PREFACE

TO THE SECOND EDITION

THIS book relates to the Scottish Kings from the accession of Malcolm II. in the year 1005, to the death of James VI. in 1625. It contains the result of an endeavour to settle, as far as possible, the exact date of the noteworthy events in Scottish history during those six centuries. Unfortunately there are many noteworthy events in the early history of Scotland to which it is impossible to assign the exact date.

Pages xviii and xix contain a Table of the Scottish Kings from 1005 to 1625. This Table gives the names of the Sovereigns, the dates when their reigns began, their ages at accession, the dates when their reigns ended, and the lengths of their reigns. It contains the reigns of twenty-five Kings; the second reign of Donald Bane; the nominal reign of Margaret, 'The Maid of Norway'; the First Interregnum; the Second Interregnum; and the reign of Mary Queen of Scots; making a total of thirty periods, or 'reigns' if they may be so called, although the term 'reign' is not strictly applicable in every instance.

Pages 1-279 contain particulars as to the parentage, birth, marriage, death, burial-place, and issue of each Sovereign, with short notices and the dates of some of the principal events that occurred during their reigns.

xiv PREFACE TO SECOND EDITION

The paragraphs that relate specially to the personal history of each Sovereign begin in the margin, so as to be more readily distinguished.

A Table of Regnal Years is inserted after each reign, followed by the names of the contemporary Sovereigns in England and in France, and by the names of the contemporary Popes and Antipopes.

The Tables of Regnal and Interregnal Years are calculated, in most cases, from the death, deposition, or abdication of the preceding Sovereign, on the principle of 'The King is dead! Long live the King!' But if a special examination of the Records in H.M. General Register House were made, it might be found that Robert I. was not the only one of the Scottish Kings who reckoned his Regnal Years from the date of his coronation.

Upwards of five thousand references are given in footnotes, to show the principal sources that have been consulted, and to enable the reader, if so disposed, to refer to those sources for the purpose of comparing the various accounts of any particular incident. In many cases the references are given to show that some statement of a so-called 'Authority' is wrong.

The pages from 280 onwards may be regarded as an Appendix. They contain Pedigrees, Explanations, Tables, Calendars, Maps, etc.

Pages 280-285 contain five Pedigrees, extending over a period of one thousand and fifty-seven years, from the accession of Kenneth I. (MacAlpin), King of Scots, in the year 844, to the accession of His Most Gracious Majesty King Edward VII. on the 22nd of January 1901.

Pages 286 and 287 contain a Table of the Marriages of the Scottish Kings from 1034 to 1625. The Marriages are placed in a separate Table, to avoid the necessity of using folding-sheets for the Pedigrees.

Pages 288 and 289 contain Pedigrees of the Ranulphs and Dunbars, Earls of Moray. These Pedigrees are inserted because they afford an opportunity of correcting (1) the pedigree and notes printed in the Proceedings of the Society of Antiquaries of Scotland, vol. xxii. pp. 187-192, 1st March 1888; and (2) the statements in Scottish Arms (1881), vol. ii. p. 11, No. XII. These Pedigrees clear up some doubtful points, which for the last two or three hundred years have been hopelessly confused.

Pages 290 and 291 contain an explanation of the use of the Tables and Calendars. These Tables and Calendars are provided to enable any person to translate the dates in old documents and chronicles into our present computation.

Pages 292-294 contain an explanation of 'Double Dates.' This explanation is given to show the true sequence of events that occurred before 1752, in which year the New Style was adopted in Great Britain.

Pages 295-297 contain a list of the principal Moveable Feasts and Fasts in chronological order.

Pages 298-305 contain some Notes on Eras, Calendars, Easter, the Old and New Styles, etc.

Pages 306 and 307 contain a Table of Eras, Events, and Anniversaries, with Notes.

Pages 308-320 contain a Table of Easter Day for a thousand years, from the year 1001 to the year 2000 inclusive, according to the Old Style before 1753, and according to the New Style after 1582.

Page 321 contains a Table showing some errors in dating Easter Day, from the year 1001 to the year 2000.

Pages 322-324 contain Tables of the Principal Moveable Feasts and Fasts before and after Easter.

Pages 325-328 contain an Alphabetical Table of the Popes and Antipopes from 1005 to 1625, with the dates when their Regnal Years began and ended.¹

Pages 329-388 contain an Alphabetical Calendar of Scottish and other Saints' Days, and of the Principal Feasts and Fasts, moveable and immoveable; a Church Calendar; a Latin Calendar, with Translation; a Scottish Calendar; and a Table of Abbreviations used in the Calendars. In the Alphabetical Calendar, when there are two or more Saints of the same name, their names are, in most cases, arranged according to the sequence of the months in which their Feasts occur.

The Scottish Calendar, in the first edition of this book, had a number of days left blank, owing to the impossibility of proving the exact date of many events in Scottish history. In the present edition some of those blanks have been filled up with 'modern instances.'

¹ It is difficult to make a satisfactory Table of the Popes and Antipopes, especially if there is not room for a column of remarks. One of the puzzles is—What numbers ought to be affixed to the different Popes named John? There were nine Popes or Antipopes of the name, from John XIV. in 983, to John XXII., elected in 1316. John XV. should not have been reckoned as a Pope. John XVII. was an Antipope in 988. The next John was also called John XVII. John XIX. died in 1033; after him there was neither Pope nor Antipope of the name for 243 years. There never was either a Pope or an Antipope called John XX., but in 1276 a Pope was elected who styled himself John XXI. See below, p. 327.

PREFACE TO SECOND EDITION xvii

Pages 389-401 contain the names of some of the Authors, Books, Chronicles, etc., referred to in the footnotes.

Then follow four coloured Maps, reproduced, by permission, from those in the late Mr. W. F. Skene's Celtic Scotland. These maps are intended to give only a general idea of the boundaries of 'Alban,' 'Scotia,' 'the Bishoprics,' and of 'the Ancient Divisions of the Land.'

The Index applies mainly to the first 289 pages.

This 'Revised Chronology of Scottish History' includes a period of more than six hundred years, and contains so many statements and dates, that it is hopeless to expect entire freedom from error, but great pains have been taken to make it accurate. To quote from the Preface of L'Art de vérifier les Dates (p. xix): 'Notwithstanding the long and laborious researches that have been made, notwithstanding all the precautions that have been taken, and the care that has been exercised to avoid mistakes, both in the composition of the work and in the correction of the proofs, it is difficult, not to say impossible, to escape from making some errors in so great a number of facts and dates.'

MALCOLM THE SECOND

KING OF SCOTS

1005—1034

Reign began about the 25th of March 1005,

„ ended 25th November 1034,

„ lasted 29 years and about 8 months.

Malcolm the Second. ‘King of Scots,’ ‘Malcolm Mac Cinaeth, king of Alban,’ ‘Head of the nobility of the whole of Western Europe,’ ‘King of Monaidh,’ ‘King of Scotia,’ ‘The most victorious king,’ ‘A warrior fortunate, praised of bards.’¹

Son of Kenneth II. and grandson of Malcolm I., kings of Alban.²

Born in or before the year 954.³

REIGN BEGAN ABOUT THE 25TH OF MARCH 1005.

King of Scots. Malcolm II. became king of Scots in Alban after he had defeated his kinsman Kenneth III., king of Alban, in battle at Monzievaird, near the banks of the Earn, about the 25th of March 1005.⁴

Aged about 50 when he became king of Alban in 1005.⁵

The 1st Siege of Durham. The men of 'Saxonia,' under Earl Uchtred, defeated the Scots under King Malcolm II. and made great slaughter of their nobles, after the Scots had devastated Northumbria, and had unsuccessfully besieged the city of Durham in the year 1006.⁶

The Monastery at Marthillach (Mortlach) in Banffshire was founded by King Malcolm II. as a thank-offering for his victory over the Danes in the year 1010.⁷

The Abbey at Deer. King Malcolm II., 'son of Cinatha,' gave the king's share in certain lands to the Columbite abbey at Deer in Aberdeenshire, possibly when on his way southwards after he had defeated the Danes at Mortlach in the year 1010.⁸

The Battle of Clontarf. The Irish, under Brian Boroimha, with the help of the men of Alban, entirely defeated the Northmen at Clontarf, near Dublin, on Good Friday, the 23rd of April 1014.⁹

Caithness and Sutherland were given by King Malcolm II. to his grandson Thorfinn with the title of earl, after Sigurd Hlodverson, earl of Orkney, Thorfinn's father, had been slain in the battle of Clontarf, on the 23rd of April 1014.¹⁰

The Battle of Carham. The Scots, under King Malcolm II., totally defeated the Northumbrians, under Edulf Cudel, earl of Northumberland, at Carham on the Tweed, in the year 1018.¹¹

Lothian was annexed to the kingdom of the Scots by King Malcolm II. It had been ceded to him by Edulf Cudel, earl of Northumberland, and King Malcolm II. 'distributed many oblations' to the churches as well as to the clergy, after the battle of Carham, in 1018.¹²

Moray. Finlaec, son of Ruaidhri, mormaer of Moray, was slain by his nephews, the sons of his brother Maelbrighde, in 1020.¹³

Orkney, tributary to Norway. Brusi and Thorfinn, sons of Sigurd, earl of Orkney, submitted to Olaf (the Saint), king of Norway, in 1021-2.¹⁴

Bishops of the Scots. Malmore, Malise, and Alwyn seem to have been successively sole bishop of the Scots in the reign of King Malcolm II. Alwyn was elected bishop in 1025.¹⁵

Dunkeld in Alban was entirely burned in 1027.¹⁶

Bishop of St. Andrews. Maelduin, son of Gillaodran, was bishop of St. Andrews after the death of Alwyn, in the year 1028.¹⁷

Canute, king of England, invaded Scotia, and King Malcolm II., with the two chiefs, Maelbeathe and Jehmarc, submitted to him in 1031.¹⁸

Died. King Malcolm the Second died at Glammys, 25th November 1034.²⁰

Aged 80 or more.²¹

Buried in Iona.²²

His Reign lasted 29 years and about 8 months.²³

REIGN ENDED 25th NOVEMBER 1034.

ISSUE

King Malcolm the Second had three daughters,

Bethoc, Donada (?), and another :

(1.) Bethoc, heir of her father King Malcolm II., was married about the year 1000 to Crinan the Thane, hereditary lay-abbot of Dunkeld, and seneschal of the Isles, who held with other lands the territory called 'Abthania de Dull,' in Athol. Crinan was slain in battle at Dunkeld 'with 9 times 20 heroes' in 1045.

Regum, ii. 158, s. 132, a° 1034; Hoveden, i. 89, a° 1034.

Macbeth the immediate successor of King Malcolm II.]

23. Celtic Scotland, i. 384-399, c. 8, gives an account of this reign.

[The chronicles assign a reign of 30 years (in round numbers) to King Malcolm II. The Annals of Ulster seem to be the only authority for the year of his predecessor's death, viz., 1005. If Malcolm II. became king in 1005, the nearest approach to 30 years is to suppose that his reign began on the first day of that year, viz., 25th March 1005, and as he died on the 25th November 1034, this would give him a reign of 29 years 8 months and 1 day, which view has been adopted in this book.]

Issue, two sons, Duncan and Maldred, and a daughter : ²⁴

(1) Duncan, king of the Cumbrians, and after his grandfather's death king of Scots as Duncan I. from the 25th November 1034 to the 14th August 1040. ²⁵

(2) Maldred seems to have succeeded to Cumbria, when his brother Duncan became king of Scots on the death of their maternal grandfather, King Malcolm II., in 1034. He married Ealdgyth, daughter of Uchtred, earl of Northumberland, by his wife Ælgifu, daughter of Æthelred II., king of England.

Issue, a son : ²⁶

Gospatric, earl of Northumberland, 'claimed right to that earldom through his mother, and purchased it, for a great sum of money,' from William the Conqueror, at Christmas 1067: he was 'deprived' in 1072. He had a grant of 'Dunbar with the adjacent lands in Lothian' from his kinsman Malcolm III., king of Scots, in 1072. Issue, three sons, Dolfin, Gospatric, and Waltheof, with Æthelreda, and several other daughters : ²⁷

[A gravestone bearing the inscription '✠GOSPATLICUS COMES' is now (1906) in the crypt of the dormitory of the monastery at Durham. It was discovered in the monks' burial-ground at Durham, in the year 1821.

'Cospatricus comes et monachus' appears in the Durham obituary on the 15th of December.

There were three Earls Gospatric (of Dunbar); but there is no evidence to prove which of the three earls

(a) Dolfin, ruler in Cumbria, expelled from Carlisle by William II. (Rufus), king of England, in 1092.²⁸

(b) Gospatric of Dunbar succeeded his father as second earl. He styles himself 'Gospatric the earl, brother of Dolfin,' in his charter. He seems to have been the 'summus dux Lodonie' who was slain by an arrow at the battle of the Standard, on the 22nd of August 1138.²⁹

(c) Waltheof, lord of Allerdale. [? Abbot of Croyland in 1125, until deposed by Alberic, Papal legate, in 1138.]³⁰

(d) Æthelreda, married to Duncan II., king of Scots. Her husband, King Duncan II., was treacherously slain by the mormaer of the Mearns, 12th November 1094.³¹

(3) —, daughter of Bethoc, and sister of King Duncan I. Issue, a son :³²

Moddan, titular earl of Caithness, slain at Thurso in 1040.³³

(II.) Donada (?), a younger daughter of King Malcolm II., supposed to have been married about 1004 to Finlaec, mormaer of Moray, and to have had a son :³⁴

NOTES

Alban (Albania) was the country between the Firth of Forth and the river Spey. When the Picts or Cruithnigh inhabited the country it was called Pictavia or Cruithentuaith, from Cruithne, 'the father of the Picts,' their first king, and tuath, which is the Gaelic for 'a tribe.'⁴²

'Albanach' (Albani) seems to have been the war-cry of the Scots. They used this cry at the battle of the Standard, on the 22nd of August 1138, upwards of one hundred years after the death of King Malcolm II.⁴³

Drumalban was the name formerly applied to the range of mountains that extends northwards from Loch Lomond, and forms the watershed between the east and west coasts of Scotland.⁴⁴

The Mounth was the name applied to the mountains that extend across Scotland from the range of Drumalban near Ben Nevis, to the east coast near Aberdeen.⁴⁵ tenth century, gradually came to be applied to the kingdom of Alban, and eventually included Cumbria, Lothian, Alban, Argyll, Moray, and Caithness.⁴⁶

Cumbria extended from the Clyde to the Derwent and to Stanmore. Eadmund I., king of England, overran all Cumbria in the year 945, and gave it to Malcolm I., king of Scots, on condition that he should be his ally both on sea and on land. Cumbria was given by King Malcolm II. to his grandson Duncan.⁴⁷

The Islands. Orkney, Shetland, the Western Isles or Sudreys, and the Isle of Man, did not form part of the dominions of Malcolm II., king of Scots; the inhabitants owed allegiance to the king of Norway, in the eleventh century.⁴⁸

America or Vinland. The Northmen who discovered America, in the year 1000, called it 'Vinland,' from the vines they found growing there. Two Scots, Hake and Hekia, 'who were very swift of foot,' went with the expedition that sailed in three ships from Iceland, and landed in 'Vinland' in the year 1006.⁴⁹

Cumbria after 1034. Maldred probably became king of the Cumbrians when his brother King Duncan I. succeeded their grandfather Malcolm II. as king of Scots, on the 25th of November 1034.²¹

The Battle of Torfness, in which Thorfinn, earl of Orkney, defeated King Duncan I., was probably fought at 'Standing Stane,' in the parish of Duffus, three and a half miles south-south-east of Burghead, on the 14th of August 1040.²²

King Duncan's Blood. Some red stains on the floor of what was called 'King Duncan's Room,' in Cawdor Castle, used to be shown as 'King Duncan's blood'; but Cawdor Castle was not built until upwards of four hundred years after King Duncan was murdered.²³

21. Fordun, iv. c. xliv., states that Cumbria was bestowed on Malcolm, son of King Duncan I., a^o 1034; [but Malcolm was a child at that time, and it seems probable that it was Maldred, brother of Duncan I., on whom Cumbria was bestowed. Maldred's son's name was Gospatric; one of his grandsons, Dolfin, was ruler of Carlisle in 1092; two other grandsons, Gospatric of Dunbar, and Waltheof, lord of Allerdale, were witnesses to the Inquisition of Earl David, all of which facts connect the family with Strathclyde;] Skene, Chron. Picts and Scots, lxxix. (Strathclyde), 446; Celtic Scotland, i. 362, 394, note 18, the last two sentences; and iii. 4, 514, Maldred. See also above, Malcolm II., p. 9, No. 47.

ish of Duffus; Celtic Scotland, i. 403; Collectanea de Rebus Albanicis, 344 (Orkneyinga Saga, c. 1); Orkneyinga Saga, 21, 22. [In those days the Loch of Spynie extended a long way to the west of Kintrae (the head of the tide), and King Duncan, even if wounded, might have escaped by boat to Pitgownie or Pitgaveny, if that was the Bothnagowan where he was murdered. The 'standing stane' formerly stood about nine feet above the ground, on the property of Major C. L. Cumming Bruce, M.P., but about the year 1820 his brother, Sir William Cumming Gordon, moved the 'standing stane' to Altyre, where it now (1906) stands, in a field called 'the long stone park.']

KING OF SCOTS

Reign began 14th August 1040,
 „ ended 15th August 1057,
 „ lasted 17 years and 2 days.

Macbeth. ‘King of Scots,’ ‘Mormaer of Moray,’ ‘Supreme King of Alban,’ ‘King of Scotia,’ ‘the red king,’ ‘the liberal king, was fair, yellow, tall.’¹

Son of Finlaec, mormaer of Moray; his mother is supposed to have been Donada, second daughter of Malcolm II., king of Scots.²

Born about 1005.³

3. Chron. Huntingdon, 210, calls Macbeth grandson of Malcolm II.

[If Macbeth were grandson of King Malcolm II., his mother must have been younger than her sister Bethoc, and she was probably older than her sister who was mother of Thorfinn.]

Canute (Knutr), king of England, invaded Scotia, and Macbeth became 'his man,' in 1031.⁴

Mormaer of Moray. Macbeth seems to have succeeded Gillacomgan, as mormaer of Moray, in 1032.⁵

Married Gruoch, who was daughter of Bodhe, and widow of Gillacomgan, mormaer of Moray, about 1032.⁶

Commander under King Duncan I., 14th August 1040.⁷

REIGN BEGAN 14TH AUGUST 1040.

King of Scots. Macbeth became king of Scots after having murdered King Duncan I. at Bothnagowan near Elgin, 14th August 1040.⁸

Aged about 35 when he became king.⁹

Crinan, lay-abbot of Dunkeld, father of King Duncan I., 'was slain and many with him, viz.: nine times twenty heroes' in a battle fought between the men of Alban, at Dunkeld in 1045.¹⁰

The Culdees of Lochleven had a grant of the lands of Kyrkness, from Macbeth and Gruoch, king and queen of the Scots.¹¹

DONALD BANE

KING OF SCOTS

(First Reign)

1093—1094

First Reign began 13th November 1093,
 „ ended about 12th May 1094,

Donald Bane. ‘King of Scots,’ ‘King of Alban.’¹

Second Son of Duncan I., king of Scots, by his wife, a cousin of Siward, earl of Northumberland.²

Born about 1033.³

HIS FIRST REIGN BEGAN 13TH NOVEMBER 1093.

King of Scots. Donald Bane became king of Scots on the death of his eldest brother, King Malcolm III., 13th November 1093.⁴

Aged about 60 when he became king.⁵

1. Saxon Chron., ii. 196, a° 1093; Symeon, Hist. Regum, ii. 222, s. 174, a° 1093; Skene, Chron. Picts and Scots, 449, Donald III.

2. Saxon Chron., ii. 196, the Scots chose Donald, Malcolm’s brother, for king; Symeon, Hist. Regum, ii. 222, s. 174, a° 1093, ‘Malcolm’s brother’; Wyntoun, ii. 165, 166, bk. vii. c. 3, ll. 369, 370.

3. [This seems a probable date; it would make him seven years old at his father’s death, 14th Aug. 1040.]

4. Saxon Chron., ii. 196, a° 1093; Skene, Chron. Picts and Scots, 449, Donald III.; Symeon, Hist. Regum, ii. 222, s. 174, a° 1093, ‘elected king’; Chron. Mailros (Interpolation), 52, a° 1093; H. 5. See above, No. 3.

All the English who had formerly been with King Malcolm III (Ceannmor) were driven out, after his death, by the Scots in November 1093.⁶

Deposed. King Donald Bane was deposed by his nephew, Duncan II., about the 12th of May 1094.⁷

His First Reign lasted about 6 months.⁸

HIS FIRST REIGN ENDED ABOUT THE 12TH OF MAY 1094.

6. Saxon Chron., ii. 196, a^o 1093; Symeon, Hist. Regum, ii. 222, s. 174, a^o 1093; F. Worcester, ii. 32; Hemingburgh, i. 26, a^o 1093.

DUNCAN THE SECOND

KING OF SCOTS

Reign began about 12th May 1094,
 „ ended 12th November 1094,
 „ lasted about 6 months.

Duncan the Second. ‘King of Scots,’ ‘King of Alban,’
 ‘King of Scotia.’¹

Eldest Son of Malcolm III., king of Scots, by his first wife Ingibjorg, daughter of Earl Finn Arnason, and widow of Thorfinn Sigurdson, earl of Orkney.²

Born about 1060.³

Hostage to William the Conqueror in 1072.⁴

Released and Knighted by William II. (Rufus), king of England, in 1087.⁵

Married his cousin Æthelreda, daughter of Earl Gospatric of Dunbar (formerly earl of Northumberland), about 1090.⁶

REIGN BEGAN IN MAY 1094.

King of Scots. Duncan II. became king of Scots after he had deposed his uncle King Donald Bane, in May 1094.⁷

Aged about 34 when he became king.⁸

He gave Lands to the Church at Durham, Dunfermline, and St. Andrews, between the month of April and the 12th of November 1094.⁹

One of the Earliest Charters relating to Scotland, now extant, was granted by King Duncan II. between April and the 12th November 1094.¹⁰

He Styled Himself 'I Dunecan, son of King Malcolumb, by hereditary right king of Scotia.' His brother Malcolumb, and his half-brother Eadgar, his next heirs, were witnesses to the above charter in 1094.¹¹

NOTE

The first Earl Gospatric married the sister of Eadmund, supposed to be Gunhilda, younger daughter of Harold II. Symeon of Durham writes (between 1120 and 1130) as if the earl were still alive.

The third Earl Gospatric died 'in Albania' in 1166 (Hoveden, i. 253). If this earl had become a monk, Hoveden, his contemporary, would have mentioned it. In any case, it is not likely that this earl's body was carried all the way from Scotland to the monks' burial-ground at Durham. Hoveden seems to have confused the first and third earls, as it is probable that it was the third earl who was buried at Norham. Tradition says that his horse was buried with him there.²⁴

Married. King Alexander I. married Sybilla, illegitimate daughter of Henry I., king of England, by Sybille Corbet, uterine sister of Renaud de Dunstanville.¹⁰

King Alexander I. gave Lands to the Church at Durham, Dunfermline, and Scone.¹¹

His Charters were addressed 'to all throughout his kingdom, Scots and English.'¹²

The Monastery at Scone in Perthshire was founded by Alexander I. and Sybilla, king and queen of Scots, with consent of two bishops and seven earls, (?) about 1113-14.¹³

The Two Bishops were Gregory and Cormac. Gregory seems to have been bishop of Moray and Cormac bishop of Dunkeld.¹⁴

The Seven Earls were:—Beth, comes (? Angus); Gospatricius (Dunbar); Mallus, comes (Stratherne); Madach, comes (Athol); Rothri, comes (Mar); Gartnach, comes (Buchan); Dufagan, comes (? Fife).¹⁵

The Bishopric of Glasgow was reconstituted by 'Earl David,' brother of King Alexander I., about 1115.¹⁶

Matilda, 'The Good Queen Maud,' wife of Henry I., king of England, died at Westminster, in the 12th year

Sybilla, queen of King Alexander I., died suddenly at Loch Tay, 12th July 1122.¹⁸

Died. King Alexander the First died at Stirling; according to the 'Anglo-Saxon Chronicle,' on the 23rd of April 1124.¹⁹

Aged about 48.²⁰

Buried in state, near his father, before the great altar at Dunfermline, on the 25th of April 1124.²¹

His Reign lasted 17 years 3 months and 16 days.²²

REIGN ENDED 23RD APRIL 1124.

King Alexander the First left no issue by his wife Sybilla.²³

REFERENCES TO THE DEATH OF ALEXANDER THE FIRST,
KING OF SCOTS.Ancient.

F. Worcester, ii. 78, 25 Apr. 1123 [this is certainly the wrong year]; Anglo-Saxon Chronicle (Rolls Series, No. 23), ii. 221, 23 Apr. 1124 [this date was recorded in the Anglo-Saxon Chronicle about 200 years before Fordun was born, and about 250 years before he wrote his History of Scotland. The authors of the Anglo-Saxon Chronicle must have taken a personal interest in the Scottish Kings Eadgar, Alexander I., and David I., because, besides being sons of an Anglo-Saxon princess, they were brothers of 'the Good Queen Maud,' wife of Henry I., king of England;] Fordun, bk. v. c. 30, 'died at Stirling,' 24 Apr. 1124; Fordun adds, 'He was buried in state at Dunfermline on St. Mark's Day.' [It is not likely that he could have been buried on that day (the 25th) at Dunfermline, if he had died at Stirling the very day before, so that the day of his death seems more probably to have been the 23rd than the 24th. In any case, as the 25th was the festival of St. Mark, it was a very convenient day, in after years, on which to commemorate the anniversary. Fordun is not always trustworthy in his early dates; for instance, bk. v. c. 34, he is two days wrong in recording the death of David I., king of Scots, brother of King Alexander I.;] Scotichronicon (Goodall), ii. 291, bk. v. c. 40, 24 Apr. 1124 [copied from Fordun, bk. v. c. 30]; Extracta, 67, 'died at Stirling,' 24 Apr. 1124 [copied from Fordun, bk. v. c. 30]; Chron. Modern.

English Historical Review, No. 29, vol. viii., January 1893, 'Notes and Documents,' p. 81 (J. H. Round), 25 Apr. 1123 [this is certainly the wrong year from F. Worcester, ii. 78]; Translation of the Anglo-Saxon Chronicle, by the Rev. J. Ingram (1823), p. 350, 22 Apr. 1124 [translator's error]; Translation of the Anglo-Saxon Chronicle in Bohn's Antiquarian Library, p. 493, 22 Apr. 1124 [error]; L'Art de Vérifier les Dates (ed. 1783), i. 843, 24 Apr. 1124; Burke's Peerage, Baronetage and Knightage (1897), cxvi., 24 Apr. 1124 [? from Fordun, bk. v. c. 30]; Scotland under her Early Kings, by E. W. Robertson (1862), i. 183, 25 Apr. 1124 [? from Chron. Mailros, 67]; Annals of Scotland, by Sir David Dalrymple, ms., No. 31. 4. 13. in the Advocates' Library, Edinburgh, vol. i. p. 63, 'Alexander I. died 27 Apr. 1124.' [This is not a manuscript, it seems to be a proof of the first printed edition with manuscript notes. Its printed title is, 'Annals of Scotland from the Accession of Malcolm III., surnamed Canmore, to the Accession of Robert I., by Sir David Dalrymple, Edinburgh, printed by Balfour and Smellie, for J. Murray, No. 32 Fleet Street, London, MDCCLXXVI.' The first edition was printed in Edinburgh in 1776; the second edition in 1797; the third edition, three vols., in 1819. In all three editions, 27 Apr. 1124 is stated to be the date of the death of Alexander I., the authority quoted being Symeon of Durham, but Symeon, Surtees (No. 51, 125), gives 25 Apr. 1124, and Symeon, Rolls Series (No. 75, ii. 275), gives 26 Apr. 1124 (not 27) as the date of his death! It appears therefore that (1) King Alexander I. had been dead 652 years before 27 Apr. was erroneously stated to be the day of his death; and (2) the mistake of stating that 27 Apr. was the day of the death of King Alexander I., appears to have arisen about 120 years ago, either from an unfortunate slip of Sir David Dalrymple, or from a printer's error]; Douglas's Peerage, Wood's ed. (1813), i. xiiij., a table of kings (from Annals of Scotland, second ed. 1797), 27 Apr. 1124; Chronology of History, Sir Harris Nicolas, new ed. (1843), 380, 27 Apr. 1124; 'A List of some of the Parliaments and General Councils of Scotland' prefixed to 'The Acts of the Parliaments of Scotland,' i. (published in 1844), 63, red (55, black), states that the reign of Alexander I. ended 27 Apr. 1124. [This is sometimes quoted as if from 'The Acts of the Parliaments of Scotland,' and is accepted as contemporary evidence by the unwary, whereas it is of no authority whatever, having been inserted by the editor, 1 Nov. 1844]. Handy Book of Rules and Tables, John J. Bond (1869), 309, 27 Apr. 1124; Woodward and Cates (ed. 1872), p. 1263, 27 Apr. 1124; Annals of England (1876), 106, 27 Apr. 1124; Haydn (ed. 1892), 866 [no day,] 1124; Whitaker's Almanack (1906),

p. 76 (David I. began to reign), 27 Apr. 1124. [No authorities given.]

[Alexander the First, king of Scots, appears—from the foregoing references—to have died in April 1124, and although there may be differences of opinion as to the exact day on which he died, it seems to have been a modern invention to assign his death to the 27th of April. The Anglo-Saxon Chronicle, perhaps the most trustworthy of all the 'authorities,' records (ii. 221) that King Alexander the First died on the 23rd of April 1124.]

NOTE

Gospatricius, the second of the seven earls who gave their assent to the Foundation Charter of Scone (see above, p. 52, No. 15), was the second of the three Earls Gospatric of Dunbar. He was a witness to the Inquisition of Earl David (about 1115), and also to the Foundation Charters of Selkirk (1113), and of Holyrood (1128), but in none of these cases does the word 'Comes' (Earl) appear after his name, although some years later he styles himself 'Gospatric the Earl, brother of Dolphin,' in his only known extant charter (Nat. MSS., i. No. xxv.). He was killed at the battle of the Standard, 22nd August 1138. His name is erroneously placed after his younger brother Waltheof in the Scots Peerage (iii. 243-245): ['the earliest authorities' are not named] thus ignoring the Inquisition of Earl David.

An explanation of the case has been suggested, viz. that his father, Gospatric the first earl, recovered from his grievous illness after he had been shrived by Aldwyn and Turgot, and that he lived to an advanced age as the 'Comes et Monachus,' whose name appears in the Durham obituary, and whose grave-cover, inscribed long after his death, was found in the monks' burial-ground at Durham in 1821.

His Reign lasted 12 years 6 months and 16 days.²²

REIGN ENDED 9th DECEMBER 1165.

ISSUE

King Malcolm the Fourth, 'The Maiden,' had an illegitimate son who predeceased him.²³

NOTE

King Malcolm IV. was grandson of David I., king of Scots, notwithstanding which, the translation of 'The Great Charter to Kelso,' in the National MSS., erroneously makes Malcolm IV. describe King David (four times) as 'my uncle' !²⁴

Ross Subdued. King William, with his brother David and a large army, advanced into Ross against Donald Ban MacWilliam, and fortified two castles there, viz., Dunscaith and Edderdour, in 1179.²⁰

The Golden Rose was sent by Pope Lucius III. to William, king of Scots, in 1182.²¹

Heraldry. Armorial bearings began to appear upon the shields of the 'mounted effigies' on Scottish seals towards the end of the 12th century.²²

Scottish Royal Arms. 'Or, a lion within a bordure flory, gules,' is an early blazon. [King William 'The Lion' may have borne these arms on his shield, and on his banner, but there does not appear to be an impression of any seal of his which bears a lion rampant.]²³

The Earldom of Huntingdon was given to William, king of Scots, by Henry II., king of England, in 1185.²⁴

Married. King William married Ermengarde, daughter of Richard, viccomes de Bellomonte, at Woodstock, in Oxfordshire, on the 5th of September 1186.²⁵

His Reign lasted 34 years 7 months and 5 days.²⁸

REIGN ENDED 8TH JULY 1249.

ISSUE

King Alexander the Second had, by his first wife, Joan of England, no issue.²⁹

King Alexander the Second had, by his second wife, Marie de Coucy, an only son:

24. Chron. Mailros, 154, 4 Sep. 1241; Extracta, 97, 4 Sep.; Fordun, Annals, 44, 4 Sep.; Wyntoun, ii. 238, bk. vii. c. 9, ll. 2721, 2943, a^o 1242.

25. Chron. Mailros, 178, died 8th of July 1249; Matt. Paris, Chron. Maj., v. 88, 89; Chron. Man. (Munch), 24, a^o 1249; Wyntoun, ii. 251, bk. vii. c. 9, ll. 3087-3092; Fordun, Annals, 46, 1249 [erroneously states that he was buried 8 July]; Chron. Lanercost, 55 [the date of the death of King Alexander is given as 'idibus Julii,' 15 July, and four lines lower down his son is stated to have succeeded him 'tertio idus Julii' (13th), two days before what is stated to be the date of his father's death! Possibly 'viii.' has been left out by mistake before idus, as that would make it 8 July—the correct date. The dates in the Chronicon de Lanercost are frequently open to suspicion; in several cases like the above they can be proved to be incorrect]; Celtic Scotland, i. 490 [erroneously states that King Alexander II. was buried 8 July 1249; whereas he died on that day. The late learned author of Celtic Scotland acknowledged this to be an error].

26. See above, Nos. 3 and 25.

27. Chron. Mailros, 178, buried at Melrose; Chron. Man. (Munch), 24, a^o 1249; Fordun, Annals, 46, buried at Melrose on Thursday, 8 July 1249 [the 8th of July did fall on Thursday in 1249, but that was the day of King Alexander II.'s death, not of his burial]; Celtic Scotland, i. 490 [repeats Fordun's error. See above, No. 25]; Extracta, 99, 100, gives his epitaph, copied from Fordun's Annals, 46.

28. Chron. Mailros, 114, a^o 1214; 178, 8 July 1249; Fordun, Annals, 28; Celtic Scotland, i. 483-490. See above, Nos. 5 and 25.

29. Chron. Mailros, 148, died without children, 4 Mar. 1238; Fordun, Annals, 44, 'neither son nor daughter'; Chron. Lanercost, 47.

Alexander, king of Scots as Alexander III., from 8th July 1249 to 19th March 1285-6.³⁰

Marie de Coucy, Widow of Alexander II., returned to her own country on the 29th of September 1251, and was married before the 6th of June 1257 to Jean de Brienne, 'dit d'Acre,' who was son of John, king of Jerusalem.³¹

King Alexander the Second had an illegitimate daughter:

Marjorie, married to Alan Durward. Her grandson, Nicolas de Soules, was a Competitor in 1291.³²

But King Eric refused to allow his daughter to embark in the English ship, which returned without her, and reached Raveneshore, at the mouth of the Humber, 16th June 1290.¹⁷

The Treaty of Marriage between the Lady Margaret, Queen of Scots, and Lord Edward, surnamed Caernarvon, eldest son of Edward I., king of England, was confirmed at Northampton, 28th August 1290.¹⁸

Died Unmarried. Margaret, Queen of Scots, 'The Maid of Norway,' never reached Scotland, as she died in Orkney (then part of the Norwegian dominions) 'between the hands of Bishop Narve, and in the presence of the best men who followed her from Norway,' about the 26th of September 1290.²⁰

NOTES

King Eric's Marriages.—Eric II. (Magnusson), king of Norway, when thirteen winters old, married as his first wife Margaret, only daughter of Alexander III., king of Scots, at Bergen, in August 1281. His wife Margaret, queen of Norway, died at Tönsberg, 9th April 1283, and left an only child, Margaret, 'The Maid of Norway,' Queen of Scots from 1285-6 to 1290. King Eric married as his second wife, in 1293 (before the 25th of September), Isabella, daughter of Robert Brus, earl of Carrick; she was granddaughter of Robert Brus the Competitor, and sister to Robert Brus who afterwards became Robert I., king of Scots.²⁶

THE FIRST INTERREGNUM

The First Interregnum began about the 26th September 1290,
 „ „ ended 17th November 1292,
 „ „ lasted 2 years 1 month and about 23
 days.

The First Interregnum. A dispute arose as to who was heir to the Crown, immediately after the death of Margaret, 'The Maid of Norway,' Queen of Scots, about the 26th of September 1290.¹

THE FIRST INTERREGNUM BEGAN ABOUT THE 26TH OF SEPTEMBER 1290.

The Four Surviving Guardians, viz. :—

William Fraser, bishop of St. Andrews; Robert Wishart, bishop of Glasgow; John Comyn, lord of Badenoch; and James, the high steward of Scotland, carried on the government of the Kingdom in 1290.²

Heir to the Kingdom. A convention, to settle who was heir to the Kingdom of the Scots, was held by Edward I., king of England, with the bishops, prelates, earls, barons,

1296-1306

The Second Interregnum began 10th July 1296,
 „ „ ended 27th March 1306,

The Second Interregnum. On the abdication of John Balliol, king of Scotland, Edward I., king of England, who was then at Montrose, seized the government, and treated Scotland as a conquered country, 10th July 1296.¹

THE SECOND INTERREGNUM BEGAN 10TH JULY 1296.

Scotland Subjugated for a Time. Owing to the dissensions among the nobles, the Scots were unable to make any organised resistance to King Edward I., who went northwards with an army from Montrose, on the 10th of July 1296.²

Edward I., king of England, marched with his army through Aberdeen, Banff, and Cullen. He reached Elgin on the 26th July, and halted there three days. He marched southwards as far as Rothes, on the 29th of July 1296.³

Born—it has been supposed at Writtle, near Chelmsford in Essex—on the 11th of July 1274.³

Earl of Carrick, after his mother's death, on his father's resignation, 27th October 1292.⁴

Married First Isabella, daughter of Donald, 10th earl of Mar, about the year 1295.⁵

Assaulted by Comyn. Sir John Comyn [of Badenoch] 'leaped on the Earl of Carrik [Robert Brus], and took him by the throat,' and held him fast 'until the Steward and others went between and stopped this scuffle,' in a Council of Magnates, at Peebles, on the 19th of August 1299.⁶

Council of Magnates, assembled at Peebles, on Wednesday the 19th of August 1299.⁷

Married Secondly. Robert Brus married, as his second wife, Elisabeth, daughter of Haymer de Burk, earl of Ulster, in the year 1302.⁸

Succeeded to the lordship of Annandale, on his father's death, in the year 1304.⁹

Stabbed Comyn. Robert Brus, earl of Carrick, met Sir John Comyn of Badenoch in the church of the convent of the Minorite Friars at Dumfries; an altercation took place, and Brus—possibly in self-defence, probably without premeditation—stabbed Comyn, who was immediately afterwards despatched by Brus's companions, on the 10th of February 1305-6.¹⁰

The Scottish Barons, in their letter to Pope John XXII., dated at Arbroath, 6th April 1320, wrote: 'If your Holiness . . . does not abstain from favouring them [the English] to our confusion, the loss of life, the ruin of souls, and other evils that will follow, which they will inflict on us and we on them, will, we believe, be laid to your charge by the most High.' See above, p. 136, Nos. 42 and 43; also below, p. 396.

The letter does not appear in the Fordun printed in the Historians of Scotland (vols. i. and iv.). The Book of Pluscarden (bk. viii. c. 54, and Index) erroneously styles the Pope John 'XII.', instead of John XXII.

Guardian. Sir Andrew Moray of Bothwell was acknowledged Guardian of the Kingdom, by a Parliament assembled at Dunfermline, in December 1335.²⁸

Lochindorb Castle. Edward III., king of England, came to Perth, on the 8th of June 1336, and halting one night at Blair, he 'hastened straight to Lochindorb' in Moray, and brought away the Countess of Athol, who was being besieged there, in June 1336.²⁹

Aberdeen Burned. Edward III., king of England, returned from Lochindorb through Elgin, and burned Aberdeen on his way southwards, in June 1336.³⁰

Dunbar Castle Besieged. 'Black Agnes,' wife of Patric, earl of Dunbar and March, successfully defended Dunbar Castle for upwards of five months, against the English under William Montague, earl of Salisbury, from the 13th January 1337-8, until the English raised the siege on the 16th of June 1338.³¹

Tilting at Berwick. Twenty Scottish knights went through 'three knightly tilts' with twenty English knights, when one Scottish knight and two English knights were killed at Berwick, in 1338.³²

Returned from France. King David II. and his queen returned to Scotland after an absence of seven years, having passed most of the time at the Château Gaillard on the banks of the Seine, in Normandy. They landed at Inverbervie in Kincardineshire, 2nd June 1341.³³

The Battle of Durham (or Neville's Cross). The English totally defeated the Scots under King David II. at Neville's Cross near Durham, 17th October 1346.³⁴

Taken Prisoner. King David II. was taken prisoner by John Coupeland at the battle of Durham (or Neville's Cross), 17th October 1346.³⁵

Guardian Re-elected. Robert, the high steward, nephew of the king, was re-elected Guardian of the Kingdom after the battle of Durham in October 1346.³⁶

Impaled Arms. The earliest known instance of impaled arms connected with Scotland is an impression of the seal of 'Isabelle de Dunbar,' which, together with an impression of the seal of her husband, Sir Patric of Dunbar, is appended to a charter, granted at Wester Spot in East Lothian, dated 2nd January 1351-2.³⁷

Allowed to go to Scotland. King David II., after hostages had been given, seems to have been in Scotland, trying to raise money for his ransom, between the 27th of March and Pentecost [27th May] 1352.³⁸

Regnal Years of King David II. From some unexplained cause, the charters granted by King David II. from the 24th to the 42nd year of his reign inclusive, are dated one regnal year short of the true date. This remark applies to all his charters granted after the 6th of June 1352.³⁹

The First Battle of Nesbit. The Scots defeated the English, and took Sir Thomas Gray prisoner, at Nesbit in Berwickshire, in August 1355.⁴⁰

The Battle of Poitiers. A number of Scottish knights were serving in the French army when the English, under the Black Prince, totally defeated the French, and took their king, Jean II., prisoner, at Poitiers in France, 19th September 1356.⁴¹

Released. King David II. was released after a captivity of eleven years. The treaty for his release, negotiated at Berwick on the 3rd of October 1357, was ratified by him in parliament, at Scone, 6th November 1357.⁴²

ISSUE

King David the Second left no issue either by his first wife, Johanna of England, or by his second wife, Margaret Drummond or Logie.⁵¹

NOTES

'Black Agnes of Dunbar.' In the Chronicon de Lanercost it is stated that 'the castle of Dunbar, notwithstanding a heavy siege, held out manfully, and because the Countess of Dunbar, who was the principal guardian of the castle, was sister of the Earl of Moray, then a prisoner at Nottingham, the English brought him down to Dunbar in April 1338, threatening that if the countess did not surrender the castle, they would put her brother to death, to which she answered, "If you do this I shall be heir to the earldom of Moray," for her brother had no children. The English, however, did not wish to put the earl to death, and sent him back to England to be detained in custody as before.'⁵²

The Battle of Crécy. Edward III., king of England, totally defeated the French under King Philippe VI. (de Valois), at Crécy near Abbeville, 26th August 1346.⁵³

The First Pestilence is said to have destroyed one-third of the men, women, and children in Scotland, in the years 1349 and 1350.⁵⁴

The Second Pestilence is said to have been as severe as the first; it visited Scotland in the year 1362.⁵⁵

Margaret, the Divorced Wife of King David II., escaped to Avignon, and made a successful appeal to the Pope to reverse the sentence of divorce which had been pronounced against her in Scotland. She survived the king, and was alive on the 31st of January 1374-5, but seems to have died soon after that date.⁵⁶

58. [The above dates are correct; but from some unexplained cause the charters granted by King David II. from the 24th year to the 42nd year of his reign inclusive, are dated one regnal year short of the truth. Therefore, to find the correct date, it is necessary to add one to any regnal year that dates a charter of King David II. after the 6th of June 1352. The question—which year was made 24 months long?—is still (1906) undetermined. See above, p. 153, No. 39.]

REIGN ENDED 19TH APRIL 1390.

ISSUE

King Robert the Second had by his first wife, Elisabeth Mure, four sons, John, Walter, Robert, and Alexander; and five daughters, Margaret, Marjorie, Elisabeth, Isabella, and Jean.⁴²

(I.) John, earl of Carrick, afterwards Robert III., king of Scots from 19th April 1390 to 4th April 1406.⁴³

(II.) Walter, married (as her fourth husband) Isabella, countess of Fife, and seems to have died about 1362.⁴⁴

(III.) Robert, duke of Albany, 'earl of Fyff and of Menteth,' Governor of the Kingdom from 1st December 1388 until his death at Stirling, 3rd September 1420. He married first, Margaret, countess of Menteth, by whom he had an only son, Murdac, and several daughters. He married secondly, Muriella, daughter of Sir William Keith; issue three sons; the eldest, John Stewart, earl of Buchan, was Constable of France.⁴⁵

Murdac, duke of Albany, succeeded his father as Governor of the Kingdom, in 1420, and was beheaded at Stirling, 25th May 1425. He married Isabella, daughter of Duncan, earl of Lennox, and had with other issue three sons: ⁴⁶

(B) Sir Walter, beheaded at Stirling, 24th May 1425.⁴⁶

(C) Sir Alexander, beheaded at Stirling, 25th May 1425.⁴⁶

(IV.) Alexander, 'The Wolf of Badenoch,' earl of Buchan and Ross, burned Forres in May 1390, and burned Elgin on the 17th June 1390. He is supposed to have been buried in the choir of the Cathedral at Dunkeld. By his wife Euphemia, countess of Ross, he left no issue.⁴⁷ His illegitimate son, Alexander Stewart, earl of Mar, forcibly married the widowed countess of Mar. He defeated the Highlanders and Islanders, at Harlaw, 24th July 1411.⁴⁸

(V.) Margaret, married, as his second wife, to John, lord of the Isles; Papal dispensation, 14th June 1350.⁴⁹

(VI.) Marjorie, married to John of Dunbar, brother to George, 10th earl of Dunbar, 3rd earl of March; Papal dispensation, 11th July 1370. John of Dunbar and his wife were created earl and countess of Moray, in parliament at Scone, 9th March 1371-2. The earl, wounded in a tournament in London, died at York in 1391. His widow, 'Marjorie, countess of Moray,' held the earldom of Moray jointly with her elder son, Thomas of Dunbar. She was married secondly to Alexander Keith of Grandown, son of Sir William Keith, great Marischal of Scotland.⁵⁰

REIGN BEGAN 19TH APRIL 1390.

King of Scots. John, earl of Carrick, became king of Scots on the death of his father King Robert II., 19th April 1390.⁷
Aged about 53 when he succeeded his father.⁸

The Cathedral at Elgin Burned. 'The Wolf of Badenoch,' Alexander, third son of King Robert II., burned Forres at the end of May 1390; and burned Elgin with its church of St. Giles, the Maison Dieu, eighteen houses of the canons and chaplains, and the Cathedral, 'the mirror of the country and the glory of the kingdom,' 17th June 1390.⁹

Anointed and Crowned. John, earl of Carrick, was anointed and crowned as Robert III. at Scone, 14th August 1390.¹⁰

Styled Robert III. instead of John, with consent of the Estates of the Kingdom, on and after 14th August 1390.¹¹

The Queen Crowned. Annabella, daughter of Sir John Drummond of Stobhall and wife of King Robert III., was crowned as Queen, at Scone, 15th August 1390.¹²

John Barbour, archdeacon of Aberdeen, born about 1325, wrote 'The Story of the Brus,' and seems to have died 13th March 1394-5.¹³

The First Scottish Dukes. King Robert III. created David, his eldest son, duke of Rothesay; and Robert, his (the king's) brother, duke of Albany, in the church of the monastery of St. Michael of Scone, on the 28th of April 1398.¹⁵

Lawlessness. The following is a translation of a Latin paragraph in the Registrum Episcopatus Moraviensis, which refers to the year 1398:

'In those days there was no law in Scotland, but the strong oppressed the weak, and the whole kingdom was one den of thieves. Homicides, robberies, fire-raisings, and other misdeeds remained unpunished, and justice seemed banished beyond the kingdom's bounds.'¹⁶

King's Lieutenant Appointed. King Robert III. being 'unable to govern the realm, or to restrain trespassers and rebels,' his son, David, duke of Rothesay, was appointed King's Lieutenant through all the kingdom for three years, by the General Council held at Perth, 27th January 1398-9.¹⁷

Richard II., king of England, resigned on the 29th, and was deposed on the 30th September 1399.¹⁸

The Duke of Rothesay's Betrothal to Elisabeth, daughter of George, 10th earl of Dunbar (3rd earl of March), took place in 1395; and the payment of a large sum of gold to the king as her dowry, was made in 1399.¹⁹

George, 10th earl of Dunbar (3rd earl of March), hearing that the Duke of Rothesay intended to repudiate his marriage, went to the king and demanded, either that the marriage should be solemnised, or that his daughter's dowry should be repaid to him. Not satisfied with the king's answer, the earl threatened that if the king did not keep his engagement, it would be the worse for him and for his kingdom. (February 1399-1400.)²⁰

The Duke of Rothesay's Marriage. David, duke of Rothesay, eldest son of King Robert III., repudiated his marriage to Elisabeth of Dunbar, and married Marjorie, daughter of Archibald, 3rd earl of Douglas, in the church of Bothwell, in February 1399-1400.²¹

[With regard to the year in which Prince James was captured, Walsing-

ham gives 1406; and although the Scotichronicon, the Extracta, and the Book of Pluscarden give 1404, they all three agree that the captivity lasted 18 years, so that as King James was released in April 1424, his 18 years' captivity must have begun in 1406. With regard to the month and day, at that time and for nearly two centuries afterwards, that is, until 1600, in Scotland, the year began on the 25th of March. In 1406 the moveable feast of Palm Sunday happened to fall on April 4, which was the tenth day of the new year. Wyntoun, who usually gives the date at the beginning of each of his chapters, begins chapter xxv. of book ix. with the date 1405. He then records the slaughter of Sir David Fleming, which took place in February or March 1405[-6]; he does not stop to point out that a new year began on the 25th of March, because his contemporaries knew it perfectly well, but he goes on with his narrative and states that, after the death of Sir David Fleming, the prince stayed some time in the castle of the Bass waiting for his ship, and that when the ship

JAMES THE FIRST

(STEWART)

KING OF SCOTS

1406—1436-7

Reign began 4th April 1406,

,, ended 21st February 1436-7,

,, lasted 30 years 10 months and 18 days.

James the First (Stewart). ‘King of Scots,’ ‘Kynge of Scottis.’ During his father’s lifetime he was styled ‘James the Steward of Scotland,’ and ‘James, earl of Carrick.’¹

Third and only Surviving Son of Robert III., king of Scots, by his wife Annabella, daughter of Sir John Drummond of Stobhall.²

Born at Dunfermline in December 1394.³

Embarked for France at the Bass, in March or April 1406.⁴

shows that his birthday must have been in December.

4. Wyntoun, iii. 94, 95, bk. ix. c. 25, ll. 2601-2620; Extracta, 212; Scotichron., ii. 439, bk. xv. c. 18, and note, 440; Book of Pluscarden, bk. x. c. 21; Exchequer Rolls, iv., Appendix to Preface, pp. excvi-cc, date of capture. [On comparing the different statements it seems that Prince James waited some time at the Bass for the ship that came for him from Leith, and after its arrival the ship may well have been weather-bound or storm-stayed, as it was about the time of the equinoctial

Captured at Sea, when on his way to France, in time of peace, by English sailors off Flamborough Head, on St. Ambrose's Day, Palm Sunday, the 4th of April 1406.⁵

Prisoner. Henry IV., king of England, remarked, when Prince James was brought to him, that he would teach him French, and he sent him as a prisoner to the Tower of London in April 1406.⁶

REIGN BEGAN 4TH APRIL 1406.

King of Scots. James I. became king of Scots on the death of his father, King Robert III., 4th April 1406.⁷

Aged 11 years 3 months and about 15 days when he succeeded his father. He was a prisoner in England at the time.⁸

gales and easterly winds, so that it is quite possible the prince did not leave the Bass until the end of March or the beginning of April 1406.] See above, Robert III., p. 178, No. 37, and p. 179, No. 38.

5. Walsingham, ii. 273, a^o '1406'; Wyntoun, iii. 94, bk. ix. c. 25, ll. 2668-2670 [chapter 25 begins with the date 1405, and the first events which it records took place in February and March 1405-6. The year 1405 ended on Mar. 24]. Line 2669 states that the prince was captured 'upon the Palm Sondag' [which was Apr. 4, being the 10th day of the new year 1406]; Extracta, 212, 'kept prisoner in England for 18 years from the date of his capture, Mar. 30, 1404'; Scotichron., ii. 439, bk. xv. c. 18, 'captured Mar. 30, 1404, kept prisoner for 18 years'; Book of Pluscarden, bk. x. c. 21 (Robert III.), 'heard of his son's capture, Apr. 4, 1404,' 'kept prisoner for 18 years'; Cal. Doc. Scot., iv., Introduction, xxx, xxxi, p. 144, No. 698; Exchequer Rolls, iii., Preface,

p. 96; iv., Preface, 42, 43, and Appendix to Preface, 172, No. 3, also pp. 196-200.

[In comparing the different statements, it is well to note that Palm Sunday was on Apr. 12, in 1405; and on Apr. 4, in 1406. The year of Prince James's capture appears to have been 1406, which was 18 years before his release. The day of Prince James's capture, according to Wyntoun, his contemporary, was Palm Sunday, which was Apr. 4, in 1406; and was the day on which his father, King Robert III., died. The Prince may have been landed at Hull or Lynn, or possibly at Cley in Norfolk, where his captors lived, but it is not likely that he was landed further south. Perhaps some chronicle, giving the dates of his movements, may yet be found.] See above, Robert III., p. 178, No. 37, and p. 179, No. 38.

Declared King. The Estates of the Kingdom being assembled, declared that although King James was a prisoner in England, and unable to assume the crown in succession to his father, King Robert III., he should be styled 'our King.' Council held at Perth in June 1406.⁹

Governor of the Kingdom. Robert, duke of Albany, earl of Fife and of Menteth, was appointed Governor of the Kingdom by ordinance of the Council assembled at Perth in June 1406.¹⁰

Resby Burned for Heresy. James Resby, an English priest, a disciple of Wiclif, seems to have been the first victim. He was burned for heresy at Perth in 1407.¹¹

A Gaelic Charter, supposed to be the earliest dated charter in Celtic speech now extant, is one by which M^cDomhnaill of the Isles granted lands in Islay to Brian Vicar Mackay. The charter is dated 'the sixth day of the month of Beltane' (6th May) 1408.¹²

Insurrection at Liège. The Duke of Burgundy, with the assistance of Alexander Stewart, earl of Mar, and about eighty Scottish knights and followers, won an important battle at Liège, 23rd September 1408.¹³

George, 10th earl of Dunbar (3rd earl of March), after nine years' absence from Scotland, was reinstated in his earldom and castle of Dunbar, and in most of his

The Battle of Harlaw. The Scottish Lowlanders and the citizens of Aberdeen, under Alexander Stewart, earl of Mar, defeated an invasion of Highlanders and Islanders, under Donald of the Isles, at Harlaw in Aberdeenshire, 24th July 1411.¹⁵

St. Andrews University was founded by Henry Wardlaw, bishop of St. Andrews; charter dated, in the chapter-house of the Cathedral at St. Andrews, on the 28th of February 1411-12.¹⁶

“Jamis, throu the grace of God, Kynge of Scottis,” is his style in a letter supposed to have been written by him to ‘schyr William of douglas of drumlangrig,’ dated at ‘Croidoune,’ 30th November 1412.¹⁷

St. Andrews University. The foundation charter was confirmed by Bull of Pope Benedict XIII., dated at Paniscola, in the diocese of Tortosa in Spain, 28th August 1413.¹⁸

REIGN BEGAN 11TH JUNE 1488.

King of Scots. James IV. became king of Scots on the death of his father, King James III., 11th June 1488.⁶

Aged 15 years 2 months and 26 days when he succeeded his father.⁷

Crowned. King James IV. was crowned at Scone, on or about the 26th of June 1488.⁸

Rebellion. The Earl of Lennox and Lord Lyle, with their adherents, were defeated by Lord Drummond, at Gartlunane, about the 12th of October 1489.⁹

Naval Engagement. The Scots, under Sir Andrew Wood of Largo, in the ships 'Flower' and 'Yellow Carvel,' defeated the English in the Firth of Forth, near Dunbar, and took five English ships as prizes into Leith, in 1489.¹⁰

Drummond and Murray Feud. The Drummonds, led by David, second son of Lord Drummond, burned one hundred and twenty Murrays in the church of Monivaird in Stratherne. They were tried at Stirling in October 1490.¹¹

William Caxton, the first English printer, born in Kent about 1422, set up a printing-press at Westminster about 1476; and, after he had printed sixty-four books, died in 1491-2.¹²

Glasgow an Archbishopric. The see of Glasgow was made an archbishopric, with the bishops of Dunkeld,

William Dunbar (Poet), born in Lothian about 1460; Master of Arts in 1479: friar of the Order of St. Francis; was court poet to King James IV. from about the year 1500 until the king's death, 9th September 1513.³¹

The Battle of Flodden. The English, under the Earl of Surrey, totally defeated the Scots under King James IV. The Scots lost their king, 1 archbishop, 1 bishop, 2 abbots, 1 dean, 13 earls, about the same number of lords, 3 Highland chiefs, many lairds, altogether about 10,000 men killed. The battle was fought at Flodden, near Branxton in Northumberland, 9th September 1513.³²

Slain. King James the Fourth was slain at the battle of Flodden in Northumberland, 9th September 1513.³³

Aged 40 years 5 months and 24 days.³⁴

Buried, it is supposed, in the monastery at Sheen, near Richmond in Surrey.³⁵

His Reign lasted 25 years 2 months and 30 days.³⁶

REIGN ENDED 9TH SEPTEMBER 1513.

King James the Fourth had by his wife, Margaret Tudor, four sons, viz.: James, Arthur, James, and Alexander; and two daughters, both of whom died in infancy.³⁷

(I.) James, born at Holyrood House, 21st February 1506-7; died 27th February 1507-8.³⁸

(II.) A Daughter, born 15th July 1508; died soon after her baptism.³⁹

(III.) Arthur, born at Holyrood House, 20th October 1509; died 14th July 1510.⁴⁰

(IV.) James, Prince of Scotland and of the Isles, born at Linlithgow, 10th April 1512; king of Scots as King James V. from 9th September 1513 to 14th December 1542.⁴¹

[This is wrong: the charter at p. 40, which is recorded in the Great Seal Register, bk. xiv., No. 462 (printed ed., p. 684, No. 3204), only proves that the prince was dead, 9 Mar. 1507-8; it does not 'confirm the date.' The 27th seems to have been the date of the prince's death.]

39. Leslie, bk. viii. 129, c. 104, daughter born 15 July, died immediately after baptism; Exchequer Rolls, xiii., Preface, 85, birth and death; 53, died 1508; 64, 'born 27 June.' [This is evidently an error.]

42. Leslie, bk. viii. 138, c. 104, born, baptized, and died 1513; Exchequer Rolls, xiii., Preface, 85, born in November 1512. [This would leave only 7 months' interval between her birth and that of her immediate elder brother, King James V. It seems more probable that she was born in 1512-13—about half-way between the births of her brothers, the younger James and Alexander.]

(VI.) Alexander, duke of Ross, born in Stirling Castle after his father's death, and died before he was two years of age; buried at Cambuskenneth.⁴³

King James the Fourth had several illegitimate children; the names of Alexander and Catherine, James, Margaret, and Janet appear in the Records: ⁴⁴

(VII.) Alexander Stewart, born about 1493—son of Margaret Boyd, who was a daughter of Archibald Boyd of Bonshaw—made archbishop of St. Andrews, 'though under the age of puberty,' in or before July 1505; went abroad in 1505; studied under Erasmus at Padua in 1508; returned in 1509; appointed Chancellor of Scotland in 1510; slain at Flodden, on the 9th of September 1513.⁴⁵

(VIII.) Catherine—daughter of Margaret Boyd—married to James Douglas, 3rd earl of Morton.⁴⁶

(IX.) James Stewart, born about 1499—son of Janet Kennedy, who was daughter of John, 2nd Lord Kennedy—created earl of Moray, 12th June 1501; lieutenant-general of the Kingdom, 1535; he married Lady Elisabeth Campbell, only daughter of Colin, 3rd earl of Argyll, and died without male issue, 12th June 1544. He had an only daughter: ⁴⁷

Mary, married to John Stewart, Master of Buchan.⁴⁸

(X.) Margaret Stewart, born about 1497—daughter of Margaret Drummond, who was the daughter of John, 1st Lord Drummond—married, first, to John, Lord Gordon, by whom

(XI.) Janet (or Jean)—daughter of Isabella Stewart, who was daughter of James, earl of Buchan—married to Malcolm, 3rd Lord Fleming.⁵⁰

Margaret Tudor's Second Marriage. Margaret, widow of James IV., king of Scots, was married, secondly, in August 1514, to Archibald Douglas, 6th earl of Angus, from whom she procured a divorce, in March 1526. By the earl of Angus she had an only daughter :⁵¹

Lady Margaret Douglas, born at Harbottle in October 1515; married to Matthew Stewart, 4th earl of Lennox, 6th July 1544; died at Hackney, 9th March 1577-8. Their eldest son :⁵²

Henry Stewart, Lord Darnley, born 7th December 1545; married, as her second husband, Mary Queen of Scots, 29th July 1565; and was murdered soon after midnight between the 9th and 10th of February 1566-7.⁵³

Margaret Tudor's Third Marriage. Margaret, widow of King James IV., was married, thirdly, in March 1526, to Henry Stewart, who was created Lord Methven, 17th July 1528. Margaret Tudor had no issue by her third marriage. She died at Methven, 18th October 1541, and was buried in the Carthusian monastery at Perth.⁵⁴

Reign began 9th September 1513,

„ ended 14th December 1542,

„ lasted 29 years 3 months and 6 days.

James the Fifth (Stewart). ‘King of Scots,’ ‘Roy descosse,’ ‘Knight of the Garter,’ ‘The poor man’s King.’¹

Third Son of James IV., king of Scots, by his wife Margaret Tudor, daughter of Henry VII., and sister of Henry VIII., kings of England.²

Born at Linlithgow, 10th April 1512, and baptized there on Easter Day, the 11th of April 1512.³

1. Acts of Parliaments, ii. 282, 12 July 1515; Nat. mss., pt. iii., No. xvi., autograph letter; No. xix., ‘Le Roi descosse’; No. xxvii., dated 24 May 1544, King Henry VIII. acknowledges the receipt of the insignia of the Garter which belonged to the late king of Scots; Ancient Scottish Seals, i. 13, 14, Nos. 56, 57; Diplomata Scotiæ, Pls. LXXXVI. LXXXVII., seals; Pl. CLIV., gold coins; Pl. CLXII., silver coins; Leslie, bk. ix. 261, c. 105, ‘The poor man’s king.’

2. Exchequer Rolls, xiii., Preface, 84-86.

3. Epis. Reg. Scot., l. 141, born

10 Apr. 1512; Leslie, bk. viii. 137, c. 104, born Apr. 15, note *, born Apr. 11, 1512; Pitcottie, 107, a son born in May 1511; Exchequer Rolls, xiii., Preface, 68, born ‘10 Apr., the eve of Easter’; 85, born ‘11 Apr., Easter Eve, 1512.’ [This last is doubly wrong; the 11th was neither the date of his birth, nor Easter Eve. The 11 Apr. was Easter Day in 1512.] Treasurers’ Accounts, 11 Apr. 1512, ‘Item, the same day [Pasche]’ the prince’s baptism. For ane horse and a man to turse [to carry off hastily] the cradill to Linlithgo on Pasche day in the mornynge, vs.’ [five shillings].

REIGN BEGAN 9TH SEPTEMBER 1513.

King of Scots. James V. became king of Scots on the death of his father, King James IV.—who was killed at Flodden—on the 9th of September 1513.⁴

Aged 1 year and 5 months when he succeeded his father.⁵

Crowned at Stirling in September 1513.⁶

Letter to the Pope. Henry VIII., king of England, wrote to Pope Leo X. that ‘13,000 Scots with the king himself [James IV.] and all the Scottish nobility were slain,’ and although the king of Scots was excommunicated, asked leave to have his corpse buried in St. Paul’s Cathedral; letter dated at Tournay, 12th October 1513.⁷

Regency of the Queen-Dowager. Margaret Tudor, widow of King James IV., appears to have assumed the Regency, in compliance with her husband’s will, in autumn 1513.⁸

The Queen-Dowager’s Second Marriage. Margaret Tudor, widow of King James IV., was married, secondly, to Archibald Douglas, 6th earl of Angus, at the chapel of Kinnoul, in August 1514.⁹

Albany’s First Visit to Scotland. John (or Jehan), duke of Albany—French by birth and education—son of Alexander, duke of Albany, grandson of King James II., and heir-presumptive to the throne, landed at Ayr, 16th

NOTE

[It is very important to determine the exact date of the death, abdication, or deposition of a sovereign, because generally that date affects the beginning of each of the regnal years of his successor.

In the two printed volumes of the 'Registrum Magni Sigilli Regum Scotorum,' 1513-1546 and 1546-1580, published in 1883 and 1886 respectively, the regnal years and dates of confirmation of some of the charters confirmed during the reign of Mary Queen of Scots do not agree with those of the same charters in the original Record ('Registrum Magni Sigilli') in H.M. General Register House, Edinburgh.

The editors of the two above-mentioned printed volumes seem to have begun by assuming (erroneously) that James V., king of Scots, died, and his daughter, Queen Mary, succeeded, on the 16th of December 1542.

It is unnecessary to give a list of all the charters in both of these volumes, of which the confirmation is dated on the 13th, 14th, 15th, or 16th December in each year of the reign of Mary Queen of Scots. It will be sufficient for the present purpose to quote a few of the charters confirmed during her reign; see the table of charters on the opposite page.]

* In a footnote, the alteration is admitted to have been made.

[The above nine charters seem to show that the clerks, who entered them in the Register of the Great Seal, reckoned that James V., king of Scots, died before the 16th of December 1542.

In seven of the above charters the clerks appear to have reckoned that King James V. died on or before the 15th of December 1542, and in two of the charters, that he died on or before the 14th of December 1542.

In the MSS. of the Duke of Hamilton, printed in the Historical MSS. Commission, vol. xi. App. vi., 219, 220, a notarial instrument purporting to be a will of King James V. is dated at 7 A.M. on the 14th of December 1542, while the king was still alive.

Finally—taking into consideration all the foregoing contemporary and modern references relating to his death—James the Fifth, king of Scots, appears to have died at Falkland, on Thursday the 14th of December 1542.]

Prince Alexandre Labanoff, in his Lettres de Marie Stuart (Londres, 1844, vi. 65), assumes from this, that she was born on the 8th Dec. 1542 [but she might have written in those words of many other days with equal truth]; Leslye, 166, born 7 Dec. 1542; 169, in the palace of Linlithgow; Diurnal of Occurrents, 25, born 8 Dec. 1542; Knox, i. 91, 8 Dec. 1542, in Linlithgow; Calderwood, i. 151, born 8 Dec. 1542; Buchanan, ii. 181, about five

Queen of Scots. Mary became Queen of Scots on the death of her father, King James V., 14th December 1542.⁴

Aged about seven days when she succeeded her father on the 14th December 1542.⁵

Arran Chosen Governor. James Hamilton, 2nd earl of Arran, chosen Governor, 22nd December 1542, was declared 'tutor lawful to the Queen's Grace, and Governor of this realm,' by the three Estates of Parliament, at Edinburgh, on the 13th of March 1542-3.⁶

Register of Acts and Decrees, i., fol. 148, before the Lords of Council and Session at Edinburgh, 9 Dec. 1542. In the 'Supplication,' given in by Andro, bishop of Galloway, 'and of our soverane lordis chapell ryale of Striveling,' it is stated, that the queen 'is approcheand to ly and seiklie' [expecting her confinement].

[It has been erroneously supposed from the above that the queen's child (afterwards Mary Queen of Scots) was not born until on or after 9 Dec. 1542. But the 9th of December 1542 was the day on which the bishop's 'Supplication' came before the Lords of Council and Session, and the Supplication may have been written days or even weeks before that date.]

[In 1542 the clergy seem to have reckoned that the day ended at sunset; the laity reckoned that it ended at midnight. If Queen Mary was born between sunset and midnight, it may explain the confusion of dates. As her name was Marie, and Dec. 8 was the Feast of the Conception of the Blessed Virgin Mary, Queen Mary's birthday was most probably kept in after years on that day, whether or not the 8th of December 1542 was the actual day of her birth. Fortunately the date of a sovereign's birth is comparatively immaterial; it is the exact date of the death or abdication of a sovereign that is important.]

IX. THE USE OF THE TABLES AND CALENDARS EXPLAINED

The foregoing Tables of Regnal Years; the following explanation of 'Double Dates'; the Table of Easter Day; the Tables of Ash Wednesday and of the Principal Moveable Feasts before and after Easter; the Alphabetical Table of the Popes and Antipopes; and the Alphabetical, Church, and Latin Calendars; are provided to enable any person to translate the dates in old documents or chronicles into our present computation.

Some documents were dated by a Regnal year; for instance, King Alexander II. granted a charter¹ to the monks at Pluscarden, dated 7th April, in the 22nd year of his reign. On referring to the Table of his Regnal Years (see above, p. 93), the year will be found to be 1236.

Some documents were dated by a Saint's day; for instance 'St. Andrew's Day.' On referring to the Alphabetical Calendar (see below, p. 330), this will be found to be the 30th of November.

Some documents were dated by an Octave; for instance, an Inquisition dated 'die Dominica in octabis Sancte Trinitatis anno regni Regis Edwardi sextodecimo' (on Sunday the Octave of Holy Trinity in the 16th year of the reign of King Edward). Easter Day fell on the 28th of March in 1288 (16 Edward I.), Trinity Sunday was on the 23rd of May, and the Sunday following (30th May) was the Octave of the feast.

'In Octabis' seems to be erroneously accepted as meaning on any day during the Octave, but a careful examination of the Records proves that it was on the day of the Octave and not on any day during the Octave, Nicolas, Hardy, Bond, etc., etc., notwithstanding.²

Some documents were dated by a Moveable Feast; for instance, the 'Letter,' written in Norman French, which was presented by the 'Competitors' for the Scottish Crown to Edward I., king of England, the chosen arbitrator. The Letter is dated 'at Norham the Wednesday after the Ascension in the year of Grace 1291.'³

The exact date of this 'Letter,' according to our present computation, may be ascertained by referring

- (1) To the Alphabetical Calendar (see below, p. 330), where it appears that Ascension Day is a moveable feast ;
- (2) To the Table of Easter Day (see below, p. 311), where it appears that in the year 1291 Easter Day—on which the moveable feasts depend—fell on the 22nd of April ; and
- (3) To the Table of Moveable Feasts after Easter (see below, p. 324), where it appears that when Easter Day falls on the 22nd of April, Ascension Day falls on Thursday the 31st of May ; consequently the date of the Letter, 'Wednesday after the Ascension in the year of Grace 1291,' was—according to our present computation—the 6th of June 1291.

Some documents were dated by Calends or Kalends, Nones, or Ides ; for instance, 'xix. Cal. Jan.' On referring to the Latin Calendar (see below, p. 357), this will be found to be the 14th of December.

Some documents were dated by the Regnal Year of a Pope ; for instance, the Bull of Pope Honorius III., 'given at the Lateran by the hand of Ranerius, the Vice-Chancellor of the Holy Roman Church, on the eleventh of the Kalends of December, the seventh Indiction, in the year of the Incarnation of our Lord, twelve hundred and eighteen, and of the Pontificate of our lord Pope Honourius III., the third year.'⁴

X. DOUBLE DATES EXPLAINED

Events in Scottish history which happened in any year before 1600, on any day from the 1st of January to the 24th of March inclusive, are often incorrectly assigned to a particular year. The cause of this is explained in the following remarks:—

In Scotland, before the 1st of January 1600, letters, deeds, royal charters, etc., were usually dated by the civil computation, in which the year began on the 25th of March (The Annunciation); although Papal Bulls and occasionally other documents were dated by the historical computation, in which the year began on the 1st of January.

Both computations assign each day, from the 25th of March to the 31st of December inclusive, to the same year; but they assign each day, from the 1st of January to the 24th of March inclusive, to a different year.

As the use of two computations proved inconvenient, King James VI., with advice of the Lords of his Privy Council, issued a Proclamation, dated Haliruidhous, 17th December 1599. This Proclamation ordained that, in and after 1600, the year should begin on the 1st of January, instead of on the 25th of March. [But the Proclamation did not introduce the New Style, as it did not deduct the ten extra days that the Julian method of computing the year had erroneously accumulated. The New Style was first adopted in Scotland and in England, in compliance with an Act of Parliament, on the 14th of September 1752.¹]

Accordingly, the year 1599, which had begun on the 25th of March, ended on the 31st of December, and consequently lost all January, all February, and from the 1st to the 24th of March inclusive, and only lasted 9 months and 7 days.

This change gave rise to the necessity of using a double date when referring to events that had taken place before the year 1752 on any day from the 1st of January to the 24th of March inclusive, in order to show the year according to both computations.

When a double date is given, the first year shows the first or old computation, that is, the civil or legal year as it was reckoned in Scotland before 1752 ; the last year shows the last, present, or historical computation as it is reckoned now (1906).

1. See below, pp. 299, 303-305, 317.

THE EARLIEST EXAMPLE OF A DOUBLE DATE IN THIS BOOK.

Malcolm II. became king of Scots on the death of Kenneth III. in 1005. The exact date of his accession is unknown, but the nearest approach to reconciling the statements in the different chronicles is to suppose that it took place on the 25th of March—the first day of 1005. This makes the first regnal year of Malcolm II. begin on the 25th of March 1005, and end on the 24th of March 1005-6 (see above, p. 4, note 23). Another example:—

THE DEATH OF ALEXANDER III., 19TH MARCH 1285-6.

Any person reading that Alexander III., king of Scots, was killed by a fall from his horse on the 19th of March 1285, would not know by which computation his death was assigned to that year, and consequently could not tell how many years had elapsed since the event.

But if the double date were given, as it sometimes is, and always ought to be, thus : 19th March 1285-6, three facts relating to the death of Alexander III. would be shown, viz. :

1. That 1285 was the year of his death according to the ancient Scottish computation, as it was reckoned in the time of Alexander III., and as it appears in the old chronicles ;
2. That 1286 was the year of his death according to the historical computation as it is reckoned now (1906) ; and
3. That the 600th anniversary of his death (according to the New Style) occurred on the 19th of March 1886. Another example:—

THE BIRTH OF DAVID II., 5TH MARCH 1323-4.

David II., king of Scots, reckoned that he was born on the 5th of March 1323, whereas we reckon that he was born on the 5th of March 1324. Both dates are correct, and really mean the same day ; because from his point of view the year 1323 began on the 25th of March, and ended on the 24th of March following ; whereas from our point of view the year 1323 began on the 1st of January, and ended on the 31st of December following. According to the old computation, David II. was born on the 346th day of the year 1323. According to the present computation, he was born on the 64th day of the year 1324. Therefore, to show both computations, in speaking or writing now of the date of his birth, the date ought to be described thus: 5th March 1323-4. Another example:—

31ST DECEMBER 1459, NEXT DAY, 1ST JANUARY 1459.

Suppose a charter dated 31st December 1459, confirmed next day by the king; the king's confirmation would be dated 1st January 1459, which would appear to us to be a year before the charter was granted. Therefore, in speaking or writing now of the date of the king's confirmation, it ought to be described thus: 1st January 1459-60. Another example:—

24TH MARCH 1594, NEXT DAY, 25TH MARCH 1595.

Suppose a charter dated 24th March 1594, confirmed next day by the king; the king's confirmation would be dated 25th March 1595, which would appear to us to be, not one day, but a year and one day after the charter was granted. Therefore, in speaking or writing now of the date of the charter, it ought to be described thus: 24th March 1594-5; the date of the king's confirmation, 25th March 1595, would be the same in both computations. Another example:—

THE ACCESSION OF JAMES VI. TO THE THRONE OF ENGLAND, 24TH MARCH 1602-3.

King James the Sixth of Scotland succeeded to the throne of England, as James I., upon the death of Queen Elizabeth on the 24th of March 1602-3, which in Scotland was reckoned the 83rd day of 1603; but in England it was the 365th, or last, day of 1602. Therefore, in speaking or writing now of the date of the accession of King James to the throne of England, the date ought to be described thus: 24th March 1602-3.

DISADVANTAGE OF OMITTING THE DOUBLE DATE.

If only one year be given it is impossible to know which computation is used, or whether the event is correctly assigned to the particular year; and if only the historical year be given, it does not correspond with the year shown in contemporary authorities, which makes it liable to create confusion.

Double dates are unnecessary for events that occurred in Great Britain on or after the 25th of March 1751.

XI. THE PRINCIPAL MOVEABLE FEASTS AND FASTS IN CHRONOLOGICAL ORDER

[See also below, the Tables, pp. 308-324.]

In Scotland, before the Reformation, the days seem to have been reckoned from sunset to sunset, not from midnight to midnight, as at present (1906). 'And the evening and the morning were the first day' (Genesis i. 5), not the morning and the evening.

Feasts. All Sundays are Feasts.

Fasts. All Fridays are Fasts, except those that fall on Christmas Day.

The moveable Feasts and Fasts depend upon Easter Day.

Advent Sunday, or, more correctly, 'The First Sunday in Advent' is on St. Andrew's Day (the 30th day of November) when that day falls on Sunday; but when St. Andrew's Day falls on a week day, Advent Sunday is the nearest Sunday to it, whether before or after; so that Advent Sunday is never more than three days from St. Andrew's Day.¹

Septuagesima Sunday is the third Sunday before Lent, and the ninth Sunday before Easter.

Sexagesima Sunday is the second Sunday before Lent, and the eighth Sunday before Easter.

Quinquagesima Sunday is the Sunday next before Lent, and the seventh Sunday before Easter. It is called Quinquagesima (50th) from its being fifty days before Easter.

Fasterns-eeen, Shrove Tuesday, or Mardi Gras, is the day next before Ash Wednesday, and the last day of the Carnival; it is the seventh Tuesday before Easter. Lent begins on the evening of Fasterns-eeen.

1. Advent is generally supposed to be the beginning of the ecclesiastical year in Western Christendom. In the 'Annexed' Book of Common Prayer, signed by Convocation on the 20th of December 1661, and attached to 'the Act of Uniformity,' there is the following note at the end of the Table of Moveable Feasts, which is omitted from the present Books of Common Prayer, viz. :— 'Note, that the Supputation of the year of our Lord in the Church of England beginneth the 25 day of March.' [This Note seems to have been superseded on the 1st of January 1752, on the adoption of the New Style, by Act of Parliament.]

296 PRINCIPAL MOVEABLE FEASTS AND FASTS

The following lines are still (1906) in use in the north-east of Scotland, viz. :

‘First comes Cannilmas,² and syne³ the new meen,⁴
The first Tysday⁵ efter that, that’s Fasterns-een;
That meen oot,⁶ and anither at its hicht,⁷
The first Sunday efter that, that’s Paice⁸ richt.’

Shrove Tuesday. See above, ‘Fasterns-een.’

Lent⁹ is a Fast of forty days. It begins on the evening of Fasterns-een, or Shrove Tuesday, and extends to Easter Even, that is, to the Saturday evening next before Easter. Sundays being ‘Feasts,’ are not included in counting the forty days’ Lenten Fast.

Ash Wednesday is the day after Fasterns-een, or Shrove Tuesday, and is the seventh Wednesday before Easter.

Quadragesima. Lent, the forty fast days before Easter.

Quadragesima Sunday is the first Sunday in Lent, and the sixth Sunday before Easter.

Palm Sunday, on which day the triumphal entry of our LORD into Jerusalem is commemorated, is the sixth Sunday in Lent, and the Sunday next before Easter.

Maundy Thursday, on which day the institution of the Blessed Sacrament used to be commemorated, is the Thursday next before Easter.¹⁰

Good Friday, on which day the Crucifixion of our LORD¹¹ is commemorated, is the Friday next before Easter.

Easter Even is the Saturday next before Easter.

2. Candlemas: the 2nd of February, the Presentation of Christ in the Temple, or the Purification of the Blessed Virgin Mary.

3. then.

4. moon.

5. Tuesday.

6. out.

7. height.

8. Pasch, or Easter Day.

9. ‘Lent,’ the Anglo-Saxon for ‘Spring,’ is ‘Quadragesima’ in Latin, and ‘Carême’ in French.

10. As Maundy or Skire Thursday is in Lent and a Fast day, the commemoration of the Institution of the Blessed Sacrament was transferred, in the year 1264, to the Thursday next after Trinity Sunday. See ‘Corpus Christi,’ on the opposite page.

11. The Crucifixion of our LORD is supposed to have taken place on Friday the 7th of April Anno Domini 29, that is, Anno Christi 33, when he was 32 years, 3 months, and 13 days old. See below, p. 300.

Easter, Pasch, Paice, Easter Day, or Easter Sunday, on which day the Resurrection of our LORD¹² is commemorated, is the first Sunday after the first full moon that falls upon, or next after the 21st of March. If the full moon falls on Sunday, Easter Day is the Sunday after. The earliest date on which Easter Day can fall is the 22nd of March, the latest date on which Easter Day can fall is the 25th of April; therefore there are thirty-five different dates on which Easter Day may fall.¹³

Ascension Day, or Holy Thursday, on which day the Ascension of our LORD is commemorated, is the sixth Thursday, or the thirty-ninth day after Easter.

Pentecost, Whit-Sunday, or Whitsun-Day, on which day the descent of the HOLY GHOST is commemorated, is the seventh Sunday, or the forty-ninth day after Easter.

Trinity Sunday, or the First Sunday after Pentecost, the Feast in honour of the Holy Trinity, is the eighth Sunday after Easter; its observance was decreed at the Synod of Arles in the year 1260.¹⁴

Corpus Christi (the Body of Christ). This Feast, on which day the institution of the Blessed Sacrament is commemorated, was transferred from Maundy Thursday—a fast day—and is now held on the Thursday next after Trinity Sunday; it was authorised and promulgated by Pope Urban IV. in the year 1264.

12. The Resurrection of our LORD is supposed to have taken place on Sunday the 9th of April, Anno Domini 29, that is, Anno Christi 33. See below, p. 301. In mediæval calendars the Resurrection of our LORD was commemorated on the 27th of March.

13. See below, Table of Easter Day, pp. 308-320. [There is an error in the Sealed Book of Common Prayer (1661). In the Rule for the reckoning of Easter the words 'upon, or' are omitted. Consequently no provision was made for the occurrence of Easter Day on the 22nd of March. The error was corrected in the 1751 edition of the Book of Common Prayer. See Walter B. Blaikie's Monthly Star Maps, MCM. (1900), p. vb.]

[The word 'Easter' in the Authorised Version of the Bible (Acts, chapter xii. verse 4) is 'Passover' in the Revised Version.]

14. In the Scottish Episcopal Church and in the English Church the Sundays between Trinity and Advent are reckoned from Trinity Sunday. In the Roman Church the Sundays between Trinity and Advent are reckoned from Pentecost.*

The ancient Scottish Church is styled Scotiana ecclesia and Scotiana ecclesia in Papal Bulls.†

XII. SOME NOTES ON ERAS, CALENDARS, EASTER, THE OLD AND NEW STYLES, ETC.

The following notes were made while examining—for this book—the different statements relating to Eras, Calendars, Easter, the Old and New Styles, etc., and they are inserted here in case they may be of use to any person who may wish to investigate these matters¹:—

Eras, Calendars, etc. Among the most interesting are the Era of the World, or the Mundane Era; the Era of Rome; the Julian Era; the Julian Calendar; the Actian Era; the Augustan Era; Anno Christi; Anno Domini; the Christian Era; the Era of the Incarnation of the WORD, or the Dionysian Era; the Old Style; and the New Style, or the Gregorian Calendar. Their dates seem to be as follows, viz.:—

The Era of the World, or the Mundane Era, that is, the Era of the Creation of the World, begins in the year B.C. 4004 according to Archbishop Ussher, and according to the date in the margin of the Authorised Version of the Holy Bible; but there are upwards of one hundred different dates given for the Mundane Era!

The Era of Rome, A.U.C., Anno Urbis Condite, or Ab Urbe Condita (the year the city was built), began in B.C. 753.

The Julian Era began on the 1st of January B.C. 45.

The Julian Calendar. Caius Julius Cæsar, the Dictator, better known as 'Julius Cæsar,' reformed the Roman Calendar, and instituted the 'Julian Calendar' on the 1st of January B.C. 45.²

The Actian Era (in Rome) began on the 1st of January B.C. 30, and was instituted by the Roman Senate to commemorate the battle of Actium.

The Battle of Actium was fought on or about the 2nd of September B.C. 31, near the mouth of the Gulf of Arta, at the south of Albania. It was the sea-fight in which Octavianus defeated Antony and Cleopatra. By this victory Octavianus ticulars relating to a number of different eras, see The Chronology of History (ed. 1843), pp. 1-25.

became master, and eventually first emperor of the Roman world. His name was originally Caius Octavius, but in the year B.C. 44, when he inherited by will the property of his mother's uncle, Caius Julius Cæsar, he called himself 'Caius Julius Cæsar Octavianus.'

The title 'Augustus' was conferred, by the Roman Senate, in the year B.C. 27, on the Emperor Octavianus, who is the 'Cæsar Augustus' mentioned in the second chapter of the Gospel according to St. Luke (ii. 1). He was born on the 23rd of September B.C. 63, and died on the 29th of August A.D. 14, in his 77th year, having been emperor upwards of forty years.

The Augustan Era began in the year B.C. 27, and was instituted to commemorate the date on which the title 'Augustus' was conferred by the Roman Senate upon the Emperor Octavianus. The day on which the era began is variously stated as the 6th, 13th, 16th, or 17th of January, or the 14th of February B.C. 27.

Anno Christi begins on the 25th of December B.C. 5, on which day the Birth of our LORD is reckoned to have taken place.

The Christian Era (Anno Domini) begins on the 1st of January A.D. 1. (See next paragraph.)

Anno Domini (which is the Christian Era now in use) begins on the 1st of January A.D. 1, four years and seven days after the date on which the Birth of our LORD is reckoned to have taken place, and three years and about nine months after the death of 'Herod the King.'

The Era of the Incarnation of the WORD began on the 25th of March B.C. 1. (See next paragraph.)

The Dionysian Era began on the 25th of March B.C. 1. Dionysius Exiguus began his era, which he called 'The Era of the Incarnation of the WORD,' on that day, supposing it to be nine months before the Birth of our LORD, whereas it appears to have been three years and three months after that event.³

The Old Style. 'The Julian Calendar' became 'The Old Style' on the 15th of October 1582.⁴

The New Style. 'The Gregorian Calendar' became 'The New Style' on the 15th of October 1582.⁵

In Great Britain 'The Old Style' ended on the 2nd September 1752, 'The New Style' began on the 14th September 1752.

3. See below, pp. 301, 306.

4. See below, p. 303.

5. Instituted by Pope Gregory XIII. See below, pp. 303-306.

The Gregorian Calendar, commonly called 'The New Style,' was instituted by Pope Gregory XIII. on the 15th of October 1582, but 'The New Style' was not adopted in Scotland or in England until the year 1752, nor in Ireland until 1782.⁶

THE CHRONOLOGY IN THE GOSPELS

Chronology in the Gospels. The chronology of the events recorded in the Gospels is corroborated by the independent testimony of contemporary Roman history; but if 'Anno Domini' is to be understood in its usual signification, there are errors of date (1) in the Christian Era (Anno Domini) now in use, (2) in the dates printed in the margins of the Gospels in reference Bibles of the Authorised Version, and (3) in the Era of Dionysius Exiguus.

The Birth of our LORD is reckoned to have taken place on or about the 25th of December B.C. 5. In the Authorised Version, in the margin of St. Matthew's Gospel (ii. 1), the Birth of our LORD is dated 'the Fourth Year before the Common Account called Anno DOMINI.' In the margin of St. Luke's Gospel (ii. 11) the Birth of our LORD is dated 'Before the Account called Anno DOMINI the Fifth Year.' We read in the second chapter of the Gospel according to St. Matthew (verse 1), 'Now when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea in the days of Herod the king'; and (verse 16), 'Then Herod . . . sent forth, and slew all the children that were in Bethlehem.' These two verses, with their contexts, prove that our LORD was born before the death of Herod the king ('Herod the Great'), who died between the 13th and 29th of March B.C. 4, that is, about three months after the Birth of our LORD, or three years and about nine months before the beginning of the Christian Era (Anno Domini).⁷

The Circumcision of our LORD is reckoned to have taken place on the 1st of January B.C. 4, the eighth day after His birth. In the margin of St. Luke's Gospel (ii. 21) the Circumcision of our LORD is dated, 'Before the Account called Anno DOMINI the Fourth Year.'

The Crucifixion of our LORD is reckoned to have taken place on Friday the 7th of April Anno Domini 29, that is, Anno Christi 33, in the 33rd year of His age, when He was thirty-two years three

6. See below, pp. 303-306.

7. St. Matthew ii. 19 (in the margin), 'The Third Year before the Account called Anno Domini.'

months and thirteen days old. In the margin of St. Matthew's Gospel (ii. 1) our LORD's birth is dated 'the Fourth Year before the Common Account called Anno DOMINI.' In the margin of St. Luke's Gospel (ii. 1) our LORD's birth is dated 'Before the Account called Anno DOMINI the Fifth Year.' Notwithstanding this, in the margins of all the four Gospels the Crucifixion of our LORD is dated 'Anno Domini 33,' which, according to the usual meaning of 'Anno Domini,' would make His age thirty-six years and some months, instead of thirty-two years and some months, at the time of His death.

From the above, it seems that 'Anno Domini' in the headings of the margins in reference Bibles of the Authorised Version ought to be altered to 'Anno Christi,' or that the dates ought to be altered to four years earlier. The year of our LORD's death may be written either A.D. 29 or A.C. 33.

The Resurrection of our LORD is supposed to have taken place 'when the sabbath was past,' 'upon the first day of the week,'⁸ that is, on Sunday the 9th of April Anno Domini 29, Anno Christi 33.

THE OBSERVANCE OF EASTER

The Early Christians must have known the exact dates of the principal events in our LORD's history; but as time went on, during the first centuries of the Christian Era, there were great diversities of opinion and frequent disputes as to the particular time when Easter ought to be observed, in commemoration of the Resurrection of our LORD.

The First General Council of the Church was held at Nice (Nicæa, the metropolis of Bithynia, a province of Asia Minor) in the year A.D. 325. This council decreed that all Churches should keep Easter on the same Sunday, but no regular system was adopted for upwards of two hundred years after that time.

Dionysius Exiguus, a Scythian by birth, who lived about five hundred years after the death of our LORD, became a monk in the Western Church, and about A.D. 533 invented a cycle of years which gradually came into general use.

Dionysius fixed the beginning of his cycle four years too late.

8. [Not on the Sabbath (or Saturday), which was and is the seventh day of the week.]

See St. Matthew xxviii. 1; St. Mark xvi. 1, 2; St. Luke xxiii. 56, xxiv. 1; St. John xx. 1.

He seems to have mistaken B.C. 27—in which year the title ‘Augustus’ was conferred by the Roman Senate upon the Emperor Octavianus—for B.C. 31, in which year Octavianus became Emperor, after the battle of Actium.

Dionysius called his era ‘The Era of the Incarnation of the WORD,’ and adopted the Julian year, instituted by Julius Cæsar in the year B.C. 45, which began on the 1st of January. Dionysius did not begin his era on the 1st of January like the Romans, nor on the 25th of December, to commemorate the Birth of our LORD; he began his era on the 25th of March B.C. 1, which he supposed to be nine months before the Birth of Christ, but it seems to have been three years and three months after that event, so that the chronology of Dionysius Exiguus appears to be exactly four years too late.

In England, from 1583 to 1752 inclusive, Easter was observed according to the Old Style, but in most of the Western Churches during that period Easter was observed according to the New Style, consequently in those one hundred and seventy years Easter was never once observed by the whole of Western Christendom on the same day.⁹

The Scottish Episcopal Church observed Easter according to the New Style for the first time on the 22nd of April 1753.

9. [There are apparently several ways in which a day for the observance of Easter might easily have been settled without reference to the moon; for instance:—

(1) By observing Easter on the 9th of April, the supposed anniversary of the Resurrection of our Lord, whether that day should fall on a Sunday or not, in the same way in which the 25th of December is observed as Christmas Day for the anniversary of His Birth; or

(2) By observing Easter on the 9th of April when that day should fall on a Sunday, or on the nearest Sunday to it, whether before or after, in the same way in which Advent Sunday falls with regard to St. Andrew’s Day. By this arrangement Easter would always fall on a

Sunday, and would never be more than three days from the supposed anniversary of the Resurrection; or

(3) By observing Easter on the second Sunday in April, which would be either on, or within a few days of, the supposed anniversary of the Resurrection.

In either of the last two ways Easter Day would fall on the 9th of April fourteen or fifteen times in each century, whereas by the present arrangement Easter Day may fall on thirty-five different days. Easter Day only twice fell upon the 9th of April in the nineteenth century (in 1871 and in 1882), and will only twice fall on the 9th of April in the twentieth century (in 1939 and in 1950). See the Table of Easter Day.]

The Western Churches observed Easter according to the New Style on the 15th of April 1906.

The Eastern Churches (Greek and Russian) observed Easter according to the Old Style on the 22nd of April 1906.

THE OLD STYLE

The Old Style. The Julian Calendar was instituted by Julius Cæsar when he reformed the Roman Calendar in the year B.C. 45.

Thirty-seven years after the death of Julius Cæsar the Julian Calendar was amended, after which it continued in use until the year 1582, when it was again amended by Pope Gregory XIII.

The Julian Calendar, which began on the 1st of January B.C. 45, became the Old Style on the institution of 'The Gregorian Calendar,' or New Style, on the 15th of October 1582.

THE NEW STYLE

The New Style, or the Gregorian Calendar, was instituted by Pope Gregory XIII. in the year 1582, by reckoning the day next after the 4th of October as the 15th of October 1582, the ten intermediate days being omitted; and after that date, in the New Style, the year began on the 1st of January instead of on the 25th of March. The New Style was adopted in most of the countries of Europe soon after its institution.

The beginning of the year was altered and re-altered, from time to time, by some of the Popes, before the institution of the New Style in 1582, and there are many instances of the same Pope beginning the year sometimes on the 1st of January, sometimes at the Annunciation, at Easter, or at Christmas. For instance, Adrian IV. (1154-1159), the only English Pope,¹⁰ in dating his

Bulls, began the year sometimes on the 1st of January, sometimes on the 25th of March, and sometimes he followed the era of Pisa, which began one year earlier than 'Anno Domini.'

In France, before 1563, there was no general rule as to when the year began. In different parts of the kingdom the 1st of January, the Annunciation, Easter, or Christmas was counted as New-year's Day, until 1563, in which year King Charles IX. issued an edict fixing the 1st of January as the beginning of the year; but this did not introduce the New Style, as the edict was published about twenty years before the Gregorian Calendar or New Style was instituted by Pope Gregory XIII. on the 15th of October 1582.

In Scotland, on the 17th of December 1599, King James VI., with advice of the Lords of his Privy Council, ordained that on and after the 1st of January 1600 the year should begin on the 1st of January instead of on the 25th of March¹¹; this alteration came into general use in Scotland on the 1st of January 1600, but it did not introduce the New Style or Gregorian Calendar, which was not adopted in Scotland until the year 1752.¹²

One effect of King James's order was to make the days of January and February and the first 24 days of March (in Scotland) appear to be one year in advance of the corresponding days in England, but the order did not introduce the New Style.¹³

In England, in and before 1751, the year began on the 25th of March, and ended on the 24th of March.

In Great Britain the New Style was adopted in 1752 by Act of 12. In the Times of the 11th June 1897, the third leading article, 'BULGARIA AND THE REFORMED CALENDAR,' contained the following misstatement:—

'Presbyterian Scotland, notwithstanding her horror of popery, had the good sense to adopt the Gregorian Calendar in 1600.'

A letter of remonstrance appeared in the Times on the 15th June 1897, page 12, under 'Old and New Style,' which elicited what follows:—

"* * * Our authority for the statement . . . is the following passage from the Encyclopædia Britannica, ninth edition, vol. iv. p. 677:—

"In Scotland the new style was adopted from the beginning of 1600 according to an Act of the Privy Council in December 1599. This fact is of importance with reference to the date of legal deeds executed in Scotland between that period and 1751. . . ."

[The ninth edition of the Encyclopædia Britannica is in error, as is also Chambers's Encyclopædia, vol. ii. p. 641.]

13. See also above, 'Double Dates Explained,' p. 292, paragraph 4.

Parliament, because the Julian Calendar or Old Style, hitherto in use, had become eleven days short of the true date, and the error was still increasing at the rate of about nine minutes in each year, or about one day in one hundred and sixty years.

An Act of Parliament,¹⁴ instituting the New Style, was passed in May 1751, which ordered, among other things, that—

On and after the 1st of January 1752, the year shall begin on the 1st of January [instead of on the 25th of March].

The day next after the 2nd of September 1752 shall be reckoned as the 14th of September 1752, omitting the eleven intermediate days ;

The year 1900 shall not be reckoned as a leap year ;

Easter Day and the other moveable feasts shall be reckoned according to the calendar, tables, and rules annexed to the Act and attached to the Book of Common Prayer.

By this Act, the year 1751 lost all January, all February, and from the 1st to the 24th March inclusive (as had happened 150 years earlier in Scotland) ; and in 1752 the month of September lost from the 3rd to the 13th inclusive. Or to put it differently, no documents—in Great Britain—could be correctly dated on any day of January or February 1751 ; nor on any of the first twenty-four days of March in 1751 ; nor on any day from the 3rd to the 13th of September, inclusive, in 1752, because none of those dates ever existed in Great Britain.

The New Style did not take full effect in Great Britain until Thursday the 14th of September 1752—after the eleven surplus days had been deducted from the Calendar—consequently Easter was observed, according to the Old Style, on the 29th of March in the year 1752.

In Ireland, the New Style was not adopted until 1782.

[As there is no general agreement about the exact dates of the chief events in the Gospel history, the foregoing remarks relating to the observance of Easter, on pages 300-303, and the Table of Eras, Events, and Anniversaries, on page 306, must necessarily be regarded only as searches after truth.¹⁵]

NOTES TO THE FOREGOING TABLE

- (1) Years.—A.U.C., Anno Urbis Conditæ, or Ab Urbe Condita (the year of Rome); E.I., Era of the Incarnation of the WORD; A.C., Anno Christi; B.C., Before Christ; A.D., Anno Domini. B.C. is counted backwards, and A.D. is counted forwards from the first of January Anno Domini 1. (See above, pp. 298-303.)
- (2) Dionysius Exiguus intended to begin 'The Era of the Incarnation of the WORD' nine months before the Birth of our LORD; to have done that he ought to have placed the beginning of the era at this date. (See above, pp. 299, 301, 302.)
- (3) The Foundation of Rome, A.U.C. 1, or B.C. 753. (See above, p. 298.)
- (4) The Battle of Actium was fought on or about the 2nd of September B.C. 31. (See above, p. 298.)
- (5) The Birth of our LORD. The Era 'Anno Christi' begins on the 25th of December B.C. 5, on which day the Birth of our LORD is reckoned to have taken place. (See above, p. 300.)
- (6) The Actian Era (in Rome) began on the 1st of January B.C. 30. (See above, p. 298.)
- (7) The Augustan Era began on or about the 17th of January B.C. 27. (See above, p. 299.)
- (8) 'Herod the King' (Herod the Great) died between the 13th and the 29th of March B.C. 4, about three months after the Birth of our LORD. (See above, the Birth of our LORD, p. 300.)
- (9) Dionysius Exiguus began his era, which he called 'The Era of the Incarnation of the WORD,' at this date, supposing it to be nine months before the Birth of our LORD; but it seems to have been three years and three months after that event. (See above, pp. 299, 301, 302.)
- (10) Dionysius Exiguus appears to have thought that the Birth of our LORD took place on the 25th of December B.C. 1; which was exactly four years after the usually accepted date. (See above, pp. 299, 301, 302.)
- (11) The Christian Era, 'Anno Domini,' begins on the 1st of January A.D. 1. Dionysius Exiguus seems to be responsible for having, about A.D. 533, selected the year in which to begin the Christian Era, and Pope Gregory XIII. is responsible for having, in 1582, selected the 1st of January as the day on which to begin the year. (See above, p. 299.)

XIV. A TABLE OF EASTER DAY

A Table of Easter Day for a thousand years from the year 1001 to the year 2000 inclusive, according to the Old Style before 1753, and according to the New Style after 1582.

The moveable Feasts and Fasts depend upon Easter Day.

The earliest date on which Easter Day can fall is the 22nd of March; the latest date on which Easter Day can fall is the 25th of April; therefore there are thirty-five different dates on which Easter Day may fall. (See above, pp. 297, 301-303.)

NOTE

The foregoing table of Easter Day has been compared with the tables of Easter Day in The Chronology of History (ed. 1843, pp. 58-78), also with those in L'Art de vérifier les

Dates (Paris, 1818, i. pp. 174-241), and the figures have been found to correspond, with the exception of a misprint in the French book (p. 200), where the year 1395 is printed '1495.'

XV. A TABLE SHOWING SOME ERRORS IN DATING EASTER DAY

From the year 1001 to the year 2000.

There appears to be one error in 'L'Art de vérifier les Dates,' 3rd edition, tome i. (Paris, 1750-1783); one error in 'The Chronology of History,' by Sir Harris Nicolas, 1st edition (London, 1833); one error in 'Handy-Book of Rules and Tables,' by John James Bond (London, 1869); and there are fifteen errors in 'Trésor de Chronologie,' by M. le comte de Mas Latrie (Paris, 1889).

The eighteen errors are noted in the subjoined table.

¹ [St. Alban's Day is on the 22nd of June in all Calendars both ancient and modern, except in those derived from the 'Annexed' Book of Common Prayer (signed by Convocation on the 20th of December 1661), in which St. Alban's Day is on the 17th of June. There does not appear to be any evidence to show whether the alteration was intentional or accidental, but it is supposed that, in copying or printing from a list of Saints intended to be inserted in the Calendar, xxii. was mistaken for xvii.]

⁴ [St. Mary Magdalene's Day is on the 22nd of July in all Calendars both ancient and modern, with the exception of those in the 'Annexed' and 'Sealed' Books of Common Prayer, in both of which it is on the 21st of July. In the first Prayer Book of King Edward VI. (1549) there is an Introit (Psalm cxlvi.), Collect, Epistle and Gospel for St.

Mary Magdalene's Day, and her name appears in the Calendar on the 22nd July. The 'Sealed' Book in the Chapter Library at Durham has no Collect, Epistle, or Gospel for St. Mary Magdalene's Day, but in the Calendar her name appears on the 21st of July, and there is a pen-and-ink correction to show that her day ought to be on the 22nd of that month.]

⁵ Octaves were sometimes used in dating documents. In counting an octave, the feast was reckoned as the first day, and the seventh day after the feast was 'the octave' or eighth day, in the same way in which an octave is counted in music.

'In Octabis' means on the day of the octave, not on any day during the octave; see 'The Record Society,' vol. xxvii. a^o 1893, 'Lancashire Lay Subsidies,' vol. i. Introduction, pp. xxiii-xxvi, by John A. C. Vincent.

NOTES

Scottish Chronicles and Charters were sometimes dated by the first words of the Introit appropriated to the Mass of a particular day, generally a Sunday, e.g. :—

- ‘Gaudete in Domino’ . . . Introit and name of 3rd Sunday in Advent.
‘Lætare Hierusalem’ . . . Introit and name of 4th Sunday in Lent.
‘Vocem jucunditatis’ . . . Introit and name of 5th Sunday after Easter.⁷

St. Margaret, queen of Malcolm III. (Ceannmor), king of Scots, on hearing that her husband had been killed three days before, died of grief in Edinburgh Castle, on the 16th of November 1093. She was buried before the high-altar in the church of the Holy Trinity at Dunfermline.

Pope Innocent IV., by Bull, dated Lyons, 21st September 1249, granted 40 days’ indulgence, every year, to those—penitent and confessed—who visited the church at Dunfermline in the Feast of St. Margaret.

Queen Margaret’s body was translated on the 19th of June 1250.

‘The Gospel Book of Saint Margaret,’ the subject of a miracle related by Turgot, is preserved in the Bodleian Library, and has been reproduced in facsimile.⁸

⁷ For the names of 45 Introits, see ‘A Glossary of Dates,’ in ‘The Chronology of History,’ by Sir Harris Nicolas (ed. 1843), p. 116.

⁸ See above, Malcolm III., pp. 27, 28, Nos. 17 and 18; also p. 33, No. 53; and Alexander III., p. 95, No. 7. See also Butler, vol. vi. p. 135.

WITH TRANSLATION

This Calendar is specially arranged for persons unfamiliar with Latin, who naturally would not think that 'XIX. Cal. Jan.' could be the 14th of December. (See next page.)

The following explanations may be found useful.

In the Latin Calendar:—

THE YEARS begin on the Calends or Kalends (1st) of January and are divided into 12 months.

THE MONTHS begin on the Calends and are divided by Calends, Nones, and Ides.

In the months of January, February, April, June, August, September, November, and December, the Calends are on the 1st of the month, the Nones on the 5th, and the Ides on the 13th.

In the months of March, May, July, and October, the Calends are on the 1st of the month, the Nones on the 7th, and the Ides on the 15th.

THE CALENDs are counted backwards, into the previous month, as far as the Ides.

THE IDES are counted backwards as far as the Nones.

THE NONES are counted backwards as far as the Calends.

THE DAYS are calculated by reckoning 'one' for the Calends, Nones, or Ides, and counting backwards. The last day of the month is called Prid. Cal. [the day before the Calends of the following month].

MISTAKES sometimes occur from the fact of the days of the latter part of every month bearing the name of the following month. For instance, the last eighteen days of December are counted as days before the Calends of January. (See next page.)

LEAP YEARS.¹—Instead of a day being added at the end of February, the 6th of the Calends of March (the 24th of February) is repeated in leap years. This arrangement is the origin of the term 'bis-sextile,' and it affects the last five days of February.

N.B.—In LEAP YEARS, owing to the fact of the days of the month being reckoned backwards—

*VI. Cal. Mar. priorem*² is the 25th of February, and

*VI. Cal. Mar. posteriorem*² is the 24th of February.

(See above, pp. 344, 345, and notes; also below, p. 358.)

¹ [The origin of the term 'Leap' year is supposed to be the rubric in the 1604 edition of the Booke of Common Prayer :—' When the yeeres of our Lord may be diuided into foure euen parts, which is euery fourth yeere : then the Sunday letter leapeth.' See also Monthly Star Maps, MCM. (1900), p. iii.]

² [In Whitaker's Almanack (1906, p. 70), the explanation is erroneously stated. The misstatement first appeared in the Almanack last century, and it has been repeated annually ever since.]
