when disposed of, makes a present capital of £5,068 invested in trust funds. Within its scope the work is carried on gratuitously, so that, excepting incidental outlays, the entire revenue is distributed monthly among some fifty deserving recipients born or long associated with the neighbourhood of the North Parish around our ancient Cathedral and for their well-being the Society is still active.

THE MOLENDINAR

From the Burgess Song of GlasgowWords by

REV. ROBERT MACOMISH

When good St. Mungo preached and prayed
 By moor and glen and forest glade,
 He reached a knoll with a burn beside,
 That looked on a valley green and wide.
 The good St. Mungo smiled and said,
 "No prospect could be finer,
 We'll build our cell by this crystal well,
 On the banks of the Molendinar."

So there St. Mungo preached and wrought,
 And wild folk gathered where he taught,
 And built their huts, and so began
 A hamlet round the holy man.
 High on a tree a bell he hung,
 No music could be finer,
 Both night and day it called to pray
 On the Banks of the Molendinar.

Then wonder-stories grew among
 The folk, and spread from tongue to tongue—
 A fish had brought a ring to land,
 And a dead bird lived at the Saint's command.
 The Bird and the Tree and the Fish and the Ring,
 No stories could be finer,
 They keep their charms on the Glasgow Arms
 By the banks of the Molendinar.
