PREFACE

It is with mingled feelings that the University issues this record of its members' service and sacrifice during the Great War. Proud it must be that so many answered at once to the high call of national duty. But it must also grieve for the loss of the unreturning brave, who yielded up their young lives that our Country might live. At the first onset of the War in August 1914, hundreds of our students volunteered for active service in the Scottish battalions, which speedily won undying fame in France and Flanders; the Roll of the Fallen shows at what heavy cost. Their example was followed by hundreds more, month by month, as the struggle went on. Teachers and students flocked into action on land, at sea, and in the air, until the University had its representatives in almost every branch of the services and on every field of warfare.

The Officers' Training Corps, already in pre-war days one of our most effective educational institutions, became under Major Hendry, Captain Peddie, and their colleagues, a fruitful source of supply for the commissioned ranks of the army, and many young subalterns from regiments unconnected with Glasgow became thus associated with the University, and received there their preparation for command. The class-rooms were more and more depleted, and at length only a number of women-students, and youths under service age putting in a session of study before joining their fellows in the field, remained to carry on the academic tradition. The University laboratories were adapted to necessary scientific work for the Government. Professors and lecturers went on leave of absence to take up war-duties in London or elsewhere. Many of the medical teachers and students, both men and women, were mobilised for hospital work at home and abroad; but a sufficient nucleus remained for the intensive training and testing of young practitioners, of whom for military and civil service the Country was in grievous need. In a word, the experience of Glasgow was similar to that of other national Universities, though owing to its situation, circumstances, and special modes of activity, it had in some respects a character of its own.

When at length peace was declared, the University felt that among its first duties was that of raising an abiding memorial to those of its members who had fallen in the defence of their Country's cause. After due deliberation it was agreed, with the consent of all, that their memory, and our gratitude for their devotion, should be associated with the place of our corporate worship, to the end that their great example might be enduringly impressed upon Glasgow students in time to come. The necessary funds were within a few months subscribed, and before long there will rise in the West Quadrangle the walls of our Memorial Chapel, bearing for remembrance the 742 names of "Our Glorious Dead."

THE UNIVERSITY,
March, 1922.

DONALD MACALISTER,
Principal and Vice-Chancellor.

EDITORIAL NOTE

WHILE no effort has been spared to make this record as full and accurate as possible I am aware that there must be a certain number of members who ought to be included, but whose names I have been unable to obtain. If any such omissions are noted I trust that intimation of them will be made to me. In particular I would ask for assistance in making the Roll of the Fallen absolutely complete. It is the earnest wish of the University that no single name should be omitted from the long list of our dead, whose names will be inscribed on the walls of the Memorial Chapel, soon to be erected in perpetual remembrance of their sacrifice.

In the preparation of this final Roll of Honour I have made free use of the two previous issues of 1914 and 1916. To Professor Medley, whose work on these earlier Rolls was invaluable, and to Major James Hendry, who was mainly responsible for their compilation, I hereby tender my heartiest thanks. It is impossible to praise too highly the accuracy of their records.

For the first two issues of the Roll the University is indebted to her Principal, who, by his private generosity, made their publication possible. His constant labours for the Allied Forces during the War were fittingly recognised by the award to him of the Cross of Commander of the Legion of Honour and of Chevalier of the Crown of Italy.

CAPT. HARRY SHERWOOD RANKEN, R.A.M.C. (Died of wounds.)

“For tending wounded in the trenches under rifle and shrapnel fire at Hautvesnes on 19th September and 20th September, 1914, continuing to attend to wounded after his thigh and leg had been shattered.”

CORPORAL (now CAPTAIN) JAMES LENNOX DAWSON, R.E.

“For most conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty on October 13, 1915, at Hohenzollern Redoubt. During a gas attack, when the trenches were full of men, he walked backwards and forwards along the parados, fully exposed to a very heavy fire, in order to be the better able to give directions to his own sappers, and to clear the infantry out of the sections of the trench that were full of gas. Finding three leaking gas cylinders, he rolled them some 16 yards away from the trench, again under very heavy fire, and then fired rifle bullets into them to let the gas escape. There is no doubt that the cool gallantry of Corporal Dawson on this occasion saved many men from being gassed.”
