From 6 p.m. to 10 p.m., -	-	-	-	-	6d.

THE Council of the Glasgow Institute of the Fine Arts have organized the Exhibition in order to illustrate the history and progress of Glasgow. The exhibits range in date from the earliest times until about the middle of this century. All the exhibits have a direct connection with Glasgow and its industrial, social, and civic life.

The Council deeply regret that, just as the arrangements for the Exhibition were approaching completion, the sudden death of James Reid, Esq., has, for the meantime, left the position of President vacant.

The warmest thanks of the Institute are due to the generous lenders of exhibits, and to the members of the various committees who have most earnestly worked to make the Exhibition a success.

NO.

Lent by the University of Glasgow.

1. FRANCIS HUTCHESON, LL.D.

Born, 1694; died, 1747.

Professor of Moral Philosophy in the University of Glasgow. The son of a Presbyterian clergyman in the North of Ireland, whose family had been one of some antiquity in the county of Ayr. Dr. Hutcheson studied in the University of Glasgow, and was educated for the ministry. Instead of entering the Church, however, he accepted the position of head of an educational establishment in Dublin, where his liberal political opinions, and his Presbyterian connection, subjected him to considerable hostility and persecution. The earliest, and, at the same time, the freshest and ablest of his writings, "An Inquiry into the Original of our Ideas of Beauty and Virtue," appeared in 1725. This was followed by the "Essay on the Nature and Conduct of the Passions" in 1728. The high reputation which these writings gained him, taken in connection with his brilliant career as a student, led to his appointment to the chair of Moral Philosophy in the University of Glasgow in 1729, as successor to the learned Gershom Carmichael. He discharged the duties of this position until his death in 1747, at the early age of fifty-three. Dr. Hutcheson was a man of very varied attainments; his writings and teachings embraced æsthetical, moral, and political subjects: and in all of these departments he has left the impress of a powerful and cultivated mind. He may, in truth, fairly be regarded as the originator of those branches of reflective inquiry in Scotland in connection with which the names of Adam Smith, Thomas Reid, and Dugald Stewart are conspicuous. As a lecturer on morals, he was high-toned, able, and eloquent. Besides the works already mentioned, there is the posthumous one, "A System of Moral Philosophy," with his Life, by Principal Leechman, published in 1755. He has also left Logical and Ethical Compendis. (See Nos. 982, 2093, 2139, 2351.)

NO.

4. WILLIAM HUNTER, M.D., of Long Calderwood, Lanarkshire.

Born at Long Calderwood, 23rd May, 1718; died in London, 30th March, 1783.

Physician and Surgeon. One of the most eminent teachers of anatomy of the last century; author of several celebrated works. Studied in Glasgow University, from 1731 to 1736; settled in London in 1741 as assistant to Dr. James Douglas, whom he shortly afterwards succeeded; and became physician to Queen Charlotte. Was the instructor, in anatomy, of his brother, John Hunter. By his will, of date 23rd July, 1781, he left the ultimate possession of his extensive and valuable museum and library, with a considerable sum of money, to the University of Glasgow. The collection was conveyed to Glasgow in 1807, and now, with many additions, constitutes the Hunterian Museum. (See Nos. 520, 521, 525, 829, 1279, 1703, 1704, 1773, 1806.)

NO.

PAINTER—Robert Edge Pine.

Lent by Sir David Carrick-Buchanan, K.C.B., of Drumpellier.

5. GEORGE BUCHANAN of Mount Vernon.

Born, 1728; died, 1762.

Virginia merchant. Second son of Provost Andrew Buchanan of Drumpellier (No. 46). Married Lilius, daughter of James Dunlop of Garnkirk (No. 54), and niece of Provost Colin Dunlop of Carmyle (No. 82). The more famous Mount Vernon, the home of the Washingtons, adjoined George Buchanan's Virginia estates; it was originally "Hunting Creek," and was changed to "Mount Vernon" by Laurence Washington in compliment to the brave old British Admiral Vernon, under whom Laurence had served in the unlucky Carthagena expedition. George Buchanan's Mount Vernon was originally "Windy Edge," and was changed to "Mount Vernon" by him in compliment to his Virginian friends and neighbours, the Washingtons of Mount Vernon. George Buchanan built as his town residence the famous "Virginia mansion." This stood at the top of Virginia Street (which he formed through his own ground)—a spacious edifice, with wings and offices beyond them, with a range of hot-houses, and ornamental garden reaching south to the line of Wilson Street, where stood a handsome gateway. The Virginia mansion was sold by George Buchanan's trustees to Alexander Speirs of Elderslie (No. 70). It became eventually the property of the Union Bank of Scotland, which pulled it down in 1842 to build its new premises fronting Ingram Street. The Virginia mansion fronted Virginia Street.

6. ELIZABETH CLARK OR M'BRIDE.

Born, 17—; died, .

Daughter of Thomas Clark, merchant in Glasgow, and wife of Hugh M'Bride of Baidland, grandson of James M'Bride, Town clerk of Glasgow, 1695. (See No. 3.)

PAINTER—Said to be Hugh M'Bride.

Lent by the University of Glasgow.

7. The Rev. THOMAS REID, D.D.

Born in the Manse of Strachan, 1710; died, 1796.

Professor of Moral Philosophy in the University of Glasgow. On his father's side he was descended from a long line of clergymen. His mother belonged to the family of the Gregorys, so illustrious in the medical and scientific history of Scotland. In 1737 he was licensed to the ministry, and ordained to the charge of New Machar, where he continued till 1752. In the quiet of this country parish he read Hume's "Treatise of Human Nature," which had recently appeared, and this roused him, as it did another great thinker—Kant—to active reflection on the great questions of intellectual philosophy. In 1752 he was promoted to a professorship in King's College, Aberdeen. The fruit of his thinking during these days was given to the world in 1763 in the form of an "Inquiry into the Human Mind"—the most original and profound of all his writings. His reputation at this period was so great that he was solicited by the University of Glasgow to take the chair of Moral Philosophy there, which had been vacated by Adam Smith. This position he occupied until his death, in 1796. Original in thought, clear and simple in style, grave and earnest in character, Reid was the founder of a school of philosophy which has greatly influenced opinion in his own country, in France, and in America. His principal works, besides the "Inquiry," are—"Essays on the Intellectual Powers," 1785; "Essays on the Active Powers," 1788. (See Nos. 534, 538.)

PAINTER—Sir Henry Raeburn, R.A.

8. The Rev. JAMES BAILLIE, D.D.

Born about 1723 ; died, 1778.

Professor of Divinity in the University of Glasgow

He married Dorothy Hunter (No. 2), sister of the great anatomist William Hunter (No. 4), and of John Hunter (No. 341), and was father of the great physician Matthew Baillie (No. 214), and of Joanna Baillie, the poetess (No. 495).

PAINTER—Robert Edge Pine.Lent by Henry M'Call of Daldowie.

9. SAMUEL M'CALL.

Born in Dumfriesshire, 1681 ; died in Glasgow, 1759.

Merchant. One of the "Virginia Dons." Councillor in 1722 and Bailie in 1723. He was elected Dean of Guild in 1736, but refused to accept office, whereupon he was imprisoned for a short time in the Tolbooth. His house, with its garden, stable, and brewhouse, was situated on the south side of the Gallowgate, and bounded on the east by the Molendinar burn. He married, first, in 1707, Isobel, daughter of William Blackburn and Margaret Murdoch, and had by her a son, Samuel, who settled in Philadelphia ; and second, in 1714, Margaret, daughter of John Adam, merchant in Glasgow, and Mary Wood, by whom he had John, of Belvidere, merchant in Glasgow, now represented in Glasgow by his great-grandson, Samuel M'Call. Another son was James, of Braehead (No. 469).

PAINTER—A pupil of Sir Peter Lely.Lent by the University of Glasgow.

10. WILLIAM CULLEN, M.D.

Born at Hamilton, 1710 ; died at Edinburgh, 1790.

Professor of Medicine in Glasgow University from 1751 to 1756. Educated at the Grammar School, Hamilton, he served a short apprenticeship to a surgeon and apothecary in Glasgow. After a voyage as surgeon on board a merchant vessel, he settled at Hamilton in 1737. In 1740 he took the degree of M.D. at the University of Glasgow, and afterwards removed to that city in 1746. He delivered lectures on chemistry and medicine from that time, in connection with the University, till 1751, when he was chosen Regius Professor of Medicine in the University. In 1756 he became Professor of Chemistry in Edinburgh University, and, on the death of Dr. Gregory, he succeeded to the chair of the Practice of Medicine, which he held with distinguished honour to the close of his life. Dr. Cullen published many valuable works. He was the instructor of William Hunter and of Joseph Black. A monument was erected to his memory over his grave in Kirknewton churchyard by the College of Physicians, Edinburgh. He married Anna, daughter of the Rev. Robert Johnston, of Kilbarchan. (See No. 1775.)

NO.

PAINTER—William Cochrane.

Lent by Miss Dinwiddie, London.

11. ROBERT DINWIDDIE.

Born at Germiston, 3rd October, 1692; died at Clifton, 27th July, 1770.

Merchant in Glasgow. Son of Robert Dinwiddie of Germiston, merchant in Glasgow, by Elizabeth, daughter of Matthew Cumming, of Cardarroch, merchant in Glasgow. Appointed in 1727 Collector of Customs in Bermuda, and there and in other colonial appointments did good honest work for His Majesty. In 1751 appointed Lieutenant-Governor of Virginia, and served there for six anxious years; the first troubles with the French came in his time; in connection with these Governor Dinwiddie gave Major "George Washington" his first appointment on active service. During his Governorship he presented to the Corporation of Norfolk, Va., a splendid silver mace, which still exists, and to the library of the old college of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va., many books bearing his book-plate, which were burned during the Confederate war. To the library of our own University (of which he had been an alumnus, and had been made an LL.D.) he left a legacy of £100, which, "as being most respectful to his memory," is still preserved intact. In January, 1758, Governor Dinwiddie returned from Virginia broken in health. He died at "Clifton Hot Wells" on 27th July, 1770, and was buried in the old parish church of

NO.

Clifton, from which his elaborate monument has been removed to the present church. Two large volumes of the "Official Records" of Governor Dinwiddie have been published by the Virginia Historical Society (Richmond, Va., 1884), and throw a flood of light on colonial history, 1751-1758. Governor Dinwiddie is mentioned in Thackeray's "Virginians." He married Rebecca, daughter of the Rev. J. Affleck, and left two daughters, Elizabeth and Rebecca (No. 12). A younger brother of the Governor's was Provost Lawrence Dinwiddie (No. 474). The Provost and the Governor were original partners in the Delftfield Pottery Co. of Glasgow. (See No. 1851.)

PAINTER—Allan Ramsay.

Lent by Miss Dinwiddie, London.

12. ELIZABETH and REBECCA DINWIDDIE.

Elizabeth, born, 1738 ; died, 1773. Rebecca, born, 1742 ; died, .

Daughters of Governor Dinwiddie (No. 11). Elizabeth died unmarried at Clifton, and was buried in the old Church there, where her sister erected a monument to her. Rebecca accompanied her father on a visit to Scotland after his return from Virginia in 1758, and on 5th September of that year was made "a Burgess of the Burgh of Renfrew." She married "Archibald Hamilton, Esq., of the Isle of Man," but died without children.

PAINTER—Allan Ramsay.

Lent by John B. Cowan, M.D.

13. HENRY MARSHALL.

Born, 1653 ; died, 1727.

Surgeon in Glasgow. Son of Patrick Marshall, surgeon in Kilsyth (died 1697). Buried in the High Churchyard. His family Bible, in the possession of his descendant, the lender, describes him as "Physic. Apothec., Glasgow, 1684." He married Margaret Storrie, grand-daughter of John, 3rd Earl of Wigton, and Lady Jane Drummond, eldest daughter of the 2nd Earl of Perth. She succeeded to the property of Nethercroy, which ultimately fell to Lillias Horsburgh, wife of Robert Cowan of Grahamston,

NO.

Glasgow. After a long dispute with the Faculty of Physicians and Surgeons, Henry Marshall was admitted into that body, and became visitor and librarian. In 1696 he was consulted professionally regarding the famous Bargaran witchcraft case.

PAINTER—School of Sir Godfrey Kneller.

Lent by Miss C. C. Dunlop, Edinburgh.

14. JOHN CORBETT of Tolcross.

Born, 1729; died, 1815.

Merchant. Son of James Corbett of Tolcross (No. 94).

Married, 1748, Janet Callendar, and was father of Cunningham Corbett, a well-known citizen of Glasgow, who was Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce in 1802 and 1803.

Painter unknown.

Lent by William Henry Hill, LL.D.

15. THOMAS HUTCHESON.

Born about 1590; died, 1641.

Founder of Hutchesons' School, and a large benefactor to his brother's Hospital. Was the younger son and fifth child of Thomas Hucheson of Huchesonstown and Lambhill, by Helen Herbertsone his spouse. He was left fatherless when about five years old, and his brother George (No. 38) proved a most affectionate and careful guardian. He received a very thorough education, and, in his own language, this was among "the blessings, and the pious and memorable exampell for which, under God, I am indebted to my brother George." Married Marion, daughter of James Stewart of Blackhall, but left no issue. (See Nos. 1082, 1099-1101, 1564.)

PAINTER—Supposed to be Anthony Vandyck.

Lent by the City Parochial Board.

16. JOHN WILSON of Shieldhall.

Principal of the University from 1690 to 1700, to which office he was appointed by William the Third. Son of Alexander Dunlop, by Elizabeth, daughter of William Mure of Glanderston, allied to the Mures of Caldwell. A man of singular piety, public spirit, and universal knowledge.

Painter unknown.

Lent by the University of Glasgow.

24. PATRICK HAMILTON.

Born, 1504 ; burnt at St. Andrews, 1528.

The first martyr in Scotland to the doctrines of the Reformed religion. His name occurs in the "Acta Rectoria" of the University of Paris—a register of the graduates—under date 1520, as "Patricius Hamelton, Glasguensis nobilis."

Painter unknown.

Lent by the Faculty of Physicians and Surgeons.

25. WILLIAM SPANG.

Born, 15— ; died, 1608.

Apothecary. Deacon, in 1605, of the "Incorporation of Surgeons and Barbars," in succession to their first Deacon, Robert Hamiltone (No. 31). James VI.'s Charter of Erection to the Faculty of Physicians and Surgeons of Glasgow, given at Holyrood House, 29th November, 1599, bears "that no manner of person sell any drugs, in the city of Glasgow, except the same be sighted by the saids visitors [Mr. Peter Lowe (No. 27) and Mr. Robert Hamiltone (No. 31)], and by William Spang, Apothecary, under the pain of confiscation of the drugs." William Spang is said to have come over from Denmark in the suite of Queen Anne. He settled in Glasgow, and founded a family of some note. By his wife, Christian Hamilton, of the ancient family of Hamilton of Silvertonhill and Provan, he was father of Andrew Spang, a rich merchant in Glasgow, whose eldest son was a Cavalry Colonel, and whose second son was William Spang, minister of the gospel, appointed in 1630 by the Convention of Royal Burghs to the Scottish congregation, then first "plantit" in the "Staple Port, in the town of Campheir," in Holland. This William Spang (II.) was the "deare Merchant in Glasgow. Bailie, 1720, 1723. He bequeathed to the Town's Hospital £850 stg.

Painter unknown.

Lent by the Faculty of Physicians and Surgeons.

27. PETER LOWE.

Born about 1550 ; died about 1613.

An eminent surgeon. He was author of "A Discovrse of the Whole Art of Chyrurgerie" (No. 2360), which passed through six editions. In the second edition, published in 1612, he styles himself in the title-page, "Peter Lowe, Scottishman, Doctor in the Facultie of Chirurgie at Paris, and Ordinary Chirurgion to the French King and Navarre." He practised twenty-two years in France and Flanders, had been two years surgeon to the Spanish regiments at Paris, and had followed the King of France, Henry IV., six years in his wars, before he settled in Glasgow, about 1595. He found the practice of medicine and surgery in Glasgow and the West of Scotland in the hands of "cosoners, quack-salvers, charlittans, witches, charmers, and divers other sorts of abusers," on a representation of which to James VI., "His Majesty and Honourable Council thought not to be tolerated," and granted to Dr. Lowe and others, in 1599, the charter of Incorporation of the Faculty of Physicians and Surgeons, in which he is designed as "Maister Peter Lowe, our Chirurgiane, and Chief Chirurgiane to oure dearest son the Prince." From the records of the city, it is evident that he was a leading citizen in his day. He was one of the Commissioners for the settlement of the differences between the Merchants and Crafts in 1604. He married Helen, daughter of Mr. David

NO.

Weems, minister of the High Church of Glasgow, and had issue, a son, John. Helen Weems married, second, Walter Stirling, Dean of Guild, 1638, 1639. His tomb, with a quaint inscription, is on the south wall of the Cathedral burying-ground, near the entrance gate. It is now the property of the Faculty of Physicians and Surgeons. (See Nos. 1461, 2359-2361.)

Painter unknown.

Lent by the University of Aberdeen.

28. Bishop WILLIAM ELPHINSTONE.

Born, 1431 ; died, 1514.

Educated at the Grammar School and University of Glasgow. After his ordination as priest, he was for four years Rector of St. Michael's, Trongate. Thereafter he proceeded to the University of Paris. He returned from France about 1471, and was appointed Parson of Glasgow and Official of the diocese. He was Rector of the University in 1474. Became Bishop of Ross, 1481 ; was translated to Aberdeen, 1484 ; Lord High Chancellor of Scotland, 1488. He founded King's College, Aberdeen, in 1500.

PAINTER—Alexander, after the original, now unknown.

Lent by the University of Glasgow.

29. The Rev. ALEXANDER HENDERSON.

Born, 1583 ; died at Edinburgh, 1646.

An eminent minister of the Church of Scotland. He held in succession the offices of Professor of Philosophy at St. Andrews, 1611—1614 ; minister of Leuchars, in Fife, 1615—1639 ; first minister of Edinburgh, and Rector of the University there, 1640—1646. He drew up the renewal of the National Covenant in February, 1638, and was Moderator of the memorable General Assembly which met at Glasgow, November 21st, 1638. He resided in London nearly three years, as one of the Commissioners of the Westminster Assembly, in which he took a prominent part.

30. The Rev. ROBERT BOYD of Trochrigue.

Born at Glasgow, 1578 ; died at Edinburgh, 1627.

Son of James Boyd, of Trochrigg, Archbishop of Glasgow, who was descended from the Boyds of Kilmarnock, and the Earls of Cassilis. Robert Boyd was successively Professor of Philosophy at the College of Montaubon, Professor of Theology at the University of Saumur, Principal of the University of Glasgow, 1615—1621, and Principal of the University of Edinburgh for a few weeks in 1622, 1623. These offices he resigned, in consequence of his unwillingness to conform to the Articles of Perth. He was called to be minister of Paisley in 1625, and died at Edinburgh in January, 1627.

Painter unknown.

Lent by the Faculty of Physicians and Surgeons.

31. ROBERT HAMILTONE.

Born, 15— ; died, October, 1629.

“Mr. Robert Hamiltone, Professoure of Medecine,” so styled in the charter of the Incorporation of the Faculty of Physicians and Surgeons, 1599. When the charter was granted it is probable that doctor of medicine and professor of medicine were synonymous terms ; at all events, there was no professor of medicine in the University for many years afterwards. Mr. Hamiltone was the first President of the Faculty, and was one of the Commissioners for settling the differences between the Merchants and the Crafts in 1604. He left a son, “Mr. James Hamiltoune.”

37. ROBERT SIMSON, M.D.

Born at Kirktonhill, 14th Oct., 1687; died, 1st Oct., 1768.

Professor of Mathematics in the University of Glasgow.

He was the eldest son of John Simson, of Kirktonhill, and educated at Glasgow University, where, his mathematical capacity being recognised, he was appointed professor in 1711. He occupied the chair for fifty years, and acquired great reputation both as mathematician and as teacher. He is now best known by his edition of Euclid, of which all modern editions are little more than reprints. Among his pupils were Colin Maclaurin, James Stirling, Mathew Stewart, and Professor Robison of Edinburgh.

Painter unknown.

Lent by William Henry Hill, LL.D.

38. GEORGE HUTCHESON.

Born between 1550 and 1560; died, 1639.

Founder of Hutchesons' Hospital. Was the eldest son of Thomas Hucheson, of Hucheson-toun and Lambhill, and Helen Herbertsone his spouse. This Thomas Hucheson was son of John Hucheson of Gairbraid, who belonged to an old Glasgow race. In 1471 a pious and worthy man, George Huchesone, made a gift of a sum of money to the vicars of the choir, and other charitable members of the family are on record. Thomas Huchesone and Helen Herbertsone had issue, besides George, Janet, and Elizabeth, Helen, who married Ninian Hill of Garioch, the direct ancestor of Laurence Hill, LL.D. (No. 202), and Thomas, the founder of Hutchesons' School (No. 15). George Hutcheson married Elizabeth Craig, but left no lawful issue. (See Nos. 1096-1098, 1569.)

Lent by Kerr & Richardson.

44. ANDREW FOULIS.

Born in Glasgow, 1712; died, 1775.

Printer and publisher. Brother of Robert, who was the first to establish a school of the Fine Arts in Britain. For thirty years the firm of Robert and Andrew Foulis produced a series of editions of the Latin and Greek Classics, which, for beauty of print and fidelity of text, were not equalled by any publications of the time. In 1753, Robert Foulis, having visited Italy and engaged teachers, founded in Glasgow his Academy of the Fine Arts. He formed a collection of 459 pictures, numerous drawings by eminent masters, engravings, and casts from statues, for the artistic instruction of the people of Glasgow; but the effort was premature, and the collection was dispersed, the pictures being sold in London in 1776. The casts were actually broken to pieces by workmen, so little were they cared for. (See Nos. 2184-2224.)

PAINTER—M'Culloch.

Lent by Miss Dennistoun Brown of Balloch Castle.

44A. ALEXANDER BROWN.

Born, 2nd January, 1738; died, 6th September, 1803.

57. ROBERT HAMILTON of Airdrie.

Born, 1714; died, 1756.

This portrait has been supposed to be that of Robert Hamilton, merchant, who was born in 1754, and died, unmarried, at St. Helena, on his way home from India, in 1799, having realised a considerable fortune in China, the bulk of which he left to the University of Glasgow. This Robert Hamilton, however, never

no.

owned Airdrie, and the portrait is more probably that of his father, Robert Hamilton of Airdrie, born, 1714, who married Mary, daughter of John Baird of Craigton. He was the representative of the Hamiltons, Baronets of Preston and Fingalton. The last of these, in the direct line, was Robert Hamilton, the leader of the Covenanters at Drumclog and Bothwell Bridge. From his death, in 1701, the title was in abeyance till it was resumed by his representative the late Sir William Hamilton, the well-known metaphysician (No. 341A).

65. JOHN CROSS.

Born, 1671 ; died, 1732.

West India proprietor and merchant. Dean of Guild, 1694, and Bailie, 1692 and 1695. Father of Sheriff Cross (No. 66). M'Ure, in his "History of Glasgow," says that "in 1669 there were five merchants concern'd in the Easter Sugar-house, viz., John Cross, James Peadie, John Luke, George Bogle, and Robert Cross, who put in a joynt stock for carrying on another sugar-work, and built large buildings, . . . and employed a German to be master-boiler. This project likewise proved effectual, so that their stock wonderfully increased; the representers of four of those partners does now enjoy the same, viz., John Graham of Dougalston, the heirs of Provost Peadie, Robert Bogle, and Robert Cross." And in the 1830 edition of the same work, the following extracts are given from the family Bible of Robert Cross (No. 69), father of our subject, and Dean of Guild and Bailie of Glasgow, 1684, 1685 :—"October 23, 1663.—I was married in the Laighe Churtech, at on a cloke in the afternoon, by Maister Edwart Wright, then Principall of the Coledg of Glasgow, upon Joanet Peadie, secound dochter to Thomas Peadie, merchant in Glasgow: shoo was baptized the 22 day of September, 1643. 66. WILLIAM CROSS of Parkhouse.

Born at Glasgow, 1711 ; died, 17—.

Advocate. Appointed Professor of Law in Glasgow University in 1745, and subsequently Sheriff of Lanarkshire. He took an active interest against the Jacobites, and, besides the proofs of his zeal contained in "The Cochrane Correspondence," published by the Maitland Club, he was the occasional correspondent of President Forbes. In 1745 he published "A Loyal Address to the Citizens of Glasgow"; and in 1748 he wrote an essay "On the means of Civilizing the Highlands, and Extinguishing Jacobitism in Scotland." He was with the Glasgow Volunteers at Falkirk, and wrote an account of the battle. He is said to have been an eminent agriculturist, and the first who introduced the cultivation of turnips in the fields in the neighbourhood of Glasgow, in 1756. He died at Parkhouse, Renfrewshire, at an advanced age. It may be noted as an illustration of the divisions in families, caused by the early troubles of the eighteenth century, that Sheriff Cross's father, Bailie John Cross (No. 65), married, first, Joan, daughter of Walkinshaw of Scotstown, a notorious Jacobite, attainted for his share in the enterprise of 1745; and second, Agnes, daughter of William Crawford, of the Crawfordland family, mother of the Sheriff, who supported the opposite side. 69. ROBERT CROSS [or CORSE].

Born, 1639; died, 1705.

Merchant in Glasgow. Dean of Guild in 1684, and Bailie in 1685. He was the father of John Cross (No. 65), and married Janet, daughter of Thomas Peadie. His daughter, Isobel, born 1670, was married to James Luke, goldsmith, son of John Luke of Claythorn (No. 102), and father of Robert Luke (No. 103), in whose features may be traced the family likeness to his maternal grandfather, Robert Cross. James Peadie of Roughhill, brother of Mrs. Robert Cross, married Anne, daughter of Alexander Porterfield, brother of the Laird of Duchal, and was Provost 1691, 1692, 1697, 1698. His son James, Younger of Roughhill, was Provost in 1727, and died in 1728.

70. ALEXANDER SPEIRS of Elderslie.

Born, 1714; died, 10th December, 1782.

Virginia merchant. Treasurer of the City, 1755; Bailie, 1757 and 1762. One of "the four young men," John Glassford of Dougalston (No. 461), William Cuninghame of Lainshaw, James Ritchie of Busbie, and himself, who first made Glasgow an important place of trade. At the outbreak of the American War—when so many of the Virginia merchants were ruined—Alexander Speirs was the largest holder of tobacco in Glasgow, or indeed in Europe, and he realised a great fortune from the rise in price. He bought various estates in Renfrewshire. He formed these into a barony, which he named Elderslie from the most notable of his purchases—the Elderslie of Sir William Wallace, lying to the west of Paisley. He bought this in 1767 from Helen Wallace, heiress of Elderslie (No. 84). His mansion, to which he gave the name of Elderslie House, stands on a separate property on the Clyde just above Renfrew. The old name of this property was King's Inch ; it was originally an island, lying between the present channel of the Clyde and an extinct channel to the south, which can be still traced in Elderslie Park. In 1770 he bought as his town residence the famous "Virginia Mansion" (see No. 5, 608). There is a monument to him, erected by his friends on his death, in St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, Greendyke Street. Married Mary, daughter of Archibald Buchanan of Auchintorlie (see No. 67).

98. RICHARD OSWALD of Scotstoun.

Born at Watten Manse, 1687 ; died at Scotstoun House, 1766.

An early Virginia merchant. The first comer of a Caithness family that sent us several good citizens. Son to the Rev. James Oswald, minister of Watten. Traded to Virginia, the West Indies, and Madeira. Of the 43 ships and brigantines and sloops that made up the foreign fleet of Glasgow in 1735, three belonged to his firm. Oswalds & Co. were afterwards Oswald, Dennistoun & Co., the predecessors of Dennistoun, Buchanan & Co., a firm famous in our own day. Richard Oswald built Oswald's Land in the Stockwell for his town house, counting-house, and cellars for the tobacco and the madeira. He was buried in the nave of Glasgow Cathedral, in a family burial-place said to have been granted for his good services to the Town as one of the six Commissioners to the Rebels in the '45. 101. JOHN SPREULL, alias "BASS JOHN."

Born, 1646; died, 1722.

Apothecary and merchant. Born in Paisley. Son to Bailie John Spreull, a cadet of Cowdon. A notable sufferer from the Stuart tyranny (not to be confounded with his cousin, also a sufferer, John Spreull, Town-clerk of Glasgow, author of "The Lord's Dealings with me"). In 1681, the Privy Council, having imprisoned him and fined him, and booted and better booted him, and made nothing of it all, threw John Spreull into the Bass to rot to death. But rot he would not, and six years thereafter, when the Council were sick of the whole place, and had given their release for the asking to all the prisoners (including the Town-clerk cousin), John Spreull declined to ask anything of the sort, he being (as he explained to the Council) in the right and they in the wrong. The unhappy

no.

Council at last fairly opened the door to him, and out he marched with all the honours of war. He was ever after known as "Bass John." From the Bass he returned here to his old business, "dealing in everything from pills to pearls, and trading everywhere from the Islands of the East Indies to Surinam, an Dutch Plantation." He made a good fortune, and subscribed £1000 (one of the largest subscriptions) to the Darien Scheme. He built "Spreull's Land" in the Trongate. His collateral descendants still own it under a strict entail, the only entail left in the Old Burgh since the sale of the Blythwood Mansion in the Briggate. In the "Miscellaneous Writings of John Spreull" (printed by his collateral descendant John William Burns of Kilmahew) there is a delicious "Representation by Bass John, anent his seat in his parish church, telling how Provost Montgomery did most wrongously, with two officers with halberts, upon the Lord's day, turn him out of his seat, and give it to Blackhall, he being no heritor here."

brewarie belonging to Robert Luke, goldsmith, consisting of a large kiln, lofts, cellars, and other store-houses, with all easements and other pertinents thereto belonging." This "brewarie" stood in the Gallowgate, on the "brook or rivolet Molendinar." He is also mentioned by M'Ure as one of the proprietors of an "iron manufactory," situated near the "great key or harbour of the Broomielaw," for manufacturing "all sorts of iron works, from a lock and key to an anchor of the greatest size." Robert Luke was the grandson of John Luke of Claythorn (No. 102), and married Janet, born, 1707, second daughter of Provost John Stirling (No. 96). His eldest daughter, Isobel, was married to George Bogle, merchant in Glasgow. His burial-place is close to the north wall of the High Churchyard. (See Nos. 1127, 1129, 1135, 1137, 1151, 1153, 1154, 1156, 1159, 1169, 1253, 1267.)

125. JAMES WATT.

Born at Greenock, January 19th, 1736 ; died at Heathfield, Soho, August 25th, 1819.

The celebrated natural philosopher and engineer ; the great improver of the steam engine. In 1784 he was elected a fellow of the Royal Society of Edinburgh, and the year following, of that of London. In 1787 he was chosen a member of the Batavian Society. In 1806 the University of Glasgow conferred upon him the honorary dignity of LL.D. In 1808 he was elected a correspondent of the Institute of France, and in 1814 one of the eight foreign associates—the highest honour they could confer—of the Academy of Sciences of the same Institute. A statue to his memory was erected in Westminster Abbey, another in Glasgow, another in the Hunterian Museum, another in Edinburgh, besides one in the University there. Homage has been paid to his name and genius in like manner in his native town. (See Nos. 885, 942, 1794, 1862, 1993.)

140A. JAMES MONTEITH.

Born, 1734; died, .

Manufacturer, Anderston. Son of Henry Monteith, gardener, Anderston; father of Henry Monteith of Carstairs. Founder of the muslin trade of Glasgow, out of which many a fortune was made in the good old days. Founder of the Relief (now U.P.) Congregation of Anderston. He was a staunch seceder and an elder in the Havannah Anti-Burgher (now Cathedral Square U.P.) Congregation, and regularly walked there for service. Unluckily, when on his way one Sunday in 1768, he was caught by a heavy shower of rain, and took shelter (umbrellas being then unknown) in the porch of the Tron Parish Church. Through the open door he heard from the minister what seemed to him worth hearing, and stepping into the church he sat the sermon out. Thereon he was had up by the session of the Havannah for the sin of "promiscuous hearing." He declined to underlie discipline, and, "lifting his graith" at the Havannah, he built a meeting-house and founded a congregation in Main Street of Anderston, which he ultimately connected with the Relief Church.

PAINTER—Thomas Phillips, R.A.Lent by the Corporation of Glasgow.

163. DAVID DALE of Rosebank.

Born at Stewarton, 1739 ; died at Glasgow, 1806.

A merchant worthy to rank with "the four young men"; but much more than a merchant: one of the best as well as the busiest of Glasgow men. The work of one kind and another that he put through his hands shows what can be done with method and through-put, an easy temper and a good digestion. David Dale was first a herd-boy ; then a weaver ; then a pedlar of pickles of yarn from farmers' wives ; then a large dealer in yarns, linen and cotton, home or foreign ; then an inkle manufacturer ; and a printing-cloth manufacturer ; and a founder of the famous cotton works at New Lanark ; and a partner in the cotton works at Blantyre, Catrine, Stanley, Spinningdale near Dornoch, Kilmore near Oban ; and a founder of Barrowfield Turkey-red Works, the first turkey-red works in Great Britain ; and a partner in the Barrowfield Coal Company ; and a banker, joint-agent with Robert Scott-Moncrieff (No. 140) for the Royal Bank ; and a founder of the Chamber of Commerce ; and a magistrate ; and a few other things of the sort. But, after all, these were bye-jobs, the real business of David Dale's life was philanthropy and religion. To make man happier and better he gave his money "by sho'ls fu' ;" he gave his time and his trouble as freely. The Dornoch and Kilmore mills were built, not to make money but to give work to the starving Highlanders ; and at New Lanark, long before such things were in fashion, he gave his people good houses, good sanitation, and good schooling—intellectual, moral, and religious. He was a warm supporter of missions and of the Bible Society ; he preached to the prisoners in Bridewell ; he was sort of Bishop to the "Old Scotch Independents," and for 37 years was pastor to their little church in Greyfriars' Wynd ; he preached there regularly on Sundays and occasionally on other days, and, to help his pulpit work, he taught himself Hebrew and Greek. Withal he was a genial, humourous man and given to hospitality, and would sing a Scotch song with such feeling as to bring tears to the eyes. At last, on 17th March, 1806, he rested from his labours, and was laid, with a great following of "gentle and semple," in the Ramshorn Kirkyard. By his wife, Anne Campbell, he had no sons but five daughters, of whom the eldest was married to the well-known Robert Owen. (See Nos. 519, 529 2469.)

Bailie, 1780 ; elected Provost of Glasgow, 26th February, 1782, remaining in office till October, 1784 ; Treasurer of the City, 1785. One of the founders of the Chamber of Commerce, of which he was the first chairman, 1783-1785. In 1782 he acquired part of the lands of Nether Newton, to which he gave the name of Kelvingrove, and now included in the West End Park, the house he built in 1783 being part of the Museum. He removed to London in 1789, and sold Kelvingrove in 1792 to John Pattison. For many years he was Chief Police Magistrate at Queen's Square, Westminster. He married (1775) Janet, daughter of James Colquhoun, Provost of Dunbarton, and had issue.

Lent by the Senatus of the Free Church College, Edinburgh.

183. Rev. THOMAS CHALMERS, D.D.

Born at Anstruther, 1780 ; died at Morningside, 1847.

His connection with Glasgow was short for what he did. In 1815, leaving Kilmeny, he came to the Tron Church, where his preaching took the town by storm, and his "Astronomical Discourses" on Thursday afternoons regularly emptied the Old Exchange across the way. But Chalmers was not content to be a mere preacher. He thought out plans of parochial and poor's management, for which he had not elbow-room at the Tron, and in 1819 he moved to St. John's. There he had a free hand—the church had been built, and the parish carved for him out of three adjoining parishes—and he carried out his plans with a success still the envy of social reformers. But the strain broke his strength, and he accepted the chair of Moral Philosophy at St. Andrews. He preached his farewell sermon in St. John's on 5th November, 1823, to a congregation of over 3000 packed into a church seated for 1700, and only got in himself by help of a file of soldiers hurriedly fetched from the barracks hard by in Gallowgate. It was his last appearance in Glasgow: he had been but eight years here, and he was but 43 when he left it. (See Nos. 1612, 1725.)

NO.

Vimiera, and closed his first campaign at Corunna. He was again sent to the Peninsula, and fought at Barossa, Tariffa, Taragona, Vittoria, and at San Sebastian, where he was severely wounded. He was again disabled at the passage of the Bidassoa in 1813. In the following year he accompanied the army to America, and closed his service there at New Orleans. In 1823 he served in the West Indies, and in 1832 as Colonel of the 98th Regiment in China. In 1848 he was sent to India, and at the close of the war there he was made a K.C.B. His next service was in Scinde, under Sir Charles Napier. He came home in 1853 and was immediately, as Brigadier-General commanding the Highland Brigade, sent to the Crimea, signalizing himself at the Alma. On his return he was made a G.C.B., and the people of Glasgow presented him with a splendid sword. In 1857 the Indian Mutiny broke out, and at twenty-four hours' notice he left for India, being appointed Commander-in-Chief of the Indian Army. After a series of brilliant operations, of which the relief of Lucknow was the most prominent, he returned to Europe in 1860, when he was created a Peer as Baron Clyde.

226. Sir JOHN MOORE, K.B.

Born at Glasgow, 13th November, 1761; killed at Corunna, 16th January, 1809.

Son of Dr. John Moore (No. 136). In 1776 he was ensign in the 51st Regiment, then lieutenant in the 82nd, and served in North America till 1783. Returning as captain to this country, he was elected M.P. for the Linlithgow Burghs. In 1787 he became major in the 4th battalion of the 60th Regiment, and in

No.

1788 rejoined his first regiment, the 51st. In 1790 he was lieutenant-colonel, and in 1795 brigadier-general, serving with great distinction in the West Indies, when he was made Governor of St. Lucia. In 1797 he received the rank of major-general. In the Holland expedition he was twice wounded, and severely so at Aboukir, in Egypt, where he was general officer of the day. He was afterwards commander-in-chief of all the Mediterranean troops; next was sent to Sweden with ten thousand men, to assist Gustavus Adolphus; and in 1808 he was appointed commander-in-chief of the British army in Portugal. After advancing to Salamanca, he was compelled to retreat. In this memorable retreat of 250 miles he did not lose a single piece of artillery, a standard, or military trophy of any kind. At the battle of Corunna, on the 16th of January, 1809, he was struck by a cannon shot and mortally wounded. When informed that the French were beaten, he said, "I hope the people of England will be satisfied; I hope my country will do me justice." A monument was erected over his grave by Marshal Soult; and there are statues to his memory in St. Paul's Cathedral and in George Square, Glasgow. (See Nos. 1526, 1670, 1874A, 2628.)

236. The Very Reverend DUNCAN MACFARLAN, D.D.

Born at Drymen Manse, 1771 ; died at Glasgow, 1857.

From his first charge at Drymen he was translated, in 1823, to the High Church of Glasgow, and at the same time he was appointed Principal of the

No.

University, posts which he held for upwards of thirty-three years. During the long and trying times which preceded the secession of 1843 he was one of the most active and trusted leaders of the moderate party, being distinguished for logical and far-seeing judgment, and for his fairness. Moderator in 1819, and again in 1843. He died, father of the Church of Scotland, in 1857, in the sixty-sixth year of his ministry, continuing in harness to almost the end. There have been few more outstanding ministers of the Church than Principal Macfarlan. He married Anne, daughter of the Rev. John Allan of Row. (See No. 411.)

Lent by the Directors of the Union Bank of Scotland.

238. JAMES DENNISTOUN of Golfhill.

Born at Campsie, 1758 ; died at Glasgow, 1835.

Merchant and banker in Glasgow. Bailie of the City. Married Mary, daughter of William Finlay of the Moss, Stirlingshire, and was father of Alexander Dennistoun of Golfhill, M.P. for Dunbartonshire, and of John Dennistoun, M.P. for Glasgow, and grandfather of Alexander H. Dennistoun of Golfhill, lately dead. For many years head of the Glasgow Bank, founded in 1809, the last of our private banks, now merged in the Union Bank. He was much respected, and on his retiral from the active management of the bank, in 1829, he was entertained to a great dinner in the new Royal Exchange, and presented with this picture. In a past generation no merchant's dining-room was complete without an engraving of "Banker" Dennistoun.

PAINTER—John Graham Gilbert, R.S.A.

Engraved by Hodgetts & Son (see No. 398).

Lent by Mrs. M. Gibson Dougan.

239. JAMES GIBSON of Hillhead.

Born at Glasgow, 1800; died at Dunoon, 1862.

Original projector of the Great Western Road; the last of the Gibsons of Hillhead, one of our old "Rentaller" families (i.e., families sprung from the "Rentallers" or tenants of the old Archbishops), and long owners of Hillhead. The subject of this notice was descended from Andrew Gibson of Hillhead, maltman at Overnewton, who was younger son of John Gibson of Clay-slap (which is now part of the West-End Park), and Overnewton (which marches with it), and was younger brother of the famous Walter Gibson of Balshagrie, a very notable "promoter and propagator" of the trade of Glasgow, and who was appointed Provost in 1688 and 1689 by the Archbishop of the Diocese, the last Provost so chosen.

PAINTER—William Wallace.

241. JOHN SMITH of Crutherland, LL.D.

Born, 23rd March, 1784; died 22nd January, 1849.

Bookseller and publisher. He was distinguished for his literary and antiquarian acquirements, and was an original member, and secretary, of the Maitland Club. In 1840 the University of Glasgow conferred on him the degree of Doctor of Laws. John Smith—a younger son of John Smith of Craighend, grandfather of John Smith of Craighend (No. 124)—was serving in the army in Holland when the Dutch and the Austrians, and the British under the Duke of Cumberland, were beaten by the French under Marshall de Saxe at Laffeldt in 1747. He was wounded in the battle, and retiring from the army, settled in Glasgow as a bookseller and established the first circulating library in the city. His son John was the “son” of John Smith & Son, and Dr. Smith of Cruthersland was the grandson of the old soldier. The old firm is still flourishing, but there is now no Smith in it. Dr. Smith died unmarried. The lender of the picture is his grand-nephew. (See Nos. 2488, 2489.)

NO

Lent by Mrs. Outram.

249. GEORGE OUTRAM.

Born, 1805; died, 1856.

Advocate. Editor of the Glasgow Herald from 1837 to 1856. Under his editorship the Herald maintained the high position which it had reached under the direction of Samuel Hunter (No. 304). It is not as a newspaper editor, however, that George Outram will be chiefly remembered. His heart was in the Parliament House and with the advocates, both on the bench and at the bar; and his inimitable Legal Lyrics will continue to be a source of delight to all who can appreciate genuine Scottish wit and humour, till the language ceases to be a living one. He was a man of great culture and genial disposition, and was beloved by “troops of friends.”

a charge united with a small country parish, being in principle an opponent of ecclesiastical pluralities. In 1791 he was presented to the parish of Eastwood, and in 1797 to the charge of the Tron Church, Glasgow. Active in every good work, besides promoting other charitable institutions, he was a chief originator of the Asylum for Lunatics, and of the Refuge for Juvenile Delinquents. He devoted much time to the promotion of church extension, and Glasgow owes much to his exertions in this direction. In 1814 Dr. Macgill was elected Professor of Divinity. He devoted himself to the great object which he had at heart—the formation of a learned, pious, and effective ministry. In 1824 he proposed and furthered the erection of the monument to the memory of John Knox on the hill of the Necropolis. In 1838 he was made one of the Deans of the Chapel Royal. (See No. 2307.)

Lent by William Allan Woddrop of Garvald.

297. JAMES HAMILTON of Holmhead.

Born about 1757 ; died about 1832.

"Holmhead" (always so-called) represented the Hamiltons of Aikenhead, descended from James Hamilton, merchant, Provost of Glasgow, 1614, a younger son of Hamilton of Torrance. The family at one time were large landowners, but the laird in the evil days of Charles II. wasted his estate two-wise : he was of Covenanting principles, and got himself heavily fined—worse than that, he had three wives and thirty children, of whom at least the first twenty were girls. Holmhead inherited some of the lands of his Covenanting ancestor, but none of his principles : he was probably the last man to keep up the convivial customs of the Scottish lairds of last century. On the other hand, he was the father of our yachting. In conjunction with Captain Oswald, R.N., of Scotstoun, he owned the cutter "Lamlash," and took her as far as the Mediterranean, the first sea-going pleasure vessel sailing out of Clyde. For his yachting quarters he built the house still standing on the Holy Isle, Lamlash. His winter residence was a villa in Lord Eglinton's new town of Ardrossan, now No. 3 South Crescent, and there he died.

Lent by Mrs. Edmund Glover.

311. CHARLES MACKAY.

Born at Edinburgh, 1787 ; died at Edinburgh, 1857.

Scottish comedian. Like many other great actors, he mistook the bent of his genius, and began as a tragedian ; but having joined the company in the Edinburgh Theatre Royal, under the management of William Murray, he found, in the production of the play of Rob Roy in 1819, the character which has made his name famous in the annals of the stage. He often visited Glasgow, where he was a great favourite, not only from his talents as an actor, but from his modest and amiable demeanour in private life. (See No. 851.)

PAINTER—Sir Daniel Macnee, P.R.S.A.

This painting represents Mr. Mackay in character as Bailie Nicol Jarvie.

341A. SIR WILLIAM HAMILTON, Baronet, of Preston and Fingalton

Born at Glasgow, 1788 ; died at Edinburgh, 1856.

Advocate. Professor of Logic and Metaphysics in the University of Edinburgh. Son of Dr. William Hamilton, Professor of Anatomy and Botany in the University of Glasgow ; and his mother was Elizabeth, daughter of William Stirling, merchant in Glasgow, heir male of the Stirlings of Bankier and Lettyr. Sir William's grandfather, Dr. Thomas Hamilton, and his granduncle, Dr. Robert Hamilton, were medical professors in the University. They were of the family of Hamilton of Airdrie—a cadet of that of Preston, which again was the oldest branch of the ducal house of Hamilton. Through this relationship Sir William established his right to the baronetcy of Preston, which was assigned to him by a jury before the Sheriff of Edinburgh in 1816. Sir William Hamilton studied at the University of Glasgow, and proceeded to Baliol College, Oxford, as a Snell Exhibitioner in 1807. His career at Oxford is one of the most brilliant on record. He was appointed to the chair of Universal History in Edinburgh in 1821, and to the chair of Logic and Metaphysics in 1836, and this he occupied until his death, in 1856.

NO.

with the motto "The King and the People." Next year it became the Reformers' Gazette (No. 2426), and the crown and the king disappeared, the eagle only remaining, with the motto "The Rights of the People." During its somewhat violent career this paper, no doubt, did some useful work. It was given up in 1865, and thereafter he employed himself in literary work, and in the preparation of his "Reminiscences of Glasgow and the West of Scotland" and "Glasgow Characters." Editor and author. He began life in the office of The Dumfries Courier. In 1839 he joined the staff of The Glasgow Herald, and soon proved himself an admirable reporter and writer, and, in 1856, when George Outram died, he succeeded him as editor. When he assumed office the Herald was published three times a week, but shortly afterwards the newspaper stamp was remitted, and forthwith the proprietors of the Herald determined to make it a daily paper. This change involved a great deal of responsibility and labour in editing and writing, but James Pagan was equal to the task and succeeded in making The Glasgow Herald the splendid property it now is. His works relating to the history of Glasgow are well known and valued. Mr. Pagan married Ann M'Knight Kerr, and left issue. (See No. 2494.)

no.

361. JOHN MILNE DONALD.

Born, 1816 ; died, 1866.

One of our foremost West of Scotland landscape painters. Born at Nairn, he early settled in Glasgow, and was for the remainder of his life identified with the art movements in our city. He was a member of the now defunct West of Scotland Academy, and contributed regularly to its annual exhibitions, and also to the first four organised by the Glasgow Institute of the Fine Arts. His pictures, tender and true in colour, and characterised by a charming out-of-door freshness, give vivid glimpses of mountain and moor, of woods and waters. Technically, they bear witness to a deft and skilful brush. His friend, Horatio M'Culloch, used to say to him, "I wish, Johnnie, I had your hands."

363. ALEXANDER RICHMOND.

Born, 17— ; died, 18—.

Weaver in Pollokshaws. The plaintiff in a trial for libel in the Court of Exchequer, London, in December, 1834, against Simpkin & Marshall, agents for Tait's Edinburgh Magazine. The magazine had published reviews and articles reviewing favourably a book written by Peter Mackenzie, entitled "The Exposure of the Spy System." This book or pamphlet affirmed that Alexander Richmond had attended meetings of Reformers in Glasgow, and had for money betrayed their secrets to the Government. In the trial, Richmond was non-suited. He was popularly known as "Richmond the Spy."

Son and grandson of the manse. Ordained in 1806 as colleague to his father in The Second, or "Back-of-Town," Seceder Congregation of Stirling (now Viewfield U.P.) The "Back-of-Town" came into being in 1747, on the melancholy breach among the Seceders on the head of the Burgess Oath. It represented the Anti-Burgher minority of the first Seceder Congregation of Stirling (now Erskine U.P.). In 1821 Hugh Heugh came to Glasgow as minister of Blackfriars Anti-Burgher Congregation (now Regent Place U.P.). Blackfriars was split from the Havannah Anti-Burgher Congregation (afterwards Duke Street Seceder, now Cathedral Square U.P.). In 1819 the Havannah, which, at the breach of 1747, had split off from Greyfriars, had a little breach of its own on the head of the use of "Repeating Tunes," and the disuse of "Reading the Line," and the split off called Hugh Heugh. The Synod, with an authority unknown in our days, once again refused to translate him, and it was only in 1821, on a third call from the obstinate Blackfriars, that the Synod gave way. Hugh Heugh laboured at Blackfriars till his death—an active and respected minister, and a keen controversialist.

NO.

381. JOHN STRANG, LL.D.

Born, 1795 ; died, 1863.

Chamberlain of Glasgow. Before he was appointed to this office, in 1834, he was principally engaged in literary and artistic work, and till the end of his life, whenever he found leisure from the pressure of his official duties, he returned with ardour to his former pursuits. The "Vital Statistics" of Glasgow, begun by him, was a kind of work never before attempted, and his "Glasgow and its Clubs" is a valuable contribution to the history of the men and manners of "Old Glasgow." The University of Glasgow conferred on him the degree of LL.D. He was an excellent official, and an interesting and warm-hearted friend. His father was John Strang, wine merchant in Glasgow. In 1842 he married Elizabeth, daughter of Dr. William Anderson (No. 509), but he left no family. (See Nos. 2333, 2475, 2500, 2501, 2719.)

390. ARTHUR FORBES.

Born at Stirling Castle, 1801 ; died at Torquay, 1855.

Writer in Glasgow. Son of Major Forbes, barrack-master of Stirling Castle, and Jessie Campbell of Ormidale, his spouse, both of old Argyllshire families. In 1843 he was appointed one of the Town Clerks of the City, and from that time until his death he had charge of its conveyancing and parliamentary work, and was Assessor of the Dean of Guild Court. Among the many important municipal matters of which he was called upon to take charge may be instanced the formation, by Sir Joseph Paxton, of the Kelvingrove Park, the first park, except the Green, formed in Glasgow ; and the passing of the Loch Katrine Water Act, which was an exceptionally hard Parliamentary fight. His death, at a comparatively early age, was generally deplored. He married Marion Campbell, a daughter of Robert Campbell, writer in Stirling, who survived him for many years, dying in 1883. They had issue, the lender and others.

391. HENRY GLASSFORD BELL.

Born, 1803 ; died, 1874.

Advocate and Sheriff of Lanarkshire. Like many literary men—for he began life as one, and it was not till 1832 that he chose law as his profession and passed advocate—his first effort was poetical, and while still very young he published a small volume of poems. In 1829 he became editor of the Edinburgh Literary Journal, and his own contributions to that periodical were many and excellent, among them being the well-known poem “ Mary Queen of Scots." His best prose work is his life of the same Queen in Constable's Miscellany. He was throughout his whole life, indeed, an enthusiastic votary of Queen Mary. In 1839 he left Edinburgh and became one of the Sheriffs-Substitute of Lanarkshire, and on Sheriff Alison's death, in 1867, he was appointed Sheriff-Principal of the county. In Glasgow he was an unqualified success, both as a Sheriff and as a citizen. He identified himself with all the interests of the City; and whether on public occasions as a speaker, or in private as a friend, there was no one more sought after and appreciated. Sheriff Bell's first wife was the only daughter of Captain Stuart of Shierglass, by whom he had issue. She died in 1847. He married again, in 1871, Marian Sandeman, and she survives him.

NO

407. The Rev. WILLIAM RITCHIE, D.D.

Born, 1747 ; died, 1830.

Minister successively at Tarbolton and Kilwinning, from whence he was translated, in 1802, to St. Andrew's, Glasgow. In 1808 he was presented to the High Church, Edinburgh, and in 1809 he was elected Professor of Divinity in the University of Edinburgh. He was an excellent minister and man, with a fine commanding presence, and this ridiculous, though good-natured, caricature is rather an undignified memorial of a good man. The organ out of which he is grinding "I'll gang nae mair to yon toun," when on his way from Glasgow to Edinburgh, symbolises the famous event in the history of St. Andrew's Church, when, on a Sunday morning in August, 1807, Dr. Ritchie and his elders introduced instrumental music into the service. A great outcry ensued, and the Provost and Magistrates brought the matter before the Presbytery, and after a long debate the use of the organ was forbidden.

424. JOHN BAIRD.

Born, 1798; died, 1859.

Architect. During a long period intimately associated with the architecture of the City. Greyfriars and Wellington Street United Presbyterian Churches were amongst his earlier works. Later in life he was the architect of many warehouses. Amongst his designs may be mentioned the Prince of Wales' buildings in Buchanan Street, and the Macdonalds' warehouses in South Hanover Street. Villas and countryseats attest his ability in other styles of architecture. In 1846 Mr. Baird was employed to furnish designs for the New College buildings intended at that time to be erected at Woodlands. His plans were approved, and Parliamentary powers obtained for carrying them into execution, but the scheme was afterwards abandoned. In 1856, Mr. Baird's many friends showed their appreciation of his services by presenting him with this portrait.

436. MOSES STEVEN of Bellahouston.

Born, 1805 ; died, 1871.

Passed advocate, but never practised at the bar. He was the son of Moses Steven, a member of a Strathendrick family who came to Glasgow some time before 1770, and before 1783 was in partnership with his cousin James Buchanan, afterwards of Dowanhill (No. 207), under the firm of Steven, Buchanan & Co., which was incorporated with, or united to, the well-known firm of Dennistoun, Buchanan & Co. He afterwards purchased Polmadie, and married Janet, daughter of William Rowan of Bellahouston. They had three daughters and one son, Moses, the subject of this notice. On the death, in 1892, of the last survivor of the family, Elizabeth (No. 232), the Bellahouston Trust, which had been planned by Moses Steven and his sisters, jointly, came into effect.

Painter unknown.

Lent by the Kay Park Trustees, Kilmarnock.

437. ALEXANDER SMITH.

Born, 1830 ; died, 1867.

Poet, author, and editor. Originally a pattern designer in Glasgow. At an early age he began to write verses, many of which appeared in the Glasgow Citizen, a journal which, under Dr. Hedderwick's (No. 300) editorship, did much at that time and for years afterwards to encourage literary beginners of promise. He attracted the notice of the Rev. George Gilfillan, and, under his auspices, "A Life Drama" appeared in instalments in the columns of the London Critic. In 1853, this poem was published with other verses in book form, and at once aroused wide-spread attention. It was highly praised and as strongly condemned. Time has brought about a correct judgment on its qualities. It abounds in fine lines and splendid imagery, but it lacks repose and concentration. In 1855, in conjunction with Sidney Dobell, he published "Sonnets on the War"; in 1857, "City Poems," a volume which contains some of his best work; and in 1861, "Edwin of Deira," a Northumbrian epic. His principal prose works are "Dreamthorp," a collection of graceful essays; "A Summer in Skye;" and "Alfred Haggart's Household," a well-written story, founded most probably on some of his own experiences. In 1854 Smith was appointed Secretary of Edinburgh University. Died at Wardie, near Edinburgh, on 8th January, 1867, aged 37.

NO.

453. HENRY BELL.

Born at Torphichen, 1767 ; died at Helensburgh, 1830.

Millwright and inventor. Fifth son of Patrick Bell, a mechanic. Disliking the occupation of mason, he was bound apprentice to his uncle, a millwright. After various changes of fortune, he settled at Helensburgh, his wife keeping the inn there. It was here that, pursuing a series of mechanical projects, he hit upon the important discovery of the successful application of steam to the purposes of navigation. Dr. Cleland states that he "invented the steam-propelling system, for he knew nothing of the principles which were so successfully carried out by Mr. Fulton," a Scottish engineer, in America. In 1811 Bell caused the "Comet" to be built on a plan entirely his own. The engine, of three horse-power, was constructed by John Robertson, engineer (Nos. 367 and 420), in Dempster Street, Glasgow, and it was taken to Port-Glasgow, and there placed in Bell's vessel, which was 40 feet long and 12 feet beam, built by John Wood. She was a nice craft, and sailed well. Her first voyage was made from Greenock to Glasgow on 6th August, 1812, in five hours; fares, 4s. and 3s.—William M'Kenzie being master; Robert Robertson, engineer; Duncan M'Innes, pilot; with a fireman. The "Comet" was finally lost near Fort-William. Bell did not derive any advantages from his important discovery, and in his old age would have been in destitute circumstances but for the liberality of the Clyde Trustees, who granted him an annuity of one hundred pounds. A monument was erected to his memory on a rock abutting on the Clyde at Dunglass. (See Nos. 462A, 890, 891, 940, 941, 1968.)

NO.

461. JOHN GLASSFORD of Dougalston.

Born in Paisley, 1715; died in the Shawfield Mansion, Trongate, 27th August, 1783.

Virginia merchant. One, perhaps the ablest, of "the four young men" (himself, William Cuninghame, Alexander Speirs (No. 70), and James Ritchie) who specially helped to make the Virginia trade what it was, and so to make Glasgow what it is. Outside of his Virginia trade John Glassford was in very varied business—a shipowner, sailing his twenty-five ships; founder of the famous Cudbear Works, afterwards Macintosh's "Secret" Works; partner in the Glasgow Tanwork, in the Pollokshaws Printfield, in the Glasgow Arms Bank, in the Thistle Bank, and in other enterprises. A great merchant—probably, for his opportunities, the greatest merchant we have had. He was thrice married. By 462. JAMES LUMSDEN of Yoker Lodge.

Born at Glasgow, 1778; died at Glasgow, 1856.

Wholesale stationer. Provost of Glasgow, 1843 to 1846, and Deputy-Lieutenant of Lanarkshire. For nearly forty years connected with the civic affairs of Glasgow, in which he took a deep interest. For nineteen years he acted as Honorary Treasurer to the Glasgow Royal Infirmary, and soon after his death a statue by Mossman was erected by his fellow-citizens in front of that institution. He was a warm friend of young artists, and both Horatio MacCulloch and Sir Daniel Macnee never failed to acknowledge their obligations to him. He was the eldest son of James Lumsden, engraver and publisher in Glasgow, and at his death he left two sons, Sir James Lumsden, Provost, 1866-1869, and George, both partners in his business. (No. 262), and Anderson Kirkwood, LL.D. (born, 1812; died, 1889), the legal agents.

This painting presents curious anachronisms, owing to the fact that it was many years in process of execution, and was only finished when some of the characters had become old men, and were portrayed as such, while others—long previously dead—were represented as comparatively young.

545. JAMES REDDIE, LL.D.

Born at Dysart, 1775 ; died at Glasgow, 1852.

Advocate. Senior Town Clerk to the City of Glasgow, and legal assessor to the magistrates from 1804 to 1852, in both of which capacities his services to the city were most valuable. He was author of several works on the Science of Law, and on International and Maritime Law. He married, 1804, Charlotte Marion, youngest daughter of James Campbell of Glasgow, of the Balnabie family, and left issue.

546. The Rev. EDWARD IRVING, M.A.

Born in Annan, 1792 ; died in Glasgow, 1834.

Minister of the gospel. He entered the University of Edinburgh at the age of thirteen, and so distinguished himself there as to attract the special notice of Professors Sir John Leslie and Christison. He first became a teacher at Haddington, and then at Kirkcaldy ; and, whilst at the latter place, he completed his course at the divinity hall, and was licensed to preach in 1815. Through the introduction of Rev. Dr. A. Thomson, he received an invitation from Dr. Chalmers to become his assistant in St. John's Parish Church, Glasgow, in 1819. After three years he received a call to the Caledonian Church, in London; and, in consequence of the great increase of his congregation, a new church was built for him in Regent Square, known as the National Scottish Church. Deposed by the presbyteries of London and Annan for heretical doctrines, he was reordained a minister of the Catholic Apostolic Church. He was an eloquent preacher, and the author of several works on religious subjects. He was interred in the crypt of Glasgow Cathedral, and over his grave a memorial window was erected by his nephew John Fergusson, of Glasgow.

No.

550. ROBERT WALLACE of Kelly.

Born at Glasgow, 1773 ; died, 1855.

West India proprietor and merchant. Partner of the West India firm of Wallace, Hunter & Co., Greenock, and in 1805 succeeded to the estate of Kelly. In 1833 he was elected Member of Parliament for Greenock, and for four successive elections was returned free of expense. Besides other services, he was the first to urge Post-office reform ; and Rowland Hill, who introduced the system of penny postage, freely admitted the value of his efforts. Mr. Hill wrote—"By four years of incessant attacks, Mr. Wallace destroyed the prestige once enjoyed by the Post-office, and exposed it to the wholesome influence of public opinion." He received the freedom of Glasgow, Aberdeen, Paisley, Perth, Dingwall, Inverness, and Dornoch ; he was presented with an address by the people of Kilnarnock, and a complimentary communication from the Postmaster-General of France. Mr. Wallace retired from Parliament in 1845. At his death a very handsome monument, in recognition of his public services, was erected in the Greenock New Cemetery by his constituents. Eldest son of John Wallace of Cessnock (No. 21) by his wife, Janet Colquhoun (see No. 552), who, having sold that estate, purchased Kelly in 1792.

- 1609A. Copper Foundation Plate from William Dinwiddie's house.

This plate is worth noticing from the fine engraving, so deep and sharp, and from its history. In 1789, William Dinwiddie, twenty-first child (as the plate tells us) of Provost Lawrence Dinwiddie (No. 474), being then a well-to-do merchant in Manchester, built himself a villa on the outskirts of the town, and buried this plate on the foundation stone. Long afterwards the Corporation of Manchester bought the old Dinwiddie villa, took down the house, and threw the grounds into one of their parks. In taking down the house they came on the plate and deposited it in their museum. They afterwards kindly gave it up to the family, whose attention had been drawn to the circumstance by a newspaper paragraph.

1670. Sir John Moore's Sword.

This is the sword worn by Lieut.-General Sir John Moore, K.B., when he was slain by a cannon ball at the Battle of Corunna, on the 16th of January, 1809, after his memorable retreat from Salamanca with 29,350 British, pursued by Napoleon Buonaparte with 70,000 French. Miss Jane Moore, Cadogan Place, Sloane Street, Chelsea (Sir John's sister), gave the sword in a present to the late Samuel Tyler, Esq., Castle Court, Cheapside, London, and it came into the possession of his son-in-law, Robert Stewart M'Donald (of Harris), Glasgow, in 1866. (See No. 226.)

Lent by the Right Honourable the Earl of Eglinton and Winton.

1981. Sewed Silk Flag, with Glasgow Coat of Arms, Royal Glasgow Regiment.

Colonel Hugh Montgomerie of Coilsfield and Skelmorlie, who had seen much service in America during the War of Independence as Captain in the 78th Highlanders, and afterwards as Major of the 1st Royals, raised, about 1778, the West Lowland Fencibles, of which he was at first Major, and afterwards, in 1793, Lieutenant-Colonel. Afterwards he raised the Glasgow Regiment of the Line, reduced in 1795. He held the appointment of Lieutenant-Governor of Edinburgh Castle and Surveyor of Military Roads in the Highlands of Scotland.

Col. Montgomerie succeeded to the Earldom of Eglinton in 1796. He was the "Sodger Hugh" of Burns, Coilsfield being amongst the poet's favourite haunts. He rebuilt Eglinton Castle, founded the harbour and town of Ardrossan, and was founder of Irvine Academy. He was for many years Lord Provost of Irvine, and is described as having been "magnificent" in all his undertakings. He died at Eglinton Castle, 15th December, 1819, aged 80 years.

No doubt the above Colours would be brought by Earl Hugh to Eglinton Castle, where for many years they hung, along with others, in the Armoury.

The only specimens of the Ancient Caledonian Harp now in existence are the two in the National Museum of Antiquities, Edinburgh, known respectively as the "Lamont Harp" and "The Queen Mary Harp." The harp was the principal musical instrument of Western Scotland in "Ossianic" times. It was played by the bards both on the battlefield and in the banqueting hall, but as an instrument of martial music it was eventually superseded by the bagpipe. (See "An Historical Enquiry respecting the Performance on the Harp in the Highlands of Scotland, from the earliest times until it was discontinued, about the year 1734, by John Gunn, F.A.O.E. Edinburgh, 1807.")

2030. True Christian Love: to be sung with any of the common tunes of the Psalmes. Printed by I. W. for John Wilson, and are to be sould at his shop in Glasgow.[†] † 1634

By the Rev. David Dickson, afterwards Professor of Divinity in the University of Glasgow. The first book with a Glasgow imprint. I. W. probably stand for John Wreittoun, Printer of Edinburgh. This copy is a fragment only.

John Wilson was a bookseller in Glasgow, and next year published "A Treatise upon Death . . ." by Ninian Campbell, preacher at Kilmacolme, co. Renfrew. Edinburgh: Printed by R. Y. for J. Wilson, Bookseller in Glasgow. Anno 1635.

* The name of the printer is set in Small Capitals.

† The number in small figures following the title of each book indicates its lender, whose name will be found with a corresponding number in the list on pages 337, 338.

Case A.

GEORGE ANDERSON.

2031. The Protestation of the Generall Assemblie of the Church of Scotland.¹ 1638

The first piece of printing known to bear a Glasgow imprint. The Protestation had been published, at least twice, earlier in the year, and Anderson issued works bearing his Edinburgh imprint as late as the end of August or beginning of September, 1638. As long as the printing press was under the control of the Magistrates no political publications were issued.

(See Portrait No. 29.)

2032. The Protestation of the Generall Assemblie of the Church of Scotland.² 1638

A second copy of No. 2031, opened at a page of text.

2033. Boyd (Zacharie). A cleare forme of Catechising, before the giving of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.² 1639

This copy is probably unique. (See Portrait No. 17).

The first book printed in Scotland in which Hebrew characters were used.

The author was a successful schoolmaster at Perth; then minister of Aberdeen; and in Cromwell's time Principal of the University of Aberdeen, at that time the Universitas Carolina. He dedicated the present work to the Town Council of Aberdeen, and for this and his pains in teaching the Hebrew tongue they made him a present of 400 merks Scots. Prefixed are a number of commendatory verses by Samuel Rutherford, Principal Adamson, Dr. Panter, and others.

2035. Boyd (Zachary). The Garden of Zion. Wherein the life and death of godly and wicked men in Scriptures are to be seene.¹ 2 vols. 1644

The rarest of all the author's printed works.

2036. Dicson (David) *Expositio analytica omnium Apostolicarvm epistolarvm.*¹ 1645

David Dickson was one of the most eminent men of his time. He was born in the Trongait in 1583. He became minister of Irvine, Professor of Divinity at Glasgow, 1640-50, and at Edinburgh, 1650-62. He was a man of learning and "a good Scottish expositor." The present work appeared in English. London, 1659. folio.

(See Nos. 2030, 2562, 2565.)

HEIRES OF GEORGE ANDERSON.

2037. A cleare Method [of] Morning and Evening Prayer for a Familie. Together with a short Compend of the Catechisme for children of a younger age.² 1648

ANDREW ANDERSON.

2038. Rattray, Dr. (Sylvester). *Aditus novus ad Occultas Sympathiæ et Antipathiæ causas inveniendas.*³ 1658

ROBERT SANDERS.

2039. The Civil Warres of Great Britain and Ireland containing an Exact History of their Occasion, Originall, Progress, and Happy End.⁴ 1664

Printed by Robert Sanders, Towns-Printer.

Originally published in London, 1661. The author was John Davies of Kidwelly.

2040. Rattray, Dr. (Sylvester). *Prognosis Medica, ad usum praxeos facili methodo digesta.*³ 1666

(See No. 2038.)

Sylvester Rattray practised as a physician in Glasgow, and had a high ideal of his profession. Both of the above works are curious and interesting. In both the author seeks to establish the science of medicine upon observation instead of abstract rules. Some of the Antipathies and Sympathies which he notes are, however, startling enough, and are worthy of examination by the Folk-lore Society. The chapter of the "Aditus Novus" on the subject "Ex Fructu Arbor," p. 51, is very interesting, and contains some curious remarks on the magnet and magnetism. He notes that if wood is thrown into Loch Neagh in Ireland it becomes stone (pp. 49, 52), and mentions the formation of stalagmites in the neighbourhood of Slaines (pp. 48, 52). Toads are produced from a putrid duck; eels from horse hairs in water; fleas from pigeons' dung; beetles from horse droppings; bed-bugs from perspiration (p. 61).

Case A.

ROBERT SANDERS—continued.

The "Aditus Novus" was reprinted at Tübingen, 1662, 12mo, and is inserted in the "Theatrum Sympatheticum," Nuremberg, 1662. 4to.

2041. *Confessio Fidei, in concentu Theologorum auctoritate Parliamenti Anglicam indicto elaborata.*⁵ 1670

The first Glasgow edition of the Confession was in 1660.

2042. Mathers (Patrick). *The Great and New art of Weighing Vanity.*² 1672

The author is described as "M. Patrick Mather, Arch-Bedal to the University of St. Andrews." The book was really written by Professor James Gregory, then Professor of Mathematics at St. Andrews, afterwards at Edinburgh, and as a burlesque on Professor Sinclair's "Ars nova et magna gravitatis et levitatis." 4to. 1669. (See No. 2340). The latter had abused William Sanders (see No. 2051), another St. Andrews Professor, and this was the cause of Gregory's wrath; although religion and politics may have had something to do with it, Gregory being an Episcopalian and a Royalist, Sinclair a Presbyterian, with very hazy views as to the Divine Right of Kings. Professor Thomas Reid (Portrait No. 7) was a grand-nephew of James Gregory. The present tract was reprinted by Baron Maseres in his "Scriptores Logarithmici." "It is," says Sir John Leslie, "a piece of low scurrility, and remarkable only for a very short Latin paper appended to it, containing the series first given to represent the motion of a pendulum in a circular arc."

Sinclair prepared an answer, "Cacus dragged from his Den," but it was never published, probably in consequence of Gregory's death in 1675. The MS. is still preserved in the University Library.

2043. Bell (Thomas). Roma restituta,⁵ sive Antiquitatum Romanorum Compendium absolutum. 1672

The author was son of John Bell, minister of Glasgow, and was Professor of Humanity in the University of Edinburgh, 1665-76. Although the work is devoted to Roman antiquities the writer branches off to Scotch warfare and Bannockburn. Amongst the encomiastic verses at the beginning is a set by Ninian Paterson (No. 2378).

2044. Pool, Rev. (Matthew). A Dialogue between a Popish Priest and an English Protestant.⁶ The last edition corrected and amended. 1672

Printed by Robert Sanders, One of His Majesties Printers. Originally published, London, 1667, 12mo. The author was the well-known commentator and editor of the "Synopsis Criticorum."

2045. Burnet (Gilbert). A Vindication of the Authority, Constitution, and Laws of the Church and State of Scotland.⁵ [Second Edition.] 1673

[Printed] by Robert Sanders, Printer to the City, and University.

There were two issues of this book in the same year, one with, and the other without the Glasgow Arms on the title page. Burnet was Professor of Theology from 1669 to 1674. The present work was considered so material a service to the government that he was offered a bishopric with a promise of the next vacant archbishopric, but he would not accept of it because he could not approve of the measures of the court, the aim of which he considered to be the advancement of popery. He resigned his Glasgow professorship, settled in London, where he became preacher at the Rolls Chapel. He afterwards retired to Holland, returned with the Prince of Orange, and was appointed bishop of Salisbury in 1689, and died in 1715.

2046. Burnet (Alexander). The Blessedness of the Dead that die in the Lord. Preached at the Funeral of James, late Marquess of Montrose. By Alexander, Archbishop of Glasgow.⁵ 1673

Alexander Burnet, son of the minister of Lauder, was Archbishop of Glasgow in 1664-69 and 1674-9.

Case A.

ROBERT SANDERS—continued.

James, second Marquis of Montrose, son of the great Montrose, died in February, 1669. "He was a nobleman of great honour and probity, so great a lover of justice, and so strict in the observation of his word of promise that no man was ever more worthy of the title of An Honest Man."

2047. Kirkwood (James). Grammatica facilis,⁵ seu, Nova, & artificiosa Methodus docendi linguam Latinum. 1674

The author was born near Dunbar, became schoolmaster at Linlithgow and then at Kelso. The grammar went through four editions, having been reprinted at Edinburgh and London. He also published a Compendium of Rhetoric. He quarrelled with the magistrates of Linlithgow, was expelled from the school, took them to the Court of Session, and published "The History of the Twenty-Seven Gods of Linlithgow," a very curious piece.

2048. The Confession of Faith, Together with the Larger and Lesser Catechismes.⁵ 1675

Printed at London for the Company of Stationers, Anno 1658, . . . and reprinted at Glasgow by Robert Sanders, Printer to the City and University.

2049. A New Prognostication for the year of Our Blessed Lord 1681. Being the first after Leap-year.⁵ 1681—1692

This volume contains the Prognostications between 1681 and 1692.

These early Glasgow Almanacs are probably unique. They are believed to be the work of James Cross [or Corss], mathematician, who had a gift of £10 Scots from the Town Council of Glasgow in 1661 for dedicating an Almanac to the Town. He taught geometry and navigation in Edinburgh, and published some mathematical works.

2050. Rose (Alexander), D.D. A Sermon, preached before the Right Honourable The Lords Comissioners of His Majesties most Honourable privy Counsel At Glasgow.⁵ 1684

Alexander Rose was son of the minister of Monymusk, studied Divinity in Glasgow under Dr. Gilbert

Case A.

Burnet ; became minister of Perth in 1672 ; professor of Divinity in Glasgow University in 1682 ; and principal of St. Mary College, St. Andrews, in 1686. He was consecrated bishop of Moray in 1687, and translated in the same year to Edinburgh, where he died in 1720.

The occasion of the sermon was the meeting of the Commission of Justiciary at Glasgow, on 13th October, 1684. In the dedication to the Judges the Professor says the "incomparable zeal and dexterity whereby they managed the Court was incredibly to the advantage of a decayed religion and loyalty in this corner." What they did was to imprison scores of worthy people for refusing to take the test, and banishing 200 of the smaller heritors in the Glasgow district to the Plantations. Walter Gibson, merchant in Glasgow was the principal agent in effecting their deportation.

2051. Sanders (William). *Elementa Geometriæ Methodo naturali clara & facili breviter demonstrata.*⁷ 1686

Probably the first book published in Glasgow, which was illustrated with woodcuts.

The author was professor of mathematics at St. Andrews (see No. 2042). Under a separate title-page is a treatise on Logarithms and Trigonometry.

2052. *The New Testament of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.*⁸ [Black letter.] 1691

Printed by Robert Sanders, One of their Majesties printers.

In Acts iv. 3, "Whom ye may appoint" for "whom we may appoint."

2053. [Sempill of Beltrees (Sir James).] A Pick-tooth for the Pope : or the Pack-mans Pater-noster. Translated out of Dutch by S.I.S. and newly augmented and enlarged by his son R.S.⁵ 1695

Printed by Robert Sanders, One of His Majesties printers.

Sir James Sempill of Beltrees was born in 1566, and died in Paisley in 1626. He married Geallis Elphinston, sister of the laird of Blythswood.

There was an earlier Glasgow edition published in 1669.

Case A.

ROBERT SANDERS [of Auldhouse.]

(See Portrait No. 71.) Robert Sanders of Auldhouse was son of Robert Sanders, the Elder, who died 1696.

2054. [Bell, Rev. (John).] Witch-Craft Proven, Arreign'd, and Condemn'd in its Professors, Professions and Marks, excerpted forth of the most Authentick Authors . . . By a Lover of the Truth.⁵ 1697

The author (born at Glasgow 1676, died 1707) was minister of Gladsmuir.

2055. A Pleasant and Excellent Dialogue Betwixt a Learned Divine And a Beggar.² 1698

London Printed, and Re-printed at Glasgow.

2056. [Law (Jo.) P.P.] Calendarium Lunæ Perpetuum: cursus Lunæ accurate monstratus.⁵ 1699

The author was Professor of Philosophy in the University. He was the best Regent admitted after disputation. On this occasion (2nd January, 1691) there were nine candidates who disputed in presence of the Faculty. Law was son of Robert Law, minister of East Kilpatrick; he died in 1718, leaving a legacy of books to the University Library.

2057. Theses Philosophicæ . . . ex Inelyta Academia Glasguensi, ad Lauream Magisterialem Aspirantes . . . Publico Eruditorum Examini subjicient. Sub Praesidio Gerschomi Carmichael, P.P.⁵

v.x. 1699-1716

A collection of Graduation Theses between the years 1699 and 1716. Probably unique. Robert Sanders styles himself one of the King's printers, as also printer to the City and to the University.

ANDREW HEPBURN.

2058. The late Proceedings and Votes of the Parliament of Scotland; contained in an Address delivered to the King. . . stated and vindicated.⁵ 1689

This was issued by Robert Ferguson the Plotter, but it is doubtful whether it was printed in Glasgow. There were two editions in the same year,

BOOKS PRINTED IN GLASGOW NOT LATER THAN 1742.

ROBERT SANDERS [of Auldhouse.]

2077. Clark, Rev. (James). The Spiritual-Merchant; or the Art of Merchandizing Spiritualized.⁵ 1703

Printed by Robert Sanders, One of Her Majestys Printers.

Dedicated to the Lord Provost and Council of the City of Glasgow. The author was minister of the Tron Church. It was his sermon on 7th November, 1707, which started the Union riot. Defoe alludes to him as "the warm gentlemen, who from the pulpit put the match to the gunpowder."

2078. The Testament of the Twelve Patriarchs, the Sons of Jacob, translated out of Greek into Latine by Robert Groshead, sometime Bishop of Lincoln.⁵ 1704

The Testament of the Twelve Patriarchs was translated into Latin by Robert Grosseteste or Groshead, Bishop of Lincoln (1235-53), and from this into English by Anthony Gilby, a Puritan divine. It was first published in 1577, and has gone through a great number of editions. Robert Sanders, the Elder, printed it in 1684.

2079. The A, B, C, With the Shorter Catechism.¹⁰ 1705

Printed by Robert Sanders, One of Her Majestys Printers. Sanders had an earlier edition, printed in 1698, which is the earliest Glasgow A, B, C, that is known.

2080. [Rutherford (Rev. Samuel)]. The Last and Heavenly Speech and Glorious Departure of John, Viscount Kenmuir.¹ 1722

Sir John Gordon of Lochinvar, first Viscount of Kenmure, died 12th September, 1634, in his 35th year. He was very intimate with Samuel Rutherford, who is the author of the present poem. It first appeared at Edinburgh in 1649, and again in 1703.

2081. [Sempill of Beltrees (Sir James).] A Pick-Tooth for the Pope : or the Pack-man's Pater-noster ; Set down in a Dialogue betwixt a Pack-man and a Priest (see No. 2053).² 1713

Printed by Robert Sanders of Auldhouse.

2082. Binning (Hugh). Heart-Humiliation : or, Miscellany Sermons Preached upon some choice Texts, at several Solemn Occasions.⁵ 1725

Hugh Binning was a regent in the University and minister of Govan, 1650-3. He was the most accomplished philosopher and divine of his time. He was an attractive and popular preacher, and was styled "the Scottish Cicero." His works were edited, with a learned and instructive biography, by the late Matthew Leishman, D.D., of Govan. His library was valued at £500 Scots.

HUGH BROWN.

2083. The Last Words of Mr. Donald Cargill, when on the Scaffold. July 27th, 1681.¹ 1714

Printed by Hvgb Brown, in the University of Glasgow.

Donald Cargill was minister of the Barony parish, Glasgow, 1655-62, in which latter year he was deposed for denouncing Charles II. as a traitor. He became a field preacher, and joined the Cameronians, was apprehended, tried, found guilty of treason, and executed at the Cross of Edinburgh, 27th July, 1681.

Printer to the University.

2085. The Jacobite Curse, or, Excommunication of King George and His Subjects. Printed, by Hvgh Brown.⁵

1714

This is a different edition from the preceding, the mistake in spelling of the printer's name having been discovered and corrected. There was an edition issued in October, a third in December, and an intermediate one. The author was William Wright, minister of Kilmarnock, second and first charges, 1700-24. He wrote the "Comical History of Fergusia and Heptarchus," and other works.

2087. Memoirs of Darien Giving a short Description of that Country, with an Account of the Attempts of the Company of Scotland to Settle a Colonie in that Place.⁵

1715

Written mostly in the year 1700, while the author was in the American Regions. With rude woodcut map. The author was the Rev. Francis Borland, one of the ministers appointed by the General Assembly to establish a Presbytery in Darien. (See No. 2269.)

JAMES HART.

2088. An Account of a late conference, on the 25th October, 1714, betwixt Mr. John Steel, Minister of the Gospel at Old Cumnock, and Mr. John Adamson, a disorderly Preacher.⁵

Printed by James Hart in the University, 1714

This was duly replied to by Adamson—"Contendings for the Kingdom of Light against the Kingdom of Darkness." Edinburgh, 1715, 4to. Patrick Walker says—"This was a blot on these two Shires, for such a man as Adamson, on whose head the moon had influence, especially at its height. . . . The church excommunicated him, and he gave them groats for peas, he excommunicated them."

Edited by P. B. M. No doubt P. B. Merchant.

2090. Puffendorf. S. Puffendorffii De Officio Hominis et Civis juxta Legem Naturalem Libri duo.¹¹ New Edition.

Gerschom Carmichael (the predecessor of Francis Hutchison in the Chair of Moral Philosophy) used Puffendorff's work as a text book, and these are notes and explanations for the use of his students. Hutchison pronounces him to be "by far the best commentator on Puffendorff," and adds that these notes "are of much more value than the text." This book is badly printed. A new and improved edition was published in Edinburgh in 1724. (See 2349 for another edition.)

an Irishman, was educated in Glasgow, and became a schoolmaster in the north of Ireland; he also wrote "Snuff: a Poem," published at Glasgow in 1717, but without the name of the printer. A second edition was published at Edinburgh in 1719. He projected a translation of Virgil, but did not print it. He died in 1734, aged 34. We are indebted to him for an account of the disturbance which arose in the University in 1721 over the proposal of some of the students to act Cato and Tammerlane. He was at the time a student of Divinity.

2107. Buchanan (William) of Auchmar. A Historical and Genealogical Essay Upon the Family and Surname of Buchanan.¹² 1723

Reprinted at Glasgow in 1820. The author was chief of the family of Buchanan, and hopes to have demonstrated that his family was the latest in descent from that of Buchanan. The book is full of interesting information.

2108. Robe (Rev. James). A Faithful Narrative of the Extraordinary Work of the Spirit of God, at Kilsyth, and other Congregations in the Neighbourhood.⁵ 1742

2109. A Short Narrative of the Extraordinary Work at Cambuslang; in a Letter to a Friend.¹ 1742

The revivals to which the above two tracts refer followed on the visit of George Whitefield to Glasgow, and were amongst the most striking incidents of this period. James Robe was parish minister of Kilsyth. (See No. 2152).

2110. The English Hero, or, Sir Francis Drake Reviv'd.⁵ Inlarged and reduced into Chapters and Contents by R. B. 1764

The author was Nathaniel Crouch, who, under the name of Robert or Richard Burton, wrote an immense number of small books for popular use during the latter part of the seventeenth and beginning of the eighteenth centuries.

JAMES DUNCAN.

2111. The Confession of Faith, Larger and Shorter Catechisms.⁵ 1727

2112. M'Bane (Donald). The Expert Sword-man's Companion : or the True Art of Self-Defence.⁵ 1728

With an engraved frontispiece (Donaldi Bani, Scoti, Effigies) and 17 other plates. They are well engraved and the figures well drawn. This copy bears the autograph of Laurence Dinwiddie. (See Portrait No. 474.)

2113. Adams (Jane). Miscellany Poems.¹ By Mrs. Jane Adams in Crawforddsdyke. 1734

Jean Adams is the reputed author of There's nae luck about the house. In a Note to the Reader by Archibald Crawford, he says that "she is a young woman, born in the town of Crawford's-dyke, . . . her father was a shipmaster in that place," and that she lived some years with a minister after the death of her father. John Stark, Provost of Glasgow (1726-7), subscribed for 12 copies. The book did not sell, and the remainder was shipped to Boston, Massachusetts.

JAMES and JOHN DUNCAN.

2114. Heaven upon Earth ; or the History of the Transfiguration of Jesus Christ, opened . . . in several Sermons.¹³ 1754

A. McLEAN and J. DUNCAN, juniors.

2115. [Thom (Rev. William) of Govan.] Donaldsoniad. J—n D———n detected ; or an Account how the Authentic Address of the —— was discovered. In a Letter from A.M. Student in Divinity.² 1763

With other tracts by the same author. William Thom was minister of Govan, 1748-90. He was an acute but eccentric man, and although he had been presented to his parish by the University, he was not sparing in his strictures on the Professors and their methods of teaching. Professor Clow's class he describes as "the drowsy shop of logic and meta-

2138. Η ΚΑΙΝΗ ΔΙΑΘΗΚΗ. Novum Testamentum.⁵ 1750

Printed by R. Urie for J. Barry, bookseller.

Large paper copy. A beautiful specimen of Greek printing. Ruddiman of Edinburgh published an edition in the same year—an editio altera. It is in double columns and the printing is inferior to this.

The Glasgow edition follows Mills' text; the Edinburgh edition, that of Wetstein. In 1759 Robert & Andrew Foulis published an edition, in 4to, double columns, according to Wetstein's text.

that he should abandon "the profane and unprofitable art of poem-making."

Case C.

ROBERT SMITH and ALEXANDER HUTCHESON.

2149. Guthrie (Rev. William). The Christian's Great Interest.¹³ 1743

This is one of the most popular religious works ever published in Scotland, having gone through a great many editions, and been translated into French, German, and Dutch. The author published it in self defence, some imperfect notes of his sermons having been printed by one of his hearers. William Guthrie (born, 1620; died, 1665) was minister of Fenwick until removed by Archbishop Burnet. He was a man of commanding presence, with a rich sonorous voice. An emotional nature, strong religious feeling, and great natural eloquence made him one of the most popular preachers of the day. Robert Wodrow was his great grandson. He was healthy in body as in mind, fond of field sports, and a keen curler.

2150. Vincent (Rev. Thomas). Christ's Certain and Sudden Appearance to Judgment.¹³ 1745

Printed by Robert Smith and Alexander Hutcheson in Company.

Vincent was minister of Maudline, Milk Street, London.

PRINTER UNKNOWN.

Principal Baillie married (1) Lilius Fleming of Cardaroch, and (2) Helen Strang, daughter of Dr. John Strang, Principal of the University, and widow of Dr. James Elliot. Principal Baillie was a man of sound judgment and much learning. He was a voluminous author.

2340. Sinclar (George). *Ars nova et magna gravitatis et levitatis.*⁵ Roterodami. 1669

(See No. 2042).

In this book Professor Sinclair describes a machine newly invented, from its shape resembling a bell, which he terms Campana Urinatoria, and the diver Urinator. The inventor seems to have been Maul of Melgim, and it is mentioned that in 1665 he had, by means of it, brought up three pieces of ordnance from one of the Spanish vessels sunk near the island of Mull.

2341. Sinclar (George). *Hydrostatica.*⁵ Edinburgh. 1672

(See No. 2042.)

The unsold copies were re-issued in 1683 with a new title page and a dedication to the Magistrates of Edinburgh.

In this work the author describes, at considerable length, a "Wooden Ark," with a leaden footstool, which he thought would supersede the Diving Bell. "As the Ark is a most useful device for profit, so 'tis excellent for pleasure and recreation, if a man were disposed to see the ground and channels of deep waters, or were inclined to find out hydrostatical conclusions, a knowledge very profitable, and what few have attained to. Though it seems somewhat difficult to enter the Ark and go down below the water, yet a little use will expel all fear."

2342. Sinclar (George). The Principles of Astronomy and Navigation.⁵ Edinburgh. 1688

In a Postscript the author again reverts to his "Ark," and refers to the labours of Bailie James Colquhoun of Glasgow on the vessels of the Armada, who, being ignorant of the Diving Bell, went down several times, drawing or supplying air from above by a long pipe of leather.

2343. Sinclar (George). Proteus bound with Chains.¹ Edinburgh. 1688

This is part of the preceding, and is generally bound up along with it.

It is an account of the weather-glass and its uses, and is an anticipation of Admiral Fitzroy and the Meteorological Society. The Professsor points out the advantage that it would be to navigators to carry a barometer on board ship.

2344. Sinclar (George). Satan's Invisible World discovered.¹⁵ Edinburgh, 1746

2345. Sinclar (George). Satan's Invisible World discovered.¹⁵ London, 1814

George Sinclair, born in East Lothian, was appointed a Regent in the University of Glasgow during the Commonwealth. After the Restoration he was ejected on account of his political and church principles. He was then elected a Regent of the University of Edinburgh, and taught mathematics for several years. He devoted his spare time to practice as a mineral surveyor, and much curious information regarding early coal mining may be gleaned from his works. After the Revolution he was restored to his Glasgow chair as Professor of Experimental Philosophy, which he held till 1699.

He was a man of great industry and undoubted ability, but was deficient in grasp and insight. He discarded the teaching of the schools and resorted to observation and experiment, but he was unable fully to elicit the meaning of the phenomena he observed. The invention of Torri-celli and the experiments of Pascal had created an interest in the subject of the pressure of the atmosphere and the equilibrium of fluids, and Sinclair devoted himself to these subjects with great assiduity.

The work, however, by which he is best known is "Satan's Invisible World discovered," a collection of instances of witchcraft to prove that there are devils, spirits, witches, and apparitions, and to confound atheists. The Privy Council protected him in the copyright for eleven years. His weakness for witchcraft may perhaps be taken for an argument in favour of his mathematical genius, as Newton, Napier, and Whiston, all indulged in speculations upon the Apocalypse, and John Robison (a Glasgow man, and for some time a Glasgow Professor), the distinguished Professor of Natural Philosophy in the University of Edinburgh, took up with the French Revolution and wrote some wonderful pamphlets. (See No. 2116.)

Sinclair presented a number of books to the University Library.

2346. Agrippa (Henricus Cornelius). De Incertitudine et vanitate scientiarum declamatio.³⁴ Coloniae. 1575

With Autograph of Professor George Sinclair, author of "Satan's Invisible World Discovered."

"The Vanity of the Sciences" is a satire upon the learning of the age, and is a work of extraordinary sweep and compass, in which questions of every kind are discussed. Newspaper correspondents who, in the dull season air their views on fox-hunting, may claim "the Wise Cornelius" as an authority. Hunting and sporting, he says, are to be condemned for cruelty. "It is a fierce and cruel thing, when the poor beast, overcome by dogs, has its blood shed, its bowels torn out, to exult and count the end of pleasure gained" (c. lxxvii.).

2368. A Trve Relation of the Proceedings against Iohn Ogilvie, a Iesuit, executed at Glasgow, the last of Februarie, anno 1615.⁵

Edinburgh, 1615

John Ogilvie was a Jesuit who was apprehended in Glasgow, charged under statutes which constituted certain acts treason, tried before Archbishop Spottiswood, convicted and executed. This volume is the Archbishop's defence of the trial and condemnation, in answer to another account published at Douay. The Jesuits were viewed in those days very much as anarchists are in ours. Special legislation was directed against them, just as was done a few years later in the case of the unfortunate Covenanters.

2369. Refvtatio Libelli De Regimine Ecclesiæ Scoticanæ.⁵

Londini, 1620

By John Spottiswood, Archbishop of Glasgow, 1612-15, and of St. Andrew's, 1615-39. This is the only one of his works which was published by himself. It was intended as a refutation of David Calderwood's "De regimine Ecclesiæ Scoticanæ brevis Relatio." Calderwood immediately replied to the Archbishop in the "Vindicie" subjoined to his "Altare Damascenum." The subject of controversy was "The Five Articles of Perth." Spottiswood was buried in Westminster Abbey.

Mr. Cockburn, having taken the oaths, "set up the English Liturgy at Glasgow" on November, 1712. "Thus," says Wodrow, "that is begun in Glasgow which was scarce ever expected to be seen once in my day." On 10th February, 1713, he writes. "When I am in Glasgow, I cannot but acquaint you that this last post I have Mr. Cockburn's sermon on January 30 in print."

2388. *The Trial of the Rev. Neil Douglas for Sedition.*⁵

Edinburgh, 1817

Douglas was a "Universalist Preacher," or "Preacher of Restoration," as he styled himself, "old, deaf, dogged, honest, and respectable." In the course of his sermons he likened the King to Nebuchadnezzar and to Belshazzar, asserted that the House of Commons was corrupt, and thought that Waterloo was nothing to brag about. He was tried for sedition and found not guilty. He was also the author of "King David's Psalms . . . with notes . . . dedicated to Messiah." Glasgow, 1815, 8vo. With portrait engraved by R. Gray from a picture by J. Brooks. In the same year he published the "Paraphrases," with an Improvement to each. He printed these himself. (See No. 2663.)

2389. Atkinson (Thomas). Miscellanies in prose and verse. In three volumes.³¹

London, 1833

Atkinson was a bookseller in Glasgow. He was a member of the firm of Robertson & Atkinson from 1823 to 1830. During this time he edited and published "The Ant," in 2 vols, dedicated to Thomas Campbell. (See No. 162.) In 1830 the partnership was dissolved, each partner carrying on business on his own account. In 1833 he issued these "Miscellanies," which he himself characterises as "all of his writings that he wishes to be remembered by." Daniel Macmillan, the publisher, was his shopman. Atkinson died on board ship on his way to Barbadoes in 1833, and was buried at sea in a coffin which he had taken with him. (See Portrait No. 272 and No. 354.)

2390. *The Holy Bible.*³²

- ⁵
- 1694

This is a funeral elegy on the death of Queen Mary written by John M'Ure, the Keeper of the Register of Sasines and historian of Glasgow. He reprints it in his "View of the City of Glasgow" (No. 2448), and gives this account of it:—"A few years after was removed by death our royal Queen Mary, whose death was much lamented by the city, in so much that they importuned the author to compose an elegy which is here subjoined." Poetic talent must have been at a low ebb in Glasgow if M'Ure was the city laureate. In his 74th year he composed a doggerel inscription for his tombstone. He died in May, 1747, aged 96.

2450. M'Ure (John). The History of Glasgow. A new edition.²
Glasgow, 1830

Reprint, for D. MacVean, of the 1736 edition.

“M'Ure's book, though the oldest, is yet the best which we have on the subject. It is, at the same time, only too obvious that, even if he could have had access to the Records from which the Annals of the City must be written, he was without the knowledge necessary either to read or to understand them. His mistakes, gross as they are, have been, for the most part, implicitly copied by his successors, a few of whom were more competent than himself, and some, indeed, even still more illiterate.” So says Joseph Robertson, editor of the Glasgow Constitutional, writing in 1846.

MANUSCRIPTS.

2560. The Protocol book of Cuthbert Simon, Notary Public and Clerk to the Chapter of Glasgow, 1499-1513.⁶²
Printed by the Grampian Club in 1875.
2561. Rental book of Archbishop James Beaton, 1509, and continued till 1570.⁶²

This is the register of the rentallers or kindly tenants of the barony of Glasgow and other baronies belonging to the temporality of the see of Glasgow prior to the Reformation.
Printed by the Grampian Club in 1875.

2562. Epistolarum Apostolicarum Explicatio, holograph of Thomas Hutcheson of Lambhill.⁶³

This is a manuscript copy of David Dickson's "Expositio Analytica Omnium Apostolicarum Epistolarum" (No. 2036), published in 1645. There are some slight variations which indicate that this copy was made prior to the publication of the printed volume. Probably the book represents the Professor's dictata or lectures, and the MS. is a student's copy of these.

Dickson's "Brief Exposition of the Gospel according to Matthew" was printed within Hutchesons' Hospita in 1647.

2563. The Gold book of the Dean of Guild's House in Glasgow, 1659.⁶³
2564. Archbishop Beaton's Bible. Copy of inscription round Coat of Arms on both boards:—"Iacobvs Abetovn. Archiepiscopvs Glasgvensis. 1552. Pereundvm ut vincas."⁶⁴ cryed by the members and supports of the Universitie of Glasgow at the Colledge therof, First upon the fyft day of December."⁶⁵ 1643

 With the original signatures. Amongst them are—John Strang, Principal; David Dickson, Professor of Theologie (see No. 2036); Zacharias Boyd, Vice-chancellor (see Portrait No. 17); E. Wright, Dean of Faculties; Ro. Maine,
 Professor of Medicine; Robt. Ramsay; Robt. Baillie (see No. 2339); James Dalrymple (then a Regent in the University, afterwards Lord President of the College of Justice, and Viscount of Stair).
2566. Minute book of the Faculty of Procurators, 1668-1759.⁶⁶
2567. Inscription on Glass, 1754. From an old window opposite the College in High Street.⁶⁷ 1754
2568. Minute book of the Deacons' Court of the Incorporation of Cordiners, 1558-1734.⁸⁴
2569. Diary of George Brown, Dean of Guild in Glasgow 1762, 1763, and in 1770, 1771.³² 1746
 The volume contains some entries by James Brown, father of the Diarist, and dated 1700. (See No. 394.)
2570. Diary of George Brown, Merchant in Glasgow, 1745-53.
 Printed in 1856.³⁵
- This is the printed copy of Manuscript No. 2569. (See his Bible No. 2390).
2571. Autograph Letter from Sir Colin Campbell, Lord Clyde, dated 7th December, 1855.⁸⁰
2572. Journal of a Journey to Arran in 1783, by Charles Hutcheson.⁶⁷
2573. Portrait of Captain Archibald Patoun.¹

The subject of John Gibson Lockhart's "Lament." "Oh we ne'er shall see the like of Captain Paton no mo."

Case O.

2574. Diary of Captain Archibald Patoun, 1791-1807.⁶⁸

Archibald Patoun was son of David Patoun, physician in Glasgow. He entered the Dutch military service (Scottish Brigade) in 1765, and retired on a pension in 1774, and died on 30th July, 1807. He was nephew of Colonel Archibald Patoun, F.R.S., of the Engineers.

(See No. 344B.)

2575. Private Account book of Captain Archibald Patoun, 1791-1809.⁶⁸

2576. Some leaves of the Glasgow Presbytery Records saved from the fire which destroyed the Tron Church and Session House, 15th February, 1793.⁶⁹

These relate to the years 1628, 1651, 1664, 1666, and 1709.

2577. Autograph Letter from Thomas Campbell, dated 28th May, 1841.⁸⁰

(See portrait No. 162.)

2578. Poems by Thomas Campbell.⁷⁰

2579. Common-place book of Thomas Campbell the Poet. Holograph.⁴

Part of it was written after 1815.

2580. Kirk Records of the Associate Session of Glasgow, 1763-1781.⁷¹

2581. MS. volume of Notes of Sermons and Lectures, principally preached at Glasgow, 1693-1702.³²

These were taken down by John M'Gilchrist of Easter Possil, writer in Glasgow, who was "very accurate of the shorthand." Amongst the preachers were Andrew Turner, minister of Erskine; Archibald Wallace, minister of Cardross; Neill Gillies, formerly minister of Cardross, afterwards of Glasgow; John M'Laren of Glasgow and John Clark of Glasgow (see No. 2077). At the end are MS. copies of the Dying Testimonies of Mr. James Renwick, John Kide, and John King. One of the sermons preached by David Brown at Erskine, on the occasion of the Congregational Fast, 26 November, 1700, occupies 17 closely-written pages. At the end the writer adds: "Night came on and I stopped wryting that the minister could not be followed after farder."

2589. Minute book of the Bridgegate Club.⁶⁴ Instituted about 1807.
2590. Minute book of the 12th March Club.⁶⁴ Instituted 1824.
2591. "Hawkie" (William Cameron), original holograph of his Autobiography.³¹

The autobiography of this notorious Glasgow street character was written with his left hand. This was done whilst he was an inmate of the Town's Hospital, and the MS. sheets were sent from time to time to his friendly patron, Mr. David Robertson, Her Majesty's Bookseller. The diction and spelling are characteristic, and the original narrative is occasionally more graphic than admits of publication. The MS. was long preserved as a literary curiosity, and only published in 1888. It is valuable as the veritable biography of the life and adventures of a Scottish gangrel.

(See No. 552A.)

Case P.

2592. Tod (John), Editor. Hawkie: the autobiography of a gangrel.³¹ Glasgow: David Robertson & Co. 1888
